

Contents

395392

List of illustrations	page ix
List of tables	x
Acknowledgements	xi
Part I National discourse and the study of the Crusades	1
1 From moral failure to a source of pride	3
2 The narrative of the Crusades and the nationalist discourse	18
3 Nationalist discourse and Crusader archaeology	32
Part II Crusader studies between colonialist and post-colonialist discourse	41
4 Colonial and anti-colonial interpretations	43
5 Who invented the concentric castles?	62
6 ‘Crusader cities’, ‘Muslim cities’, and the post-colonial debate	73
7 Crusader castle and Crusader city: is it possible to differentiate between the two?	84
Part III Geography of fear and the spatial distribution of Frankish castles	103
8 Borders and their defence	105
9 Borders, frontiers, and centres	118

viii	Contents
10	The geography of fear and the creation of the Frankish frontier	146
11	The distribution of Frankish castles during the twelfth century	165
	Part IV The castle as dialogue between siege tactics and defence strategy	187
12	Siege and defence of castles during the First Crusade	189
13	Frankish siege tactics	203
14	Development of Muslim siege tactics	217
15	The appearance of the concentric castles	231
16	The construction of a frontier castle: the case of Vadum Iacob	258
17	The last years of the Latin Kingdom: a new balance of power	275
	Conclusion	287
	Appendix	305
	Bibliography	318
	Author index	347
	Subject index	351