

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-89975-8 - The Indian Army and the End of the Raj

Daniel Marston

Frontmatter

More information

---

The Indian Army and the End of the Raj

The partition of British India in 1947 resulted in the establishment of the independent states of India and Pakistan and the end of the British Raj. The decision to divide British India along religious lines caused widespread upheaval and communal violence in the period leading up to and following the official day of independence, 15 August 1947. In this book, Daniel Marston provides a unique examination of the role of the Indian Army in post-Second World War India. He draws upon extensive research into primary source documents and interviews with veterans of the events of 1947 to provide fresh insight into the vital part that the Indian Army played in preserving law and order in the region. This rigorous book fills a significant gap in the historiography of the British in India and will be invaluable to those studying the British Empire and South Asia more generally.

DANIEL MARSTON is Professor of Military Studies in the Strategic and Defence Studies Centre at the Australian National University. He is also the Principal of the Military and Defence Studies Program at the Australian Command and Staff College in Canberra, Australia. He has been a Visiting Fellow with the Oxford Leverhulme Programme on the Changing Character of War. His first book Phoenix from the Ashes, an in-depth assessment of how the British/Indian Army turned defeat into victory in the Burma campaign of the Second World War, won the Templer Medal in 2003. He completed his doctorate in the history of war at Balliol College, Oxford University, and is a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society.

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-89975-8 - The Indian Army and the End of the Raj
Daniel Marston
Frontmatter
More information

---

Cambridge Studies in Indian History and Society 23

Editorial Board

C. A. BAYLY

Vere Harmsworth Professor of Imperial and Naval History, University of Cambridge, and Fellow of St Catharine's College

RAJNARAYAN CHANDAVARKAR

Fellow of Trinity College and Lecturer in History, University of Cambridge

GORDON JOHNSON

President of Wolfson College, and Director, Centre of South Asian Studies, University of Cambridge

Cambridge Studies in Indian History and Society will publish monographs on the history and anthropology of modern India. In addition to its primary scholarly focus, the series will include work of an interdisciplinary nature which will contribute to contemporary social and cultural debates about Indian history and society. In this way, the series will further the general development of historical and anthropological knowledge and attract a wider readership than that concerned with India alone.

A list of titles which have been published in the series can be found at the end of the book.

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-89975-8 - The Indian Army and the End of the Raj
Daniel Marston
Frontmatter
More information

---

The Indian Army and the End of the Raj

---

Daniel Marston

The Australian National University

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press
 978-0-521-89975-8 - The Indian Army and the End of the Raj
 Daniel Marston
 Frontmatter
More information

CAMBRIDGE
 UNIVERSITY PRESS

University Printing House, Cambridge CB2 8BS, United Kingdom

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.

It furthers the University's mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9780521899758

© Daniel Marston 2014

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2014

Printed in the United Kingdom by Clays, St Ives plc

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloguing in Publication data

Marston, Daniel.

The Indian Army and the end of the Raj/ Daniel Marston.

pages cm. – (Cambridge studies in Indian history and society)

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-0-521-89975-8 (Hardback)

1. India. Army—History—20th century. 2. India—History—1947– 3. India—History—British occupation, 1765–1947. 4. Decolonization—Social aspects—India—History. 5. Social conflict—India—History—20th century. 6. Internal security—India—History—20th century. 7. Civil–military relations—India—History—20th century. 8. India—History, Military. I. Title.

UA842.M325 2014

355.00954'09044–dc23

2013036444

ISBN 978-0-521-89975-8 Hardback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-89975-8 - The Indian Army and the End of the Raj
Daniel Marston
Frontmatter
More information

---

For Nancy and Bronwen

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-89975-8 - The Indian Army and the End of the Raj

Daniel Marston

Frontmatter

More information

---

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-89975-8 - The Indian Army and the End of the Raj
Daniel Marston
Frontmatter
More information

Contents

---

List of illustrations	page viii
List of maps	ix
Acknowledgements	x
Introduction	1
1 The bedrock of the Raj: the Indian Army before 1939	6
2 The performance of the Indian Army in the Second World War	45
3 Question of loyalty? The Indian National Army and the Royal Indian Navy mutiny	116
4 The Indian Army in French Indo-China and the Netherlands East Indies 1945–1946	151
5 1946, the year of difficulty: internal security and the rise of communal violence	200
6 Demobilisation, nationalisation, and division of the army in the midst of chaos	239
7 1947: the year of reckoning and the end of the Raj	281
Conclusion: The end of the British Indian Army	338
Bibliography	352
Index	375

Illustrations

---

2.1	Victorious soldiers in the North African campaign	page 50
2.2	Indian troops on the move in Italy	60
2.3	Indian troops in central Burma	65
2.4	Defeat into victory	72
2.5	Announcement of the Japanese surrender in Singapore	114
4.1	Indian troops arrive in Saigon in 1945	159
4.2	Indian troops take cover from Indonesian nationalists, 1945	176
4.3	Indian troops identify mass graves in Java	177
4.4	Indian troops in Sourabaya counter-attack	179
5.1	Calcutta riots, 1946	216
6.1	Lord Wavell and General Claude Auchinleck meet with Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery in New Delhi	240
C.1	End of the Raj	338

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-89975-8 - The Indian Army and the End of the Raj
Daniel Marston
Frontmatter
More information

Maps

---

3.1	India 1945–1947	page 116
4.1	20th Indian Division in and around Saigon	151
4.2	Operations in Java 1945–1946	175
5.1	Eastern Command 1946–1947	200
7.1	Punjab 1947 and the communal breakdown	281

Acknowledgements

---

There are many people to thank in support of this book. The first group includes three of my key mentors, Professor Robert O'Neill, Professor Raymond Callahan, and Professor Judith Brown. All three have been instrumental in the preparation and production of this book, going back to 2001, when the first foundations of the book were laid out. I would like to thank Professor Sir Hew Strachan for his support and mentorship in earlier iterations of the book and for accepting an article framing the book for publication in his War in History series. I would also like to thank Professors Ayesha Jalal and Ian Talbot for feedback in the early stages of the research and shaping of the book.

I would also like to thank Dr Carter Malkasian for his thoughts and edits; we have worked together on many projects going back to our time at Oxford as doctoral students, and as always, Carter took the time to provide advice and criticism. I wish to thank Professor Peter Dennis, who kindly took time to read the chapter dealing with the Indian Army's involvement in French Indo-China and the Netherlands East Indies. Cambridge University Press has been great to work with over the last few years. Marigold Acland originally agreed to commission the book and shepherded the project through the early stages. Lucy Rhymer took over the contract and has provided excellent support through the latter stages. I would also like to thank Claire Poole for all her contributions in the final production of the book. It has been a pleasure working with everyone at the Press. Thank you to Karen Anderson Howes for her excellent copy-editing.

I would like to thank all my colleagues at the Strategic and Defence Studies Centre (SDSC), The Australian National University for their support, particularly the Head of Centre, Dr Brendan Taylor. Brendan helped organize a seminar to hone various themes and, importantly, provided funding for the photos and maps. Kay Dancey and Jennifer Sheehan from the ANU Digital Hub created the maps for the book; and I thank them for all their support and hard work. I would also like to thank my former colleagues at the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst (RMAS)

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-89975-8 - The Indian Army and the End of the Raj

Daniel Marston

Frontmatter

More information

Acknowledgements

xi

and the US Army Command and General Staff College (CGSC) at Fort Leavenworth for their input and support, especially Dr Nick Murray and Dr Mark Hull.

My students at RMAS, CGSC, and SDSC are all owed a thank you as well. As I corrected and edited their work, I relearned quite a bit, and it made my manuscript a stronger product. I would especially like to thank my Art of War students at CGSC: Ken, Mac, Matt, Carrie, Karsten, Mike, Travis, Jesse, Nate, Mark, Rob, Rick, Ben, Dustin, Aaron, Tom, Mike, Stew, Eric, Marcus, Darrell, Wil, Chris, Tom, Kevin, Mark, Darrell, and Chuck, all of whom made me a better historian and a critical thinker. Finally, I would like to thank the Australian Command and Staff College Class of 2013. It has been an honour and pleasure to have taught all of these students; their thirst for knowledge and motivation to apply it have challenged me to focus my own work.

I would like to thank all the librarians and archivists at the various libraries throughout the United Kingdom, the United States, and Australia who have aided my search for obscure records of the final phase of the British Indian Army. In particular I would like to thank the National Archives in the UK, the Oriental and India Office Reading Room at the British Library, the Liddle Hart Centre at Kings College London, the National Army Museum, Imperial War Museum, and the John Rylands Library at the University of Manchester. Grateful acknowledgement is also made to these archives, cited throughout the book, for their kind permission to quote extensively from documents held in their collections.

The final group to whom I owe a debt of gratitude are the Indian Army veterans whom I had the honour of interviewing, and who have generously shared their stories and memories with me over the last fifteen years. They were fundamental to my first work on the Indian Army, Phoenix from the Ashes, and their contributions and insights helped lay the foundation for this, the final chapter of the story of the British Indian Army.

Last but not least: Nancy, thank you for all your support and editing.

While many people have supported this work, any errors are my responsibility.