

Contents

Preface and acknowledgements	page ix
Note on bibliographies	xiii
PART I: THE FIELD PROPOSED
1 The antipodean perception (2003)	3
2 British history: a plea for a new subject (1973/1974)	24
PART II: THE THREE KINGDOMS AND THE ENGLISH PROBLEM
3 The field enlarged: an introduction (2004)	47
4 Two kingdoms and three histories? Political thought in British contexts (1994)	58
5 The Atlantic archipelago and the War of the Three Kingdoms (1996)	77
6 The Third Kingdom in its history (2000)	94
PART III: EMPIRE AND REBELLION IN THE FIRST AGE OF UNION
7 Archipelago, Europe and Atlantic after 1688 (2003)	107
8 The significance of 1688: some reflections on Whig history (1991)	114
9 Empire, state and confederation: the War of American Independence as a crisis in multiple monarchy (1995)	134
10 The Union in British history (2000)	164

PART IV: NEW ZEALAND IN THE STRANGE MULTIPLICITY

- |    |   |     |
|----|---|-----|
| 11 | The neo-Britains and the three empires (2003)   | 181 |
| 12 | Tangata whenua and Enlightenment anthropology (1992)   | 199 |
| 13 | Law, sovereignty and history in a divided culture: the case of New Zealand and the Treaty of Waitangi (1992/1998) | 226 |

PART V: BRITAIN, EUROPE AND POST-MODERN HISTORY

- |    |  |     |
|----|--|-----|
| 14 | Sovereignty and history in the late twentieth century (2003) | 259 |
| 15 | Deconstructing Europe (1991)                                 | 269 |
| 16 | The politics of the new British history (2001)               | 289 |
| 17 | Conclusion: history, sovereignty, identity (2003)            | 301 |

Bibliographies 311

Index 329