

GENERAL INDEX

- Abaris, 277
- Aelius Aristides, 268
- Aeschylus, 51, 138, 195, 256, 339
- Aithalides, 277
- Alcmaeon, 38, 115, 130, 170, 244
- alêthea*, and cognates
- in epic poetry, 67–68
  - in Parmenides, 156, 296
- Ameinias, 274–275
- Anaxagoras, 38, 339
- and perception, 169, 170, 178, 191
  - and religion, 26, 42–44
  - Mind in, 22, 37–38, 277, 290
- Anaximander. See Milesian, the philosophers
- Anaximenes. See Milesian, the philosophers
- Antiphon, 111
- Aphrodite, 33, 71, 89, 94, 239, 261, 328
- Apollo, 26, 28, 110, 115, 263, 276, 277, See also Heraclitus: on Apollo
- Delphic Apollo. See divination: the Delphic oracle
- approximation to the divine (in Homeric and Hesiodic poetry), 251, 261–264, 270–271, 317–318, 345
- Apuleius, 269
- Aristeas, 277
- Aristophanes, 42, 44, 45, 46, 269
- Aristotle
- on becoming like god, 251, 281, 283
  - on early Greek philosophy, 37–38
  - on Parmenides and others on perception and cognition, 183–184, 190–193, 240, 330–331
  - physiologoi* and theologoi, 38–39
  - on Hesiod, 55–56
  - on initiation, 284
  - on Parmenides, 183–184, 186, 190–193, 220, 249–250
  - on vital heat, 245
- Athena, 28, 80, 89, 228–229, 259, 262–263, 354
- becoming like god (in philosophy), 250–251, See also Parmenides: and becoming like god
- Betegh, G., 17, 236
- blindness and deafness, 194–195
- Bryan, J., 147, 202
- Burkert, W., 8–9, 153, 243, 270, 352–353
- Burnet, J., 10, 11, 16
- Calchas, 76–77, 109, 110, 113
- Cicero
- his character Cotta on traditional Roman religion, 50
  - on divination, 104–105, 109, 112, 113, 115, 131
- Cole, T., 67
- Colotes. See Parmenides: Colotes on
- Cornford, F.M., 16
- Coxon, A.H., 189
- Croesus, 113–114
- Curd, P.K., 18, 359
- Delian maidens, 94
- Delphic oracle. See divination: Delphic oracle
- Demeter, 276, See also Homeric Hymn to Demeter
- Democritus, 7, 170, 178, 233, 240, 241, 277
- Denyer, N., 108
- Derveni papyrus, 17, 140, 236, 284
- Dillery, J., 153
- Diogenes of Apollonia, 21, 22, 38, 170, 244
- Diomedes, 262–263

General Index

- Dionysus, 238, 246, 261, 268, See also Homeric Hymn to Dionysus
 Diopetithes, decree of, 42–43
 divination, 14, 15, 26, 31, 45, 108–116, 311, 345
 and approximation to the divine, 109–110, 114–115
 and knowledge-claims, 109–110, 114, 128
 and rationality. See rationality: and divine disclosure: in divination and zêtêsis, 127–128
 as conjectural, 110–114, 327, 340
 itinerant diviners, 153
 mantic families, 112, 114–115
 practised by amateurs, 110–111, 113
 technical vs inspired, 112
 the Delphic oracle, 26, 31, 48, 87–88, 111, 113–114, 127, 154,
 265–266, 340
 Xenophanes on. See under Xenophanes divine disclosure, 6–7, See also Hesiod: the Muses' address, and entries
 under Empedocles, Parmenides, Xenophanes
 and rationality. See rationality: and
 divine disclosure
 divine revelation. See divine disclosure Dodds, E.R., 14, 16, 104, 263–264
 double motivation, 80, 262–263
Doxa. See Parmenides: Doxa
Doxastic thing, 156
 early Greek philosophy and religion. See religion, Greek: and philosophy
 as a historiographical category, 54, 158, 344–345
 as mechanistic and non-teleological. See Plato: on early Greek
 philosophy
 early Greek epistemology
 relation to theology, 1, 53, 309, 310–311, 337–339, 346
 requiring an interdisciplinary approach, 7–9, 346
 scholarly schisms about, 7, 11–12, 17–18, 346
 Eleusinian mysteries. See mystery initiations Empedocles
 and Hesiod, 59, 319, 335, 337–338
 and Parmenides, 319, 335, 337–338
 and Xenophanes, 319, 337–338
 daimonology and metempsychosis in,
 238, 320–327, 330–333,
 335–337, 338
 the daimôn as material, 337
 his attitude to divine disclosure, 334–335, 337–338, 342
 his Muse, 319, 333–335, 337, 342
 ideas of consciousness in, 332–333
 Love and Strife
 exerting moral as well as physical influence, 320, 332–333, 336
 Love as epistemic object, 328–330, 331
 the question of corporeality, 290
 on experience and wisdom, 151, 320, 322–333
 on perception and understanding, 169, 170–171, 191, 241, 325,
 328–332, 333
 rejecting animal sacrifice, 322, 337, 344
 self-identity in, 335–337 theology and epistemology in, 6, 318–339
 views on religion and philosophy in his thought, 17, 320
 Epicharmus, 194–195, 228, 230, 251
 Epicurus and Epicureanism, 45–46, 56, 104, 105, 251
epikleseis, 33
 Epimenides, 75, 148, 151, 277
 his longevity, 151, 322
epistemically significant interactions. See
 divine disclosure
 epistemology, early Greek. See early Greek philosophy: early Greek epistemology
 eschatology. See mystery initiations and
 entries under Empedocles,
 Euripides, Homer,
 Parmenides, Pindar, Pythagoras and the Pythagoreans
 aethereal, 228–230, 242, 244, 245, 356
etyma, and cognates, 68–69

General Index

- Euripides, 42, 44, 45, 46, 113, 256
   eschatological ideas in, 228–229, 230, 236–237, 241
- faith. See religious belief
- Gemelli Marciano, L., 18
- Gernet, L., 162
- gifts, divine, 86
- godlikeness. See approximation to the divine, becoming like god
- Gold Tablets, 237–238, 243, 244–245, 270, 271–274, 345
- Gould, J., 41
- Gregory of Nyssa, 50
- Harrison, T., 41
- Hecataeus, 29–30, 33, 55, 148, 323, 343
- Hecate. See Hesiod: on Hecate
- Helios and Heliades, 256–257, 258–259, 264, 269, 315, 347, 351, 352, 356–358
- Heracles, 30, 140, 259, 263, 271, 274, 276
- Heraclitus, 6, 21, 30, 55, 169, 265, 322, 339, 340, 359
   and traditional religion, 48
   on Apollo, 114
   on names, 204
   on the soul, 38, 161, 233, 236
- Hermes, 28, 66, 71, 89, 257, 351. See also Homer Hymn to Hermes
- Hermotimus, 277
- hero cult, 275
- Herodotus, 30–31, 47, 117–118, 125, 145, 339, 343
- Hesiod
   ambivalence in, 3, 34–35, 59, 85–86, 99–100, 101–102, 314, 318
   and Parmenides, 59, 254–255, 310–311, 312–314, 317–318, 352
   and philosophy, 3, 52–60, 310–314, 317–318
   and theodicy, 34–35, 84–86, 100–101
   and Xenophanes, 59, 310, 311–312, 314, 317–318
   approximation to the divine and godlikeness. See approximation to the divine Aristotle on. See Aristotle: on Hesiod echoes of divinatory language in, 76–77
   excursus on seafaring, 3, 97–101, 131, 310 expressing an epistemological framework, 53, 101–103, 309–310, 339–340 his narrative of human Races, 57, 58, 317–318
   his poetic persona, 64, 312
   his staff, 75–76
   on female and male, 84, 86–90, 91, 93, 313
   on gods and natural, psychological and social phenomena, 56, 57–58
   on Hecate, 83, 84, 85, 93
   on Prometheus and Pandora, 57, 58, 66, 88–90
   on Zeus, 34–35, 57–58, 61, 74, 84–90, 91, 95–98, 99–101
   the Muses' address, 2–3, 61–103, 309–310, 311–314, 317, 339–340 interpretations of, 62–63
   its constitutive terms, 65–72
   motivation for, 92–93
   shepherds . . . mere bellies, 74–75, 313
   whenever we wish, 83–84, 85–86, 93, 100 the prescriptive force of his narratives, 57, 72, 92, 339–340
   the proem to the Works and Days, 95–97
- Hippocratic corpus, 17, 236, 245
   On the Sacred Disease, 27–29, 343
- historiê*. See wandering: as an Ionian ideal
- Homer
   on the soul after death, 161
   the cave of the Nymphs, 247–248, 257 theological attitudes, 23, 30, 57–58 approximation to the divine and godlikeness. See approximation to the divine
     on divination, 108–115, 128–129, 345
     on Muses and poetic inspiration, 63, 80–82, 93–94, 194
   Homer Hymn to Demeter, 79, 86, 268, 270–271
   Homer Hymn to Dionysus, 34, 79
   Homer Hymn to Hermes, 77, 82, 83, 94, 102

General Index

- homoia*, 69–71
homoiōsis theōi. See becoming like god, Parmenides: and becoming like god
- irrationality. See rationality: and irrationality
     and Greek religion. See religion, Greek:
     and irrationality
- Isocrates, 267, 270
- Jaeger, W., 16
- katabasis*, 254, 257, 276–277, 347, 350–353, 357–358
- Kingsley, P., 12, 18, 274
- Laks, A., 13
- Leonymus, 277
- Leshner, J.H., 12, 17–18, 104, 106, 119, 131–132, 138, 149
- Lloyd, G.E.R., 16–17, 48, 59, 152
- Long, A.A., 158, 223
- luxurious multiplicity*. See Versnel, H.S.
- Mansfeld, J., 223–224
- mantikē*. See divination
- Martin Luther, 49
- Marx, K., 51
- Melissus, 208, 220, 287
- metempsychosis, 252, 272–273. See also
     entries under Empedocles, Parmenides, Pindar, Plato, Pythagoras and the
     Pythagoreans
- mētis*, 87–90, 91, 94, 238, 330–332
- Milesian, the philosophers, 16, 19–26, 343
- Anaximander, 20–21, 22, 25, 148, 201, 232
- Anaximenes, 21, 23–26, 47, 201, 244, 290–291
- and traditional religion, 19–20, 22, 25–26, 39
- Thales, 20, 25–26, 38, 148
     all things are full of gods, 20, 23
- Mogyoródi, E., 139
- Mopsus, 114, 154
- Mourelatos, A.P.D., 190, 197, 198, 210, 254, 264, 307, 359
- Muses. See under Empedocles, Hesiod,
     Homer
- mystery initiations, 255, 267–273, 279, 351
     and altered states of consciousness, 284
- myth, 8, 14, 16, 17, 19–20, 25–26, 44, 56, 147, 320. See also theology:
     Varro's tripartite theology
- myth-critics, 29–33, 343
- natural theology, 36–37, 39, 41, 345–346
- Nehamas, A., 200
- Nestle, W., 16
- Nestor, 68, 94, 152, 322
- Nietzsche, F., 62, 166–167
- Numenius, 247–248
- Odysseus, 15, 65, 66, 71, 81–82, 129, 262, 263
     and Parmenides. See Parmenides: and the Odyssey
     as a poet-like figure, 94
- On the Sacred Disease*. See Hippocratic corpus: On the Sacred Disease
- Orphica*, 140, 257, 276. See also Derveni
     papyrus, Gold Tablets
- Orphic anthropogony, 246
- Owen, G.E.L., 163
- Palaephatus, 31–33, 343
- Palmer, J.A., 294–295
- Pandora. See Hesiod: on Prometheus and Pandora
- Parker, R., 41, 46, 114
- Parmenides
     alētheiē in. See under alēthea
     and becoming like god, 5, 252–284, 313, 341
     and Hesiod, 59, 254–255, 310–311, 312–314, 317–318, 352
     and Ionian cosmology, 292
     and mystery initiations. See mystery
     initiations
     and oracles, 265–267
     and sense-perception, 169–184, 190–195, 196, 211, 216–217
     and the Gold Tablets. See Gold Tablets and the Odyssey, 264–265
     and the Pythagoreans. See Pythagoras
     and the Pythagoreans

General Index

- and vital heat, 231–232
 and Xenophanes, 308, 314–318
   verbal echoes in Parmenides, 314–315
 as transformative, 157–158, 283–284, 341
 Colotes on, 157, 158, 164, 301–302
Doxa
   as deceptive, 168, 199–203, 206–207, 209, 214–215, 286
   expressing Parmenides' own views, 167, 199–201, 215–216, 220
   framed pejoratively, 167, 168
   its governing goddess, 233–239, 248, 315, 344
   its scope and nature, 164–165
   the reasons for it, 4, 160–161, 163–168, 196–197,
     215–221, 278
     Doxa as dialectical, 163–165
     Doxa as pragmatic, 165–166
 eschatological topography in, 242, 254–255, 347–359
 his attitude to divine disclosure, 5, 223–224, 266–267, 279–284, 340–342
 his embryology, 237–239
 his goddess
   anonymous, 267–268, 355–356
   as aether, 248
   main interpretations of, 11
 his Homeric language, 264
 his ontology, 4, 157, 211–214, 215, 285–303
   consubstantial interpretations,
     290–293
   Doxastic things as non-existent,
     illusions, 287–289
   Doxastic things as things-that-are,
     293–294
   Doxastic things available for discussion, belief, (in)correct accounts, 286, 303
   technical vs non-technical uses of 'to be', 298–299, 300
   the modal interpretation, 294–295
   the problem of colocation, 290
   the two-worlds interpretation, 289–290
   what-is
     as intelligent and divine, 290,
       300–301, 307–308,
       315–316, 344
     as what really is, 295–301
       in later ancient readers, 301–303 cannot be identified or aligned with Light (or Night), 186–187, 225–226, 280
     not a cosmogonic or cosmological
       principle, 292, 300–301
     the unshaken heart of well-rounded reality, 300–301, 308
 his theory of human cognition, 4, 169–184, 195–196, 216–217, 239–240, 280
   its doxographic context, 169–175, 190–193, 195, 240–242
   responses to its paradoxical
     implications, 222–227 inscriptions about him discovered in Elea, 277
 intelligence and intelligibility in Alêtheia, 304–308
krisis (of Alêtheia vs of Doxa), 158–159, 184–190, 195–196, 226–227,
   278–279, 280–282, 340–341
 notion of rationality in, 340–342
 on aether, 230–231, 258, 349–350, 352–353, 356, 358
 on female and male, 248–249, 313
 on naming, 188–190, 203–208, 300
 on the soul, 5, 161, 227–228, 232–237, 242–243, 247–248,
   249–250
   and death, 234–237
   and metempsychosis, 235–236, 237–238, 242–243, 245, 256
   its divinity, 242–244, 247–248, 249–250. See also Parmenides:
     and becoming like god
   soul and mind in Parmenides, 239–242, 282
 the proem, 250–278, 279, 280, 347–348, 350–359
   echoing Doxa's imagery, 159–160, 248
   the knowing man, 255, 258–259, 277–278, 355

General Index

- Parmenides (cont.)
   the kouros' journey
     as a journey of the soul, 238, 255–260, 274, 276–277, 355
     its status, 13, 162, 280, 284, 347–348
     its trajectory, 254, 257, 347–359
     the kouros as dependent, 259–260, 280
   the two parts of his poem, 155–156 distinguished by ancient commentators, 220
     interpretative questions about the relation between them, 160–161
- Pascal, 49
- Persephone, 243, 246, 269, 272
- Phaethon, 256, 258, 356, 357
- Pherecydes, 59, 244, 246
- Philo, 150
- Philoponus, 20, 201
- Phormio, 277
- Pindar, 246, 339
   on death and initiation, 245, 269, 270
   on metempsychosis, 243
- Plantinga, A., 49–50
- Plato
   his myth of Er, 247–248
   his ontological preoccupations and Parmenides', 285, 302
   on becoming like god, 250–251, 252, 281, 283
   on divination, 112, 113, 130, 131, 195
   on early Greek philosophy, 21, 37–39
   on metempsychosis, 243, 245
   on mystery initiations, 269, 270
   on poetic inspiration, 81
   on Socrates' trial. See Socrates: his trial
- Plutarch
   on divination, 26, 127
   on mystery initiations, 268–269
   on Parmenides, 157, 164, 239, 301–302, 303
   poetic inspiration, 14, 80–82, 265, 266–267, 339
   prayer, 22, 25, 26, 28–29, 41, 45, 46, 96, 141, 343
   presocratic philosophy. See early Greek
     philosophy
- Prodicus, 44
- Prometheus. See Hesiod: on Prometheus
   and Pandora
- Protagoras, 42, 45, 47
pseudea, and cognates, 65–67
- Pythagoras and the Pythagoreans, 55, 148, 274–277
   a social and political force in South Italy, 274
   and metempsychosis, 151, 161, 238, 244, 275, 323
   Pythagoras as (semi-)divine, 275–276
   Pythagorean quietude, 274–275
   the katabasis of Pythagoras, 276–277
- rationality
   and divine disclosure, 5–6, 10–12, 15, 51, 282–284, 334–335, 338, 339–343
   in divination, 106, 110–114, 145–146, 340
   and irrationality, 10–19
   and religious belief. See religious belief
   as a type of thinking, 2, 15, 343
   as secularising, 2, 14, 36, 342–343
   requiring disambiguation, 19, 35, 342–343
- religion, Greek
   and irrationality, 33–35
   and philosophy, 2, 14, 36–48, 343–346
     evidence of social backlash, 42–45, 46, 346
   philosophical criticisms and appropriations, 2, 5, 41–42, 45–46, 47–48, 274, 343–345
   philosophy as part of religion, 2, 48, 346
   views of the relations between them, 16–18, 45
   beliefs in, 40–41, 48, 50, 51
   cognitive approaches to, 41
   tolerance and flexibility of, 40, 45–47, 346
   unknowability of the divine, 34, 47, 346
   religious belief, 48–51, 342–343
- Rohde, E., 239
- Rowe, C.J., 56–58

General Index

- sacrifice, 25, 26, 28, 41, 44, 45, 74, 88, 150–151, See also Empedocles: rejecting animal
sacrifice
- Schofield, M., 278, 279
- Sedley, D.N., 168
- Simplicius
his evidence for Parmenides' conception of soul. See Parmenides: on the soul
his evidence for Parmenides' eschatological topography. See Parmenides: eschatological topography in
on Parmenides' ontology, 301, 303
on the two parts of Parmenides'
poem, 220
- Sirens, 84, 93–94
- Socrates
his divine sign, 127, 339
his trial, 43–44, 45, 46
- Sophocles, 110, 113, 114, 195, 270, 272, 276–277
- soul. See entries on soul or metempsychosis
under Empedocles, Heraclitus, Homer, Parmenides, Pindar, Plato, Pythagoras and the Pythagoreans
as aethereal. See eschatology: aethereal
as divine, 243–246, See also Parmenides:
on the soul
- Stoicism, 20, 46, 105, 245, 251, 269
- Tabula of Cebes, 275
- Teiresias, 109, 110, 114–115, 150, 154, 194, 264
- Tertullian, 49, 51
- Thales, See Milesian, the philosophers
- theodicy. See under Hesiod,
Xenophanes
- theology, 8, 345, See also natural theology
Varro's tripartite theology, 36
theology of approximation, 251
- Theophrastus
his account of Parmenides in de Sensibus. See Parmenides: his theory of human cognition
on the two parts of Parmenides'
poem, 220
- Thriai, 67, 77, 83, 84
- transmigration. See metempsychosis
- Trophonius, 284
- Varro, 36
- Versnel, H.S., 33–35, 41
- Vlastos, G., 184, 190, 224–227, 233
- wandering
and divination, 153
as an Ionian ideal, 148–149, 322–323
in Empedocles, 321, 326
in Parmenides, 197–198, 216, 264–265
in the Odyssey, 148, 264–265, 322
- Wittgenstein, L., 49
- Xenophanes
and Colophon, 142, 149, 154
and Eastern influences, 154
and Hesiod, 59, 310, 311–312, 314, 317–318
and monotheism, 125
and Parmenides, 308, 314–318
and the idea of progress, 148–150
and theodicy, 141–142
criticisms of traditional religious attitudes, 41–42, 142–143, 149, 150–151, 343
on divination, 41, 104–107, 119–121,
123, 130–132, 139,
144–154, 343
divinatory language in, 128–129, 152–153
expressing a unified world-view, 148–150
his attitude to divine disclosure, 3–4, 104–154, 310, 311–312,
316, 340
intentionality in his notion of disclosure, 106–107, 133–134, 136–142, 144–145, 310
its role in human inquiry, 133–143, 144–145
rejecting one notion of disclosure and promoting another, 106, 116–128, 143–144
insisting on a strict boundary between mortal and divine, 150–151,
252, 279, 316, 318

General Index

Xenophanes (cont.)	and personal experience, 129–130
on belief and practice in religion,	theological methodology in, 142–143
343–344	Xenophon, 45, 117–118, 141
on his own wisdom, 107, 146–154	on divination, 108, 110–111
on his longevity, 151–152,
322–323	Zalmoxis, 276
on intelligent divine governance,	Zeus, 17, 28, 32, 33, 44, 66, 110, 119, 140,
137–139	229, 246, 257, 261, 269
on knowledge, 106, 115, 128–133, 146,	Hesiod on. See Hesiod: on Zeus
150, 316	his mind, 98, 100, 137–138, 183