

Contents

Acknowledgments ∞ ix

Introduction ∞ 1

PART I: LIFE'S BEGINNING

Chapter 1: Uniquely Valued ∞ 19

1 Cherished Uniqueness ∞ 19

2 Experience and Underwriting Intrinsic Moral Worth ∞ 28

3 Parental Love as a Moral Power ∞ 38

Chapter 2: Reconceptualizing the Moral Self ∞ 49

1 *Parenting as the Fullest Expression of Unconditional
Love* ∞ 50

2 Parenting and the Argument from Genes and Self-Interest ∞ 58

3 Self-Interest as the Best Explanation ∞ 65

4 A Supposed Lesson from Robinson Crusoe ∞ 73

5 Parenting as an Open-Ended Commitment ∞ 76

PART II: THE CRUCIBLE OF SOCIETY

Chapter 3: The Family as a Model for Society ∞ 83

1 Some Preliminary Remarks ∞ 84

2 Parental Love and a Conception of the Right ∞ 87

3 Fellow-Feeling and a Conception of the Right ∞ 95

viii ∞ Contents

4	Love and Fellow-Feeling Are Not Zero-Sum	∞	107
	5	Self-Command	∞ 122
Chapter 4:	From Family to E Pluribus Unum	∞	130
	1	Beyond Self-Interest	∞ 131
	2	Moral Personhood	∞ 138
	3	Community and Moral Personhood	∞ 143
	4	Social Unity and the Affective Sentiments	∞ 155
	5	The Backdrop of Flourishing	∞ 167
Epilogue:	Liberty: Between Plato and Modern Liberalism	∞	171

Index ∞ 177