

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-86400-8 - The Cambridge Companion to Medieval English Theatre, Second Edition

Edited by Richard Beadle and Alan J. Fletcher

Frontmatter

More information

THE CAMBRIDGE COMPANION TO
MEDIEVAL ENGLISH THEATRE

The drama of the English Middle Ages is perennially popular with students and theatre audiences alike, and this is an updated edition of a book which has established itself as a standard guide to the field. The Cambridge Companion to Medieval English Theatre, second edition, continues to provide an authoritative introduction and an up-to-date, illustrated guide to the mystery cycles, morality drama and saints' plays which flourished from the late fourteenth to the mid sixteenth centuries. The book emphasises regional diversity in the period and engages with the literary and particularly the theatrical values of the plays. Existing chapters have been revised and updated where necessary, and there are three entirely new chapters. After a new general introduction there are chapters devoted to the York, Chester, Towneley (Wakefield) and N-Town cycles of biblical plays. Attention to the contribution of different regions is developed in a chapter on East Anglia, and continued in essays on the morality drama and the saints' plays. Two illustrated chapters are devoted to the performance of medieval plays, both in their own time and in recent modern revivals. A new chapter on the cultural significance of early drama has been added. A thoroughly revised reference section includes a guide to scholarship and criticism, an enlarged classified bibliography and a chronological table.

Richard Beadle is Reader in Medieval English Literature and Historical Bibliography at the University of Cambridge. He is co-editor, with Colin Richmond, of Paston Letters and Papers of the Fifteenth Century, Part III (2006), and he is currently preparing a two-volume edition of The York Plays, due to be published in 2009-10.

Alan J. Fletcher is Professor of Medieval and Renaissance English Language and Literature at University College Dublin. His most recent projects have been The Presence of Medieval English Literature, and a forthcoming book on medieval preaching in Great Britain and Ireland. He is a member of the Royal Irish Academy.

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-86400-8 - The Cambridge Companion to Medieval English Theatre, Second Edition

Edited by Richard Beadle and Alan J. Fletcher

Frontmatter

More information

THE CAMBRIDGE COMPANION TO
MEDIEVAL ENGLISH
THEATRE
SECOND EDITION

EDITED BY
RICHARD BEADLE and ALAN J. FLETCHER

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-86400-8 - The Cambridge Companion to Medieval English Theatre, Second Edition

Edited by Richard Beadle and Alan J. Fletcher

Frontmatter

More information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge, New York, Melbourne, Madrid, Cape Town, Singapore, São Paulo, Delhi

Cambridge University Press

The Edinburgh Building, Cambridge CB2 8RU, UK

Published in the United States of America by Cambridge University Press, New York

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9780521682541

© Cambridge University Press 1994, 2008

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 1994

Second edition 2008

Printed in the United Kingdom at the University Press, Cambridge

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloguing in Publication data

The Cambridge companion to medieval English theatre / edited by Richard Beadle and Alan J. Fletcher. – 2d ed.

p. cm. – (Cambridge companions to literature) Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-0-521-86400-8 (hardback) – ISBN 978-0-521-68254-1 (pbk.)

I. Theater – England – History – Medieval, 500–1500. 2. English drama – To 1500 – History and criticism. 3. Christian drama, English (Middle) – History and criticism. 4. Bible plays, English – History and criticism. I. Beadle, Richard. II. Fletcher, Alan J. III. Title. IV. Series.

PN2587.C36 2008

792.0942'0902 – dc22 2008008606

ISBN 978-0-521-86400-8 hardback

ISBN 978-0-521-68254-1 paperback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

CONTENTS

List of illustrations	page vii
List of contributors	x
Preface	xi
List of abbreviations	xvi
System of reference and list of editions of plays cited in the text	xvii
Chronological table	xix
1 An introduction to medieval English theatre	I
ALEXANDRA F. JOHNSTON
2 The theatricality of medieval English plays	26
MEG TWYXCROSS
3 The cultural work of early drama	75
GREG WALKER
4 The York Corpus Christi Play	99
RICHARD BEADLE
5 The Chester cycle	125
DAVID MILLS
6 The Towneley pageants	152
PETER MEREDITH
7 The N-Town plays	183
ALAN J. FLETCHER
8 The non-cycle plays and the East Anglian tradition	211
JOHN C. COLDEWEY

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-86400-8 - The Cambridge Companion to Medieval English Theatre, Second Edition
Edited by Richard Beadle and Alan J. Fletcher
Frontmatter
More information

CONTENTS

9	Morality plays	235
	PAMELA M. KING
10	Saints and miracles	263
	DARRYLL GRANTLEY
11	Modern productions of medieval English drama	287
	JOHN MCKINNELL
12	A guide to criticism of medieval English theatre	326
	PETER HAPPÉ
	Select bibliography	361
	Author index to the bibliography	389
	General index	393

ILLUSTRATIONS

1	Street map of late medieval York, showing the route taken by the processional production of the Corpus Christi Play. Drawing by Meg Twycross	page 28
2	Pageant stage for the royal entry of Mary Tudor (sister of Henry VIII) into Paris, 1514: biblical and allegorical figures (British Library MS Cotton Vespasian B. ii)	39
3	Pageant stage for the royal entry of Mary Tudor (sister of Henry VIII) into Paris, 1514: allegorical and mythological figures (British Library MS Cotton Vespasian B. ii)	40
4	Ship on wheels, with devils; German, early sixteenth century (British Library MS Additional 15707)	41
5	Annunciation pageant wagon, Brussels, 1615. Detail from Denis van Alsloot, The Triumph of Isabella , the Theatre Museum, London. Reproduced by kind permission of the Trustees of the Victoria and Albert Museum	42
6	Nativity pageant wagon, Brussels, 1615. Detail from Denis van Alsloot, The Triumph of Isabella , the Theatre Museum, London. Reproduced by kind permission of the Trustees of the Victoria and Albert Museum	42
7	Jean Fouquet, ‘The Martyrdom of St Apollonia’, from The Hours of Etienne Chevalier . Photograph: Giraudon. Reproduced by kind permission of the Musée Condé, Chantilly	47
8	Staging plan for The Castle of Perseverance (Washington, DC, The Folger Shakespeare Library, MS V.a.354). Reproduced by kind permission of The Folger Shakespeare Library	51
9	Floor plan of a great hall. Drawing by Meg Twycross	56
10	The great hall of Gray’s Inn, London. Reproduced by kind permission of the Honourable Society of Gray’s Inn	57
11	The Bal des Ardents (Ball of those who caught fire), from Froissart’s Chronicle (British Library MS Harley 4380)	58
		vii

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS

12	Register of the York plays, the Drapers' pageant of The Death of the Virgin (British Library MS Additional 35290)	107
13	The York Ordo Paginarum of 1415 (York, City Archives, A/Y Memorandum Book). Reproduced by kind permission of York City Council	112
14	The N-Town plays: The Marriage of Mary and Joseph , in the Mary Play (British Library MS Cotton Vespasian D. viii)	190
15	The N-Town plays: The Entry into Jerusalem , from Passion Play I (British Library MS Cotton Vespasian D. viii)	192
16	The N-Town plays: The Conspiracy and The Last Supper , from Passion Play I (British Library MS Cotton Vespasian D. viii)	196
17	East Harling, Norfolk, parish church of SS Peter and Paul, fifteenth-century stained glass, Christ among the Doctors. Photograph by courtesy of the Royal Commission on Historical Monuments	202
18	Map of East Anglia, showing places mentioned in the text	214
19	Dress rehearsal for Doomsday : York Mystery Cycle, 1951. Photograph from Norah Lambourne's archive, University of Lancaster.	289
20	The York Assumption of the Virgin , Low Petergate, York. Durham Medieval Theatre Co., 1988. Photograph by John McKinnell	292
21	The York Crucifixion at an original station in Stonegate, York. Bretton Hall College, Wakefield, 1992. Photograph by Rosemary Phizackerley	293
22	The York Death of Christ in Stonegate, York. York Lords of Misrule, 1992. Photograph by Eileen White	294
23	The York Harrowing of Hell at York. Durham Medieval Theatre Co., 1992. Photograph by John McKinnell	295
24	The York Resurrection : Stonegate, York. Jocolatores Lancastrienses, 1992. Photograph by Meg Twycross	296
25	The York Doomsday wagon: Poculi Ludique Societas playing side-on at Toronto, 1977. Photograph courtesy of PLS	297
26	Christ appeals to mankind in the York Doomsday : Durham Medieval Theatre Co. playing end-on at Odense, 1998. Photograph by John McKinnell	298
27	The York First Five Days of Creation : Birmingham University Drama Department at Toronto, 1998. Photograph by John McKinnell	300
28	The Chester Purification : Jocolatores Lancastrienses at Chester, 1983. Photograph by Meg Twycross	301
29	Moses (Richard Rastall) alarms Pharaoh (Peter Meredith) by transforming his staff into a serpent: the Towneley Pharaoh at Wakefield, 1977. Photograph by Meg Twycross	303
30	Judas receives his money in the N-Town Passion Play , Toronto, 1981. Photograph by Meg Twycross	305

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS

31	The York Crucifixion from The Mysteries , National Theatre, London, 1977–85. Photograph by Nobby Clark	307
32	Wisdom , staged by King Alfred’s College, Winchester, in Winchester Cathedral, 1981: the Dance of Lechery. Photograph by Peter Jacobs	309
33	The Castle of Perseverance : the castle and the round. Poculi Ludique Societas at Toronto, 1979. Photograph courtesy of PLS	312
34	The Digby Mary Magdalen : Grub the cabin boy (Tom McKinnell) climbs the ship’s mast to spy land. Durham Medieval Theatre Co. at Durham, 1982. Photograph by Alan Walmsley	312
35	Mankind : Titivillus (Carl Heap) in front of New Guise, Nowadays, and Nought. The Medieval Players’ Tour, 1985. Photograph by Tessa Musgrave	314
36	Mankind : New Guise, Nowadays, and Mischief make Mankind swear to perform all sorts of misdemeanours. The Medieval Players’ Tour, 1985. Photograph by Tessa Musgrave.	315
37	Fulgens and Lucre s: Lucre promises to send Cornelius her decision. Joculatores Lancastrienses, Christ’s College, Cambridge, 1984. Photograph by Joe Thompson	318
38	Fulgens and Lucre s: the maskers. Joculatores Lancastrienses, Christ’s College, Cambridge, 1984. Photograph by Joe Thompson	319

Illustrations 2–4, 11, 12, 14–16 are reproduced by permission of the British Library Board.

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-86400-8 - The Cambridge Companion to Medieval English Theatre, Second Edition
Edited by Richard Beadle and Alan J. Fletcher
Frontmatter
More information

CONTRIBUTORS

- RICHARD BEADLE, University of Cambridge
JOHN C. COLDEWEY, University of Washington, Seattle
ALAN J. FLETCHER, University College, Dublin
DARRYLL GRANTLEY, University of Kent, Canterbury
PETER HAPPÉ, University of Southampton
ALEXANDRA F. JOHNSTON Victoria College, University of Toronto
PAMELA M. KING, University of Bristol
JOHN MCKINNELL, University of Durham
PETER MEREDITH, University of Leeds
DAVID MILLS, University of Liverpool
MEG TWYXCROSS, University of Lancaster
GREG WALKER, University of Edinburgh

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-86400-8 - The Cambridge Companion to Medieval English Theatre, Second Edition

Edited by Richard Beadle and Alan J. Fletcher

Frontmatter

More information

PREFACE

‘Medieval English theatre’ is an expression which possesses more the virtues of custom and convenience than those of strict descriptive accuracy. Of its three components, the least satisfactory is undoubtedly the first, and it is with good justification that many prefer to speak of ‘early’ English theatre, since the major genres of dramatic composition that came into being during the later medieval period – the cycles of biblical drama (or ‘mystery plays’), the moralities and the saints’ plays – all sustained a vigorous life until well into the sixteenth century; indeed, in one or two remoter places, where the mandates issuing from the Protestant centres of control and censorship may have been less diligently heeded, that life continued until well into the seventeenth century. ‘Medieval’ drama, then, remained a potent cultural force through many decades of what many now tend to call the ‘early modern period’ (formerly ‘the Renaissance’). The second component of our heading, ‘English’, whether understood geographically or linguistically, also has its limitations, since we have plays from both Scotland and Ireland that follow this banner, as well as a substantial body of texts in the Cornish language which have a natural claim to be regarded as ‘English’ drama of the period. The most significant word of our heading, however, is the last one, ‘theatre’, for it is intended to convey the sense that, more than in any subsequent period, the plays composed in that time were intended to be seen and heard, not read. As ‘quick [living] books’, they were designed for an audience more accustomed to hearing their literature read aloud, rather than reading it silently to themselves as we do; and it is essential to grasp that both the conceptual substance and the imaginative qualities of such plays are inseparable from their theatricality. This is something we may seek to recover partly through traditional means, by a combinative study of the dramatic texts themselves, documentary ‘external’ records relating to dramas and their performance, music and iconography; but it may also be sought by re-creating performances, in a spirit of authenticity, as best we can across the gap of some four

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-86400-8 - The Cambridge Companion to Medieval English Theatre, Second Edition

Edited by Richard Beadle and Alan J. Fletcher

Frontmatter

More information

PREFACE

or five centuries. Much of what will be found in the chapters that follow is informed by this new spirit of practical enquiry into medieval stagecraft, and two, chapters 2 and 11, are devoted specifically to it.

This second edition of The Companion to Medieval English Theatre, must, like the first, still content itself with being something of an interim report on a field of knowledge and interpretation which has changed beyond all recognition over the last three decades or so, but yet continues to develop. The major shifts and expansions have been taking place in three areas: editorial and textual activity; the accumulation of 'external' documentary information about early plays and playing; and the completely new insights generated from modern attempts to perform the plays in the light of what is increasingly becoming known of early theatrical conditions. Advances in each of these areas are being made at different rates and at different levels, and it remains likely that some years will yet have to elapse before a convincing new synthesis emerges to replace the traditional but flawed 'evolutionary' account of the early drama, that outmoded but easily taught approach to the subject outlined briefly in chapters 1 and 12 below. In the meantime, one of the main lessons of the second edition of this Companion is that critics of medieval literature and historians of the drama, and likewise their students, will need to find the means to respond intellectually and imaginatively to circumstances of far greater complexity than prevailed less than a generation ago.

Editorial activity in relation to the familiar body of medieval English dramatic texts has recently been more intense than at any time since the manuscripts and early prints first received critical editorial attention in the nineteenth century, and there has been a substantial yield of often complex bibliographical and textual evidence, some of which must of necessity be taken into account by those who wish to study the plays from the point of view of their literary and cultural interpretation, as well as their theatrical values. Chapters 4 to 7 below, devoted in turn to the York and Chester cycles, and to the cycle-like compilations of plays in the Towneley and N-Town manuscripts, are as much intended to convey a solid idea of these new responsibilities as to impart a sense of the fresh interpretative possibilities that they open up. Part of a responsible critical approach to these texts relies upon the possession of some knowledge of their modes of transmission, each of which differs radically from the others. Newly-published ancillary sources of a kind often unfamiliar to many students, such as facsimiles of the manuscripts, are invoked here with some frequency, for they prove to have a role which is integral with, rather than prior to evaluative processes.

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-86400-8 - The Cambridge Companion to Medieval English Theatre, Second Edition

Edited by Richard Beadle and Alan J. Fletcher

Frontmatter

More information

PREFACE

Re-editing of the textual corpus has gone hand-in-hand with a vigorous and now well-established campaign of renewed research into the nature and extent of the ‘external’ documentary evidence for late medieval and early modern theatrical activities of all kinds. These ‘records’ of early English drama have given their name to a series of publications (generally known as REED), cited frequently in the following pages, and especially in the Introduction by one of the newcomers to this second edition, Alexandra F. Johnston. These publications provide authoritative scholarly accounts of crucial materials that, before the late 1970s, were sometimes only haphazardly available, if at all, in early antiquarian or amateur publications. Though here, too, demanding problems of context and interpretation have emerged, the positive yield has been a strong impression of marked local and regional differentiations in theatrical practice across the country, once again displacing convenient but reductive pedagogic generalisations of the kind found in older textbooks on the early drama. Illustrations of the complex interplay between textual and ‘external’ documentary information in the study of the drama in York and in Chester will be found in chapters 4 and 5. Chapter 8 is devoted to the most striking new instance of the development of a regional sense in medieval dramatic activity, focusing on East Anglia as a case-study in the assimilation of textual and documentary evidence to a broader social, cultural and economic matrix. One chapter along similar lines that appeared in the first edition, on the Cornish drama, we have, with regret, had to sacrifice in order to make space for new material; but we have done so in the knowledge that its author, Brian Murdoch, has since published a much fuller account of the same subject in the more illuminating and appropriate context of his book Cornish Literature (Cambridge: D. S. Brewer, 1993), to which readers are warmly referred.

The most innovatory aspect of current research on the early drama has continued to take the form of modern productions of some of the plays themselves, usually under academic auspices, aimed at recovering at least some of the authentic sense of the original theatrical occasion in terms of mise-en-scène, acting styles, costume, properties, special effects and so forth. The journal Medieval English Theatre (1979–) was founded partly as a forum for those most intimately concerned in this kind of work, and it is probably cited more frequently in this book than any other periodical. As well as textual and ‘external’ documentary sources, iconographic information has continued to contribute more significantly than hitherto, and most of those now studying the early drama do so with the sense that it was as much a visual as a literary art of the period. Nearly all medieval plays involved music, and some included dance, the theatrical impacts of which can only

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-86400-8 - The Cambridge Companion to Medieval English Theatre, Second Edition

Edited by Richard Beadle and Alan J. Fletcher

Frontmatter

More information

PREFACE

properly be assessed in the context of performance. Modern revivals aimed at authentic production values, so far as they can be reliably recovered from textual, 'external' documentary and iconographic sources, propose a variety of delights, insights, questions and problems which previous studies of the early drama have seldom sought to address in any systematic way, even where they have been aware of them. A number are taken up specifically in several of the chapters below, and the entire project is placed under critical review by another newcomer to this second edition, John McKinnell, in chapter 11. He brings to the task a wealth of practical experience as an actor in and producer of early drama.

Needless to say, the chapters of this second edition of the Companion have been revised to engage with the latest assessments of the plays that they investigate. Many topics familiar from the first edition have been revisited and, where necessary, renovated. Nevertheless, this second edition is far from being a mere updating: aware of current influential trends in critical thinking, its editors thought it appropriate to invite a new chapter on the cultural work performed by early drama, and this has been ably provided by the Companion's third newcomer, Greg Walker.

The accumulated bibliography of secondary material relating to early theatre now in print is very large, and reference to it in a book of this kind must necessarily be selective. As in the first edition, so here in the second, chapter 12 outlines how scholarship and criticism of the subject have developed, and where current contributions fit into this existing framework. The select bibliography towards the end of the book provides for references made within the texts of the chapters, but it has also been arranged in such a way as to be of use as an instrument of study and research in its own right. A guide to the arrangement of the bibliography will be found at its beginning.

We are grateful to both our existing and our new contributors for their patient cooperation in bringing the second edition into being, and especially to John McKinnell and Meg Twycross for assistance in the choice of new and additional illustrations. Special thanks are again due to Peter Happé for his continued bibliographical labours, and we are also indebted to Linda Bates for valuable help with checking and indexing the bibliography. Finally, the editors would like to thank each other, while also gratefully celebrating the world of emails and file attachments in which their task was accomplished with all possible efficiency. As was remarked in the preface to the first edition, scholars, critics and performers of early plays constitute a particularly congenial and productive group amongst those devoted to medieval studies, even where they differ in approach, or over interpretation. Readers of the second edition will find these differences reflected in many details of

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-86400-8 - The Cambridge Companion to Medieval English Theatre, Second Edition

Edited by Richard Beadle and Alan J. Fletcher

Frontmatter

More information

PREFACE

the revised and new chapters below, which are nonetheless united in their sense of the importance of continued cooperative activity in this complex and rapidly developing field of enquiry.

Richard Beadle
Alan J. Fletcher

ABBREVIATIONS

CD	Comparative Drama
EDAM	Early Drama, Art and Music
EETS	Early English Text Society
	es Extra Series
	os Original Series
	ss Special Series
ELH	English Literary History
ELN	English Language Notes
EMD	European Medieval Drama
ET	Early Theatre
JEGP	Journal of English and Germanic Philology
JMEMS	Journal of Medieval and Early Modern Studies
LSE	Leeds Studies in English
MÆ	Medium Ævum
METH	Medieval English Theatre
MLN	Modern Language Notes
MLQ	Modern Language Quarterly
MLR	Modern Language Review
MP	Modern Philology
NM	Neuphilologische Mitteilungen
N&Q	Notes and Queries
PMLA	Publications of the Modern Language Association of America
PQ	Philological Quarterly
REED	Records of Early English Drama
RES	Review of English Studies
RORD	Research Opportunities in Renaissance Drama
SATF	Société des Anciens Textes Français
SITM	Société Internationale pour l'étude du Théâtre Médiéval
SP	Studies in Philology
TN	Theatre Notebook

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-86400-8 - The Cambridge Companion to Medieval English Theatre, Second Edition

Edited by Richard Beadle and Alan J. Fletcher

Frontmatter

More information

SYSTEM OF REFERENCE AND EDITIONS OF PLAYS CITED IN THE TEXT

Documentary sources, editions and secondary works, cited by bracketed italicised numerals within the text and in the endnotes to the chapters – for example (314) – are keyed to the serial numbers in the select bibliography.

Quotations from and references to plays within the text are from the following editions, full details of which are given under the respective serial numbers in the bibliography:

The York Plays, edited by Richard Beadle (108)

The Chester Mystery Cycle, edited by R. M. Lumiansky and David Mills (110)

The Towneley Plays, edited by Martin Stevens and A. C. Cawley (112)

The N-Town Play, edited by Stephen Spector (115)

The Coventry Corpus Christi Plays, edited by Pamela M. King and Clifford Davidson (118)

The Macro Plays [The Castle of Perseverance, Wisdom, Mankind], edited by Mark Eccles (120)

The Late Medieval Religious Plays of Bodleian MSS Digby 133 [The Conversion of St Paul, Mary Magdalen, Killing of the Children], edited by Donald C. Baker and others (121)

Non-cycle Plays and Fragments [including The Pride of Life, the Croxton Play of the Sacrament, the Norwich Grocers' Creation and Fall, the Newcastle Shipwrights' Noah's Ark and the Northampton and Brome plays of Abraham and Isaac], edited by Norman Davis (122)

Everyman, edited by A. C. Cawley (124)

The Plays of Henry Medwall [Fulgens and Lucre, Nature], edited by Alan H. Nelson (125)

Youth and Hick Scorner in Two Tudor Interludes, edited by Ian Lancashire (126)

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-86400-8 - The Cambridge Companion to Medieval English Theatre, Second Edition

Edited by Richard Beadle and Alan J. Fletcher

Frontmatter

More information

LIST OF EDITIONS OF PLAYS CITED

John Skelton, Magnyfycence, edited by Paula Neuss (127)

The Cornish Ordinalia: The Ancient Cornish Drama, edited by Edwin Norris (135)

The Cornish Creacion of the World, edited by Paula Neuss (136)

The Cornish St Meriasek, edited by Whitley Stokes (138)

CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE

Most of the dates given in the following table cannot be expressed precisely. This is usually because, in the absence of specific records or firmly established facts, they are based on scholarly judgements relating to various kinds of evidence (palæographic, linguistic, internal, etc.). Current opinions about the dates of texts will be found in the editions cited.

c. 970	Visitatio Sepulchri (The Visit to the Sepulchre), in the Regularis Concordia of Æthelwold
c. 1146–74	Le Mystère (or Jeu) d’Adam
c. 1175	La Seinte Resureccion
c. 1272–82	MS of Dame Sirith
c. 1300	MS of Interludium de Clerico et Puella (The Interlude of the Clerk and the Girl) MS of ‘The Cambridge Prologue’ MS of ‘The Rickinghall (Bury St Edmunds) Fragment’
c. 1350?	Composition of The Pride of Life (extant text first half of the fifteenth century) Barking Abbey liturgical Visitatio Sepulchri and Harrowing of Hell
c. 1375?	Composition of Cornish Ordinalia (extant text mid-fifteenth century)
1377	First mention of York Corpus Christi pageants (extant text 1463–77)
1377	First mention of Beverley Corpus Christi pageants (no text extant)
1392	First mention of Coventry Corpus Christi play (extant texts early sixteenth century)

CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE

c. 1400–25	Composition of The Castle of Perseverance (extant text mid-fifteenth century) MS of Dux Moraud
c. 1400–25	MS of Cornish ‘Charter Fragment’ MS of ‘The Shrewsbury Fragments’ MS of ‘The Durham Prologue’ MS of The Pride of Life
1415	The York Ordo Paginarum
1421	Chester Corpus Christi play first mentioned (no text extant)
1424–30	John Lydgate’s mummings
1427	Newcastle Corpus Christi play first mentioned (extant text of Noah pageant only, probably sixteenth century)
Mid 15th century	MS of the Cornish Ordinalia MS of ‘The Winchester Dialogues’, including Occupation and Idleness , an early interlude
c. 1460–70	Composition of Wisdom ? (extant Macro text late-fifteenth century, Digby fragment early sixteenth century)
c. 1461	Composition of the Play of the Sacrament ? (extant text c. 1520) MS of the Northampton Abraham and Isaac
1463–77	Compilation of Register (MS) of York Corpus Christi Play
c. 1464	Composition of Mankind (extant text later fifteenth century)
1468	Date mentioned in N-Town MS (extant text of whole collection late fifteenth century)
mid–late 15th century	Composition of Wakefield pageants in Towneley cycle (extant text early to mid-sixteenth century) MS of the Brome Abraham and Isaac late 15th century	MS of the N-Town plays Macro MSS of Wisdom and Mankind Cornish Beunans Meriasek (Life of Meriasek; extant MS dated 1504) MS of ‘The Reynes Extracts’ MS of ‘The Ashmole Fragment’ Robin Hood plays
c. 1490–1500	Composition of Henry Medwall’s Nature (printed 1530–4?)

CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE

1496–7	Composition of Henry Medwall’s Fulgens and Lucrez (printed 1512–16?)
c. 1500?	Composition of Digby Mary Magdalen and St Paul
c. 1507–8	Composition of Mundus et Infans (The World and the Child) (printed 1522)
1512	Date given in MS of Digby Killing of the Children ; other Digby plays (Mary Magdalen , The Conversion of St Paul , Wisdom fragment) from about this date or somewhat later
1515–16?	Hick Scorner printed (composed c. 1514?)
1510–19?	Everyman printed
c. 1520	MS of the Play of the Sacrament
from c. 1521	Chester Whitsun plays (i.e. the Chester cycle, possibly based on the earlier Corpus Christi play; extant texts late sixteenth–early seventeenth century)
1530?	John Skelton’s Magnyfycence printed (composed c. 1519–20?) Norwich pageants and plays in Pentecost week, including extant text of the Grocers’ Adam and Eve
1532–3	Youth printed (composed c. 1513?)
c. 1535	Extant texts of two Coventry Corpus Christi plays
1562	Chelmsford records suggest possible revival of Digby plays
1575	Last performance of the Chester Whitsun plays
1576	Plays at Wakefield banned
1580	Last (unsuccessful) attempt to stage the York Corpus Christi Play