

Contents

|                                                                                                          |                 |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------|
| List of Contributors                                                                              | page vii |
| Acknowledgments                                                                                   | ix              |
| List of Abbreviations                                                                             | x               |
| Introduction: Carnap’s Transformation of the CanonAlan Richardson and Adam Tamas Tuboly   | I           |
| PART I PHILOSOPHY IN NEW DRESS                                                                       |                 |
| 1 Carnap’s Noncognitivism: Paths and InfluencesChristian Damböck                              | 13              |
| 2 Carnap Is Not against MetaphysicsVera Flocke                                                | 32              |
| 3 Interpreting Carnap’s Construction of the WorldChristopher Pincock                          | 50              |
| 4 Philosophy in a Collective Spirit as “Politics in ItsBroadest Sense”Audrey Yap          | 70              |
| PART II NATURALISM AND METHOD                                                                        |                 |
| 5 Shades of Naturalism: Carnap and QuineAndré W. Carus                                        | 89              |
| 6 On Quine’s Epistemological Objection to Carnap’s AnalyticityJoseph Bentley and Thomas Uebel | 106             |
| 7 Carnapian Explication: Origins and Shifting GoalsErich H. Reck                              | 127             |

|                                         |                                                                                                                 |     |
|-----------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| vi                                      | Contents                                                                                                 |     |
| PART III THE LOGICAL AND THE LINGUISTIC |                                                                                                                 |     |
| 8                                       | Carnap’s Approach to Semantics and Syntax: Relations and TensionPierre Wagner                        | 153 |
| 9                                       | Carnap on the Formality of Logic and MathematicsGeorg Schiemer                                       | 171 |
| 10                                      | Carnap on Probability and InductionSandy Zabell                                                      | 192 |
| 11                                      | Metaphysics, Tolerance, and Language Planning: Carnap on International Auxiliary LanguagesBaşak Aray | 214 |
| PART IV SCIENCE AND THEORIES            |                                                                                                                 |     |
| 12                                      | Carnap on Theories and the Methods of ScienceLydia Patton                                            | 237 |
| 13                                      | Carnap on Unity of ScienceBianca Crewe and Alan Richardson                                           | 252 |
| 14                                      | Carnap on Determinism and Free WillRichard Creath                                                    | 270 |
|                                         | Bibliography                                                                                             | 286 |
|                                         | Index                                                                                                    | 308 |