THE CAMBRIDGE COMPANION TO
ENGLISH LITERATURE, 1830-1914

The nineteenth century witnessed unprecedented expansion in the reading public and an explosive growth in the number of books and newspapers produced to meet its demands. These specially commissioned essays examine not only the full range and variety of texts that entertained and informed the Victorians, but also the boundaries of Victorian literature: the links and overlap with Romanticism in the 1830s, and the roots of Modernism in the years leading up to the First World War. The Companion demonstrates how science, medicine and theology influenced creative writing and emphasizes the importance of the visual, in painting, in book illustration and in technological innovations from the kaleidoscope to the cinema. Chapters also chart the complex and fruitful interchanges with writers in America, Europe and the Empire, highlighting the geographical expansion of literature in English. This Companion brings together the most important aspects of this prolific and popular period of English literature.

JOANNE SHATTOCK is Professor of Victorian Literature at the University of Leicester. She is the General Editor of The Works of Elizabeth Gaskell (2005-6) and edited Women and Literature in Britain 1800-1900 (2001).

CONTRIBUTORS

BRIDGET BENNETT is Professor of American Literature and Culture at the University of Leeds. She has published a number of works related to the subject of her chapter in this volume. These include her recent monograph Transatlantic Spiritualism and Nineteenth-Century American Literature (2007) and her edited book (with Janet Beer) Special Relationships: Anglo-American Affinities and Antagonisms, 1854-1936 (2002) as well as several essays. She is currently working on a monograph titled Danger in the National Home.

ALISON BOOTH is Professor of English at the University of Virginia. She is the author of Greatness Engendered: George Eliot and Virginia Woolf (1992) and How To Make It as a Woman: Collective Biographical History from Victoria to the Present (2004). In the digital project Collective Biographies of Women, and in her book-length study of literary tourism 'Homes and Haunts', she continues to pursue a historical interpretation of collective biographical discourses in Britain and North America since 1830.

PATRICK BRANTLINGER is James Rudy Professor of English (Emeritus) at Indiana University, where he edited Victorian Studies (1980-90). Among his books are Rule of Darkness: British Literature and Imperialism 1830-1914 (1988), The Reading Lesson: The Threat of Mass Literacy in Nineteenth-Century British Fiction (1998) and Dark Vanishings: Discourse on the Extinction of Primitive Races 1800-1913 (2003). Victorian Literature and Postcolonial Studies is forthcoming in 2009. With William B. Thesing, he co-edited Blackwell's Companion to the Victorian Novel (2002).

ALISON CHAPMAN is Associate Professor at the University of Victoria, Canada, and has co-edited (with Jane Stabler) Unfolding the South: Nineteenth-Century British Women Artists and Writers in Italy (2003) as well as writing several essays on the Victorians and Italy. She is currently completing a monograph on Elizabeth Barrett Browning's circle in Florence.
