

Contents

Acknowledgments	page xi
Abbreviations and translations	xiv
Introduction	1
1 The failure of neo-humanism	17
Philologists, liberals, and the nation	20
The Austro-Prussian War in Leipzig	36
The demands of history	42
Toward a cautious materialism	53
Teleology and the laws of history	64
2 The formation of Imperial Germany, seen from Basel	79
Intellectual culture in Basel	80
The practice of cultural history	82
The need for philosophical education	102
The “German spirit” and the Franco-Prussian War	112
3 The crisis of historical culture	129
The crisis of historicism	130
What is orientation in history?	140
The political mobilization of myth	150
“The soul of the antiquarian”	156
The impossible critical historian	163
4 Political lessons from cultural anthropology	174
The view from outside	175
Lessons from anthropology	181
Metaphor, myth, and cultural reality	190
“Survivals” – religion and the nation state	199
Political realism and the “Free spirit”	216
5 Genealogy, naturalism, and the political	229
The path to genealogy	230

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-88056-5 - Friedrich Nietzsche and the Politics of History
Christian J. Emden
Table of Contents
More information

x	Contents
	A natural history of moral communities	237
	Sovereign individuals and the ethic of responsibility	248
	The task of genealogy	260
	“To translate humanity back into nature”	269
6	The idea of Europe and the limits of genealogy	286
	“The creation of the European individual”	287
	Beyond the modern nation state	299
	Political realities in Imperial Germany	308
	Modernity and the limits of genealogy	316
	Bibliography	324
	Index	366