

Index

- Acemoglu, Daron, 193
 Acharya, Amitav, 29, 115
 Amsden, Alice, 189, 194
 Anderson, James A., 72, 80
 Annam (Ch. Annan 安南)
 independence from China as the state of Đại Cồ Việt, 70
 Sino-Vietnamese border established by rulers of the Đại Việt period, 72, 150
 Annam (Ch. Annan, 安南)
 Lê Tắc's Brief History of Annan, 160
 as a Tang protectorate, 159
 Ashikaga (or Muromachi) Shogunate (1338–1573), 44
 centralized control achieved by, 126–127
 demise of the ritsuryō system during,
 119
 Baigent, Elizabeth, 140
 Baldanza, Kathlene
 on A Brief History of Annan by Lê Tắc, 160
 on “brush talks” engaged in by Vietnamese scholar-officials, 163 on A Record of the Dreams of an Old Southerner by Hồ Nguyên Trừng, 161 banks and banking and the absence of independent banks and finance in East Asian states, 14, 130
 independent central banks in Europe, 13–15, 130
 Barfield, Thomas J., 175
 Bates, Robert H., 192
 Batten, Bruce, 65–66, 98, 102, 109, 113, 117, 129, 157, 165
 bellicist thesis of state formation. See also European state formation—bellicist thesis of Anglo-French warfare, 13–14
 the Central Asian steppe as a counter example, 4, 58–59, 172–173, 176, 181, 185
 as a complex set of factors specific to Europe, not a universal theory,
 4–5, 14–16, 186
 and contractualist arguments, 13–16, 18, 30
 and the Japanese shogunal system, 94, 127
 the Korean War of Unification not associated with state formation, 63–64
 lack of support in the empirical record of Phase I, 36–41
 Mongol subjugation of Koryŏ as a counter example, 121, 183
 the relative absence of bellicist pressures in Korea, 87–90 and the role of external threats in the creation of, 192
 Tilly's (Charles) dictum that “war made the state, 3, 12, 175 Vietnamese state formation as a counter example, 72, 135
 war as neither cause nor effect of state formation in East Asia, 60, 63–64, 94
 Benn, Charles, 55
 Berry, Mary Elizabeth, 44, 65–66, 96, 103
 Boli-Bennett, John, 28 border negotiations
 clearly territorial polities defined in East Asia prior to those in Europe,
 2, 13

- border negotiations (cont.)
 Qing–Chosŏn negotiations around Mount Paektu, 80–87
 Sino-Vietnamese border established by rulers of the Đại Việt period, 72, 150 state-building capacity to expand not exercised by powerful East Asian states, 64–66
 Yongzheng Emperor's concession of territory to the King of Annam, 151
- Branch, Jordan, 13
- Brazil
 limitations of its state capacity, 140
- Breuker, Remco
 on clothing symbolism of the Koryŏ court, 112
- Buddhism
 consolidation of political authority facilitated by, 16, 103, 117, 137, 139
 as one of the three teachings (sanjiao), 47
 Sinicization in historical East Asia facilitated by, 3, 50, 100–101, 117, 139, 155–158, 171
 as the state-sponsored religion of Silla, 103, 107, 159
 syncretic nature of, 46, 52–53, 160 and Vietnam, 134, 136
- bureaucracy. see centralized bureaucratic structures; Six Ministries
- Buswell, E. Robert, Jr., 52
- Buyeo (k. Puyŏ, 2nd century BC–494), 50, 96
- Buzan, Barry, 75
- Cai, Yong, 19, 38
- censuses and cadastral surveys. See population censuses and cadastral surveys
- Centeno, Miguel, 18, 140
- Central Asian steppe societies as a counter example to the bellicist thesis of state formation, 4, 59, 175–176, 181, 185
 selective adoption of elements of the Chinese state by, 178–183
- centralized bureaucratic structures. See also ritsuryo system; Six Ministries; taxation the Curia (Catholic Church) as an example of, 1–2, 113 development in East Asia compared with that in Europe, 113 Han dynasty bureaucratic innovations, 38–39, 41
 the Holy Roman Empire's lack of, 22 in Japan under the Ashikaga Bakufu, 126–127 in Japan under the Tokugawa Bakufu, 127
 Japanese imperial bureaucracy influenced by Chinese models, 113
 Japanese Taika Reforms, 97, 104, 108 as a key institutional feature of state-building, 2
 Korean adoption of Chinese-style bureaucratic government during the Silla, 103, 108, 125
 Korean adoption of Han-bureaucratic structures in the Koguryŏ, 96 of the Koryŏ state, 124, 131 present-day professional and technocratic bureaucratic elite of today, 196
 Qin bureaucratic innovations as the result of hegemony, not its cause, 19–20, 36–38
 state-sponsored granaries established in the Qing dynasty, 57, 130
 Vietnamese bureaucracy organized into six ministries, 145
- Ch'oe Ch'i-wŏn (857–?) (Korean scholar-official), 159
- Chega, Pak, 122–123
- Chinese history. See also Han dynasty (206 BCE–220 CE); Ming dynasty (1368–1644); Qing dynasty (221–206 BCE); Qing dynasty (1644–1912); Song dynasty (960–1279); Sui-Tang era (618–907); Yuan dynasty (1271–1368)
 creativity and contingency of, 33

- criticism of arguments of its continuity, 21–22, 76–77
- Chông Yag-yong (18th century) (Korean scholar-official), 84
- Chosŏn dynasty (1392–1910)
 - border negotiations with the Qing, 80–87
 - court dress of Ming dynasty officials emulated by, 124
 - establishment of Six Ministries (K. Yukcho), 124
 - Korean Buddhism during, 50, 52
 - local rebellions during, 48
 - military service and standing armies, 92, 132
 - neo-Confucian practices intensified during, 119, 122–124
 - taxation implemented by, 132
 - tributary relations with the Ming, 65, 81, 121–122
 - Yi Sŏng-gye's founding of, 129
- civil service
 - the establishment of the examination system in the Sui–Tang era, 55–56
 - imperial academy for the study of Confucian classics established during the Han, 40
 - influence of China's imperial examinations on Japan, 113
 - influence of China's imperial examinations on systems in Western states, 196
 - institutionalization of the civil service examination in Vietnam, 140–143
 - selection process based on merit (not heredity) established in East Asia prior to, 2
 - Sinic references in the Song of Chunhyang (춘향가), 162
- colonialism
 - and income distribution in developmental states, 193
 - Japanese colonialism of Korea, 193
 - Western impact on state formation in East Asia, 187
- Confucianism
 - administrative legal codes based on Confucianism implemented by the Lý dynasty, 139
 - Chinese-style government run by scholar-officials trained in, 41
 - Confucian Academy at Nara established, 109
 - Confucian-Legalist state formation in China, 20–21, 34, 37
 - founding of Taehak by the Koguryŏ, 97
 - as the imperial philosophy of the Han, 39
 - National Academy (or Royal Confucian Academy) established by Silla, 109
 - neo-Confucian practices intensified during the Chosŏn, 119, 122–124
 - neo-Confucianism during the Song, 45
 - as one of the three teachings (sanjiao), 47
 - selective adoption by Manchu Qing rulers, 184
 - Sinicization in historical East Asia facilitated by, 9, 50, 100–101, 105–107, 117, 171
 - and the stability and endurance of East Asian states, 60
 - syncretic nature of, 39, 46, 160
 - Temple of Literature (Văn Miếu, 文廟) dedicated to Confucius built by the Lý dynasty, 141
 - and Vietnam, 24, 136, 146, 154
- corruption and predation
 - abuse of power as the fundamental concern of the social contract in European state formation, 42, 54, 194
 - exploitation of the small by the large assumed in international relations theory, 79
 - internal rivals proposed as a limit on, 14
 - lack of predation in East Asia, 14–15, 194
- Crossley, Pamela, 177
- Crowell, William, 48
- Cummings, Bruce, 195
- Đài Việt
 - dynastic rule. See Đinh Bộ Lĩnh; Hồ dynasty [1400–1407]; Lê dynasty [1427–1789]; Lê Hoàn [黎桓]; Lý

- dynasty [1009–1225]; Mạc dynasty; Trần dynasty [1225–1400]
- Sino-Vietnamese border established by rulers of, 72, 150
- Song Emperor Xiaozong's investiture of Lý Anh Tông (1174), 149
- Đại Việt
 - Đại Việt Sử Ký* (Historical Annals of the Great Viet Kingdom) written by Lê Văn Hưu during the Trần dynasty, 143
- Daoism
 - as one of the three teachings (sanjiao), 47
 - syncretic nature of, 46
 - and the Vietnamese court, 134
 - and the Yamato Court, 117
- De Bary, William Theodore, 53, 64, 104, 109, 111, 113, 117
 - on Buddhism's introduction to Korea, 120, 156
 - on the syncretic nature of Buddhism, 160
- Deuchler, Martina, 51, 120–122
- developmental states
 - and government intervention in the market in East Asia, 187–189
 - identification of, as the contemporary manifestation of ancient states, 194–196
 - proposed origins of, 191–193
 - and technocratic Weberian bureaucracy, 189–190
- diffusion
 - Buddhism's role in the diffusion of Sinic ideas and classical culture, 117, 156–158, 171
 - causal factors of coercion, competition, learning, and emulation identified, 11–26
 - selective adoption of elements of the Chinese state by the Manchus, 183–184
 - of Sinic ideas and classical culture via epistemic communities, 3, 155–164, 171
 - through emulation as more convincing than bellicist competition, 12, 25–29, 98–99, 99–101
- Dincecco, Mark, 59, 173, 184
- Đinh Bộ Lĩnh
 - investiture as “King of Giao Chi prefecture”, 70, 87, 138
 - pacification of the twelve warlords, 70, 137
 - tributary relationship with the Song court established by, 70–71, 138, 149
- Đinh dynasty (968–980)
 - Chinese practices emulated by, 138
 - establishment of. See Đinh Bộ Lĩnh
- Dobbin, Frank, 28, 30
- Doner, Richard F., 192
- Dreyer, Edward L., 35
- Duara, Prasenjit, 44
- Duncan, John, 52, 55, 108, 110, 122
- East Asian civilizational influence. See also Mandate of Heaven; manifest civility
 - emulation (not necessarily bellicism) as a feature oemulation not necessarily bellicismemulation not necessarily bellicism f, 133
 - emulation (not necessarily bellicism) as a feature of, 2–4
 - enduring quality of Chinese hegemony, 36
 - hybridity and mutual influence in interactions between Central and East Asian empires, 180–185
- Ebrey, Patricia, 38, 103, 110, 117
- Eckert, Carter J., 193
- Elman, Benjamin, 40, 46
- emulation as the basis for state formation. See also Japanese emulation of Chinese models; Korean emulation of Chinese models; Vietnamese emulation of Chinese models
 - and diffusion, 25–26, 28, 98–101, 99–101
 - evidence beyond East Asia, 5, 17–18, 196
 - learning distinguished from, 29, 102
 - the scale and intensity of borrowing as an indicator of, 29, 135

- selective adoption of elements of the Chinese state by, 178–181
- selective adoption of elements of the Chinese state by Central Asian steppe societies, 182–183
- selective use of imperial Chinese institutions and norms by the Manchus, 183–184
- epistemic communities
 - cultural exchange by scholar officials, 3, 156, 160–164
 - and the diffusion of Sinic ideas and classical culture, 3, 155–164, 169, 171
 - and indigenous ideas maintained by, 50–51, 99
 - and Korean tribute missions, 164–165
 - Vietnamese and Korean integration of regionwide community of Buddhist monks, 155–158, 168, 171
 - and Vietnamese tribute missions, 166–169, 171
- European state formation
 - abuse of power as the fundamental concern of the social contract in, 42, 54, 194
 - assumptions about international relations challenged by scholarship on East Asian state formation, 4–6, 9–10, 194–196
 - emergence of East Asian political units prior to the state system in, 22, 57
 - emulation as a feature of, 10, 17–18 and the Holy Roman Empire, 6, 16–17, 22
 - lack of concern for education and moral indoctrination as a limitation compared with, 40
 - the role of religion in explaining its contours and substance, 16–17
 - the Roman Empire compared with the Han, 36
- European state formation—bellicist thesis of
 - and contractualist arguments, 13–15, 17
 - Tilly's (Charles) dictum that "war made the state, 2–4, 12, 175
 - violence of the European experience contrasted with East Asian history, 25, 49, 58–60
- Evans, Peter, 190
- Fairbank, John K.
 - model of the Traditional Chinese World Order, 21, 76–77
 - on stereotypes of the Chinese tribute system, 76
- fiscal policy. See also banks and banking; public finance; taxation and contractualist literature on European state formation, 13–15
- France
 - Anglo-French warfare, 13–14
 - colonization of Vietnam, 67, 143
- Giddens, Anthony, 11
- Goddard, Stacie, 29, 115
- Goemans, Hein, 79
- Gorski, Philip S., 2, 5, 12, 17
- Grzymala-Busse, Anna, 5, 16–17
- Haggard, Stephan, 188, 191, 195
- Hall, John Whitney, 127
- Han dynasty (206 BCE–220 CE)
 - Confucianism as the imperial philosophy of, 39
 - the imperial academy for the study of Confucian classics, 40
 - influence on the Buyeo kingdom, 50
 - and Phase I of state formation in East Asia, 31–32, 38–41
 - the Roman Empire compared with, 36
 - rule extended into Northern Vietnam, 135
 - tributary relations with Koguryō, 96–97
- Han, Enze, 18
- Han, Sheng, 45, 62
- Hanson, Jonathan K., 190
- hegemonic international systems. See also emulation as the basis for state formation; tribute order of international relations and domestic politics, 114–117 and the emergence of states in East Asia, 3, 31–32, 73, 186

- hegemonic international systems (cont.)
 European hegemons, 36 political power of, 86
 Qin bureaucratic innovations as the result of hegemony, not its cause, 36–38
 Hiep, Le Hong, 68
 hierarchic nature of society. See also Mandate of Heaven; tribute order of international as an element of the philosophical approach to rule East Asia, 31, 46 persistence in East Asia of, 34, 86
 Hirshleifer, Jack, 175
 Hồ dynasty (1400–1407)
 Trần ruler deposed by Hồ Quý ly, 89
 Hồ Nguyên Trừng (Vietnamese scholar official), 161
 Hồ Sĩ Đống (Vietnamese scholar-official), 168
 Hoffman, Phillip T., 91
 Holcombe, Charles, 3, 37, 39, 52, 55, 65–66, 98, 112, 116, 159, 165
 Honeychurch, William, 178
 Hui, Victoria, 5
 on Chinese state formation, 19–20
 the state defined by, 11
 timeless cultural and political unity of China criticized by, 22
 Huntington, Samuel P., 12
 Hwang, Kyung Moon, 116, 157
 Jagchid, Sechin, 175
 Japan. See also Ashikaga (or Muromachi) Shogunate (1338–1573); ritsuryō system; Tokugawa Shogunate (1600–1868)
 Abe-no Nakamaro's tenure as a Tang official, 159
 Buddhism imported from Paekche, 101, 157
 economic growth in the second half of the 20th century, 187–188
 emulation of Chinese models. See Japanese emulation of Chinese models imperial bureaucracy established in, 1 nationwide cadastral survey and population census implemented by, 1, 112, 127, 129 tribute missions to various Chinese dynasties, 101
 Japan in this first wave of Chinese influence was comprehensively importing Tang-style institutions, language and writing systems, and education, including Confucianism, Buddhism, Daoism, geomancy and divination, law, literature, history, mathematics, calendrics, and medicine, not to mention art and architecture. Indeed, all three Japanese writing systems – hiragana, katakana, and kanji – were derived from Chinese characters. As de Bary et al. put it,, 104
 Japanese emulation of Chinese models. See also judicial systems and legal codes—Japan Buddhism's role in the diffusion of Sinic ideas and classical culture, 117, 156–157 logic of appropriateness as the motivation for, 105–107 scale of, 104, 113, 118
 during the Tokugawa shogunate, 51–52
 Jiang, Weidong, 96–97
 Johnson, Chalmers, 187, 192
 Johnston, Alastair Iain, 28
 judicial systems and legal codes
 Confucian-Legalist state formation in China, 20–21, 34, 37
 Mongol laws and forces adopted by the Ming court, 181–182 judicial systems and legal codes—Japan. See also ritsuryō system and the Taiho Code of 702 108 Taika Reforms, 97, 104, 108 and the Yoro Code of 718 109 judicial systems and legal codes—Korea
 Chinese style law codes promulgated by the Koguryō, 97 specialists in the Silla board of academicians, 103
 Tang-era legal system implemented by Silla, 62

- judicial systems and legal codes—
 Vietnam
 administrative legal codes based on Confucianism implemented by the Lý dynasty, 139
- Kain, Roger J. P., 140
- Kanagawa, Nadia, 62–63
- Katada, Saori, 26
- Keene, Donald, 125
- Kelley, Liam, 170 on the emergence of Vietnam in the late 10th century, 71
 on the modern nationalist myth of Vietnamese history, 68
 on manifest civility as a motivating factor in relations between Vietnam and China, 144, 168
- Kelly, Robert, 60
- Keyes, Charles, 32
- Kiernan, Ben, 146
- Kim, Seonmin, 87
- Kim, Sun Joo, 45, 93, 132
- Kim, Wonik, 193
- Kiser, Edgar, 19, 38
- Ko, Chiu Yu, 59
- Koguryō (37 BC–668 AD)
 Buddhist monk Hyegwan's travels to Japan, 157
 centralized bureaucratic structure of,
 97
 Chinese style law codes promulgated by, 97
 founding of Taehak (Confucian academy), 97
 tributary relations with China, 96–97
- Kohli, Atul, 193
- Korea
 demarcation of its border, 80–87
 division into administrative districts, 124 dynasties of. See Chosŏn dynasty
 [1392–1910]; Koryŏ dynasty
 [918–1392]
 economic growth in the second half
 of the 20th century, 187–188
 emulation of Chinese models. See Korean emulation of Chinese models
 Japanese colonialism of, 193 kingdoms of. See Buyeo [k. Puyŏ, 2nd century BC–494 AD]; Koguryŏ [37
 BC–668 AD]; Paekche [or Baekje,
 18 BC–660 AD]; Silla [57 BCE– 918 CE]]
 scholar-officials, 51, 109
 scholar-officials by name. See Chega, Pak; Chŏng Yag-yong [18th century]; Ch'ŏe Chi'wŏn [857–?];
 Sŏl Ch'ong [c. 680–750]; Yi
 Sugwang [1597–1598]
 Song of Chunhyang (춘향가), 161
 Korean emulation of Chinese models Buddhism's role in the diffusion of Sinic ideas and classical culture, 156–158 and choice of clothing, 112
 Han influence on the Buyeo kingdom, 50
 and indigenous ideas maintained by,
 50–51, 99
 and indigenous ideas maintained by,
 50–51, 134, 136 logic of appropriateness as the motivation for, 105, 107 and the Mandate of Heaven, 44 neo-Confucian practices intensified during the Chosŏn, 119, 121–124
 scale of, 103–104, 114, 118
 Tang-era legal system implemented by Silla, 62
 Tang-era taxation forms imported
 by, 131
 Koryŏ dynasty (918–1392)
 centrally organized government in, 124, 131
 fall of, 82
 land taxes based on the Chinese model, 140
 Mongol subjugation of, 121, 183 “righteous granaries” of (의창, üich'ang, 義倉), 129
 standing military maintained by, 91
 Wang Kŏn's admiration of Tang style, 120
 Krueger, Anne O., 192
 Kuo, Ya-pei, 42
 Kwan, Alan Shiu Cheung, 181
- Lai, Christina, 62
- Lake, David, 29

- Latin America
 limitations of the state capacity of Brazil, 140
 state formation in, 18
 Lê dynasty (1427–1789), 51
 centralized, unified rule in Vietnam even during the waning of its power, 147–148
 Chinese aid in suppressing the threat of Nguyễn Huệ, 152
 civil service examination in Vietnam fully realized during, 142 founding by Lê Lợi, 89, 144
 Lê Hoàn (黎桓), 71, 88, 137
 Lê Quý Đôn (1726–1784) (Vietnamese scholar official), 146, 169
 Lê Văn Thịnh, 141
 Ledyard, Gari, 87
 Lee, Ji-Young, 44, 75, 80, 114–115, 164
 Lee, Kenneth, 93
 Lee, Peter, 64
 on Buddhism's introduction to Korea, 120, 156
 on the syncretic nature of Buddhism, 160 legal codes. See judicial systems and legal codes
 Levi, Margaret, 14
 Lewis, Mark Edward, 33, 49
 Lewis, Martin, 102
 Li Bancun (Vietnamese scholar-official), 168
 Li, Feng, 41
 Lieberman, Victor, 7, 24, 51, 143 on administrative cycles as linear not cyclical, 22
 Lockard, Craig A., 68
 Lopez-Alves, Fernando, 18
 Lý dynasty (1009–1225)
 administrative legal codes based on Confucianism implemented by,
 139
 Chinese practices emulated by, 139 construction of an administrative palace separate from the ceremonial palace by Lý Thái, 139 literary exam to select hàn lâm học sĩ (academicians) introduced by, 141
 Mạc dynasty (1527–1592), 153
 MacKay, Joseph, 34, 178, 180, 184
 Mandate of Heaven
 as an enduring source of rule East Asia, 22, 32, 41–42, 73, 194, 196
 in Japan, 44
 and Korean kings, 45
 the Mongol Yuan dynasty's adoption of, 34, 182
 responsibility of rule associated with, 138, 194, 196
 manifest civility
 China as the domain of, 32–33
 as a motivating factor in relations between Vietnam and China, 144, 168
 Vietnam as a domain of manifest civility (văn hiến chi bang), 146, 149
 Mass, Jeffrey, 127
 McHale, Shawn, 9
 medicine
 Chinese knowledge spread by epistemic communities of Buddhist monks and Confucian scholars, 156
 Japanese adoption of Chinese practices, 103, 113
 Korean adoption of Chinese
 practices, 103
 Meyer, John W., 28
 Millward, James
 arguments of continuous China-centered international order critiqued by, 21, 77
 cultural basis of legitimation emphasized by, 77
 evidence of status and hierarchy as key causal factors in foreign relations provided by, 78
 on power politics as usual in Chinese history, 74
 Ming dynasty (1368–1644)
 centralized bureaucratic structure of,
 57
 fall of, 176
 intervention in Vietnamese domestic politics, 153
 Ming–Chosŏn tributary relations, 65, 82, 121–122

- occupation of Vietnam, 89, 145
 Prince Hồ Nguyên Trừng's service as an official of the Ming Board of Works, 161
 Vietnamese tributary missions to
 China conducted during, 167
 Ming dynasty (1368–1644)—emperors
 Hongwu (1368–1398) Hongwu
 1368–1398 Hongwu
 1368–1398 Hongwu 1368–1398),
 128, 149
 Xuande (1426–1435), 89
 ministries. See centralized bureaucratic structures; Six Ministries
 Mote, Frederick, 49, 176
 Murai, Shosuke, 98
 Muromachi Japan. See Ashikaga (or Muromachi) Shogunate
 (1338–1573)

 Nakai, Kate, 53
 Neumann, Iver B., 26
 Nexon, Daniel H., 17, 26
 Nguyễn clan
 Lê court threatened by Nguyễn Huệ 阮惠, 152
 rivalry with the Trịnh clan, 147–148 Nguyễn Co Phu (Vietnamese scholar-official), 170
 Nguyễn Du, 150
 Nguyễn Vĩnh (Vietnamese scholar-
 official), 160
 North, Douglass C., 13–15

 Paekche (or Baekje, 18 BC–660 AD)
 Buddhism imported from Paekche,
 101
 Buddhism introduced to Japan, 157
 Buddhist and Confucian texts as well as specialists requested and received from southern China, 156
 Silla-Tang defeat of, 61–63
 tributary relationship with China
 starting in the Han, 97
 Palais, James, 125, 132
 Park, Eugene, 92
 Park, Seo-Hyun, 75
 Perdue, Peter, 73, 78, 176, 178
 Peterson, Mark, 60
 Phan Huy Chú, 139

 Phase I of state formation in East Asia
 (221 BCE–220 CE)
 bellicist thesis not supported by the empirical record of, 36–41 definition of, 31
 emergence in the Qin dynasty, 31–32, 35–38
 emergence of hegemony, rather than state formation during, 25, 57 focus of scholarship on, 18–21 and the Han dynasty, 31–32, 38–41 limitations of scholarship focused,
 6–7, 21–22
 Phase II—the emergence of states beginning in the 5th to 8th centuries CE, 57 918 See also ritsuryō system; Silla (57 BCE–918 CE); state formation in East Asia;
 Sui–Tang era (618–907)
 importance for the discipline of international relations, 6–7, 24
 the Tang dynasty identified with, 23 and the transformation of social identity, 29, 114, 118
 Philpott, Daniel, 17
 Phùng Khắc Khoan (1528–1613)
 on his journey to Beijing, 166 meeting with Yi Sugwang, 162–164
 Pines, Yuri, 34
 political units. See also border negotiation; centralized bureaucratic structures; public finance; Six Ministries establishment in East Asia prior to the state system in Europe, 1–2, 32, 57
 and state building, 11
 Pollack, David, 51–52, 125 population censuses and cadastral surveys census attempts in Brazil in 1851 and 1852, 140
 European cadastral surveys of land ownership and productivity, 140 nationwide cadastral survey and population census implemented by Japan, 1, 112, 127, 129
 in Vietnam, 140, 143, 145
 Pore, William, 163, 166

- public finance. See also taxation
 and the absence of independent
 banks and finance in East Asian
 states, 14–15, 131
 grain loan system (hwan'gok)
 introduced by Chosŏn founder Yi Sŏng-gye, 129
 progressive scheme for taxation published by Lý Thái Tò, 139 surtax of land to support “righteous granaries” (ŭich'ang) levied in Korea, 129
 Vietnamese distinction between public and private taxation, 139
- Qin dynasty (221–206 BCE) bureaucratization of, 19–20, 36
 failure of, 38
 and Phase I of state formation in East
 Asia, 19–20, 31–32, 35–38
 Qin Shi Huangdi's innovations, 37–38 self-strengthening reforms instrumental in its unification of central China, 19–20
- Qing dynasty (1644–1912)
 examination system during, 56 Nurhaci's declaration of war against the Ming, 176–177
 Qing–Chosŏn border negotiations around Mount Paektu, 80–87 selective use of imperial Chinese institutions and norms by the Manchus, 183–184
 state-sponsored granaries of, 57, 130 territory conceded to the King of Annam, 151
 Vietnamese tributary missions to China conducted during, 167
- Qing dynasty (1644–1912)—emperors Kangxi's (1662–1722) border
 negotiations with the Chosŏn, 83–85
 Qianlong (r. 1735–1796), 56, 152, 184 Yongzheng Emperor's concession of territory to the King of Annam, 151
- Rawski, Evelyn, 182
 Reid, Anthony, 129
- responsibility of rule emphasized in the philosophical approach to rule East Asia, 194, 196 and the philosophical approach to rule in East Asia, 32, 41, 46 Vietnamese emperors' “rule by virtue” aligned with, 137 and Vietnamese rulers' observation of the failure of the Ming occupation, 145
- Reus-Smit, Christian, 39, 174
- ritsuryo* system
 and Chinese models, 97, 110
 duration of, 119
- Robinson, Kenneth, 126
- Rodrik, Dani, 191
- Rogers, J. Daniel, 178–179
- Roman Empire
 fragmentation of political authority after the fall of, 35 historical China's relations with neighboring ethnic groups distinguished from, 46
- Rosenstein, Nathan, 49
- Rosenthal, Jean-Laurent, 14–15, 42,
 46, 59, 91–92, 130–131, 173
- Rossabi, Morris, 74, 76
- Schmid, Andre, 83
- Schultz, Kenneth, 79
- Seth, Michael, 61, 63, 116
- Sharma, Vivek, 2, 12
- Sharman, J. C., 6, 16
- Sharpe, Eric J., 47
- Shintoism, 44, 53, 113
- Siam
 emulation of Chinese practices resisted by, 172
 tribute relations with China, 171–172
- Silla (57 BCE–918 CE)
 monk Wŏn Kwang's influence on the Sillan code of conduct, 159
- Silla (57 BCE–918 CE)
 Buddhism as the state-sponsored religion of, 102, 107
 Buddhism's role in the spread of Chinese ideas and institutions, 158
 Buddhist monk Chajang's influence on Queen Chindŏk, 111

- Chinese prefecture-county system
 - adopted by, 108
- Confucian academy and civil service examinations in, 109
- institutionalization of the
 - government of, 103
- King Chinhŭng (540–576), 105, 158
- Korean Peninsula unified by, 61–64
- Tang legal system comprehensively implemented by, 62
- Tang taxation forms imported by, 108, 131
- Simmons, Beth
 - on borders, 81
 - on mechanisms of diffusion, 26–28, 30
- Six Ministries
 - Korean establishment of Six Ministries (K. Yukcho), 124
 - organization of the Vietnamese bureaucracy around specialized ministries, 145
 - Sui–Tang era organization of, 56–57
- Sŏl Ch'ong (c. 680–750) (Korean scholar-official), 159
- Solingen, Etel, 26, 29
- Solis, Mireya, 26
- Song dynasty (960–1279)
 - incorporation of Vietnam as Giao Chi prefecture, 70, 135, 138
 - neo-Confucianism during, 45
 - use of force by the Northern Song dynasty, 74
 - Xiaozong's investiture of Lý Anh Tông (1174), 149
- Spain
 - control of the Netherlands, 17
 - size of the Spanish Armada of 1588, 92
- Spruyt, Hendrik, 4, 175, 181–182, 184
- Standen, Naomi, 33–35
- state formation in East Asia. See also
 - border negotiations; civil service; emulation as the basis for state formation; hierarchic nature of society; Mandate of Heaven; public finance; responsibility of rule
 - assumptions about international relations challenged by scholarship
 - on East Asian state formation, 4–6, 9–10, 194–196
 - centralizing power over the aristocracy as the focus of, 25, 37, 97, 184
 - creativity and contingency of, 21–22, 34–35, 74–75, 120
 - definition of what constitutes a state, 11
 - influence of the past on the present, 187
 - key elements of Sinicization in Korea and Japan between 400 and 800 CE, 95–100, 101
 - the role of religion in explaining its contours and substance, 45–49, 53–54, 73
 - the social contract in East Asia contrasted with that in Europe, 42–43, 194
 - and the “state versus the market” debate, 188
 - Western colonial powers impact on, 187
- state formation in Europe. See European state formation
- Steele, Abbey, 65–66
- Strange, Mark, 33
- Sugawara Atsushige, 112
- Sugawara Michizane, 112
- Sugimoto, Masayoshi
 - on cultural exchange by scholar officials, 156
 - on Japan's borrowing of culture and technology from China, 97, 104, 111
- Sui–Tang era (618–907)
 - collapse of, 69, 136
 - the examination system established during, 54–56
 - Gao Pian (Tang general), 159
 - Koryŏ emulation of styles and practices of, 120
 - multi-ethnic makeup of its Chinese bureaucracy, 158–159
 - organization of the Six Ministries, 56–57
 - and reforms proposed during the Chosŏn dynasty, 122
 - the ritsuryo system in Japan patterned after Tang models, 98, 110

- Sui–Tang era (618–907) (cont.)
 state formation in East Asia during, 1, 23, 57
 Tang legal system comprehensively implemented by Silla, 62 taxation forms imported by the Silla, 108, 131
 Vietnam ruled by Tang governors, 69
 Yamato court's adoption of its taxation system, 104, 109
 Sullivan, Michael, 68
 Swain, David L.
 on cultural exchange by scholar officials, 155
 on Japan's borrowing of culture and technology from China, 98, 104, 111
 Symons, Van Jay, 175
 Taiwan
 economic growth in the second half of the 20th century, 187–188
 Tang dynasty (618–907 CE), See Sui–Tang era (618–907) taxation
 Chinese taxation capacity, 131
 in Korea, 108, 132
 late establishment of European taxation capacity, 131
 Vietnamese distinction between public and private taxation, 139
 Vietnamese tax system during the Lý–Trần period, 139
 Yamato court's adoption of the Tang taxation system, 104, 109
 Taylor, Keith, 69, 152
 on Đinh Bộ Lĩnh's diplomatic status, 70 on how Vietnamese history overlaps with and is distinguished from Chinese history, 3–4 on Qianlong's intervention in domestic politics in Vietnam, 152 on Sinic influence in Vietnamese society, 139, 145–146
 Teiser, Stephen F., 47
 Thies, Cameron, 18
 Three Kingdoms (Korea). See Koguryō (37 BC–668 AD); Paekche (or Baekje, 18 BC–660 AD); Silla (57 BCE–918 CE)
 Three Kingdoms era (220–280 CE) (China), 35
 Tilly, Charles
 dictum that “war made the state”, 3, 12
 Tokugawa Shogunate (1600–1868) annual censuses conducted by, 129 centralized bureaucratic structures of, 127
 Chinese influence on, 51–52, 128
 Korean embassies to Japan during, 126–127 moral authority built on religious ideas, 44 and Shintoism, 44, 53
 stability of, 65–66
 Trần dynasty (1225–1400), 51
 Chinese-style population registers established during, 143
 Đại Việt Sử Ký (Historical Annals of the Great Viet Kingdom) written by Lê Văn Hưu during, 143 described in Hồ Nguyên Trừng's A Record of the Dreams of an Old Southerner, 161
 Ming court support in overthrowing usurper Hồ Quý Ly, 88
 National College (Quốc Học Viện or Quốc Tử Viện) founded by, 143 three-stage regional examinations instituted by, 142 tribute order of international relations authority indicated by status as a tributary of China, 74–75, 116, 164 cultural transmission facilitated by, 103, 164–165 debate over the concept of, 74
 Đinh Bộ Lĩnh's relations with the Song, 138 ideas and experiences exchanged by Confucian scholar-officials, 169–171 institutions and norms of, 80
 Vermeersch, Sem, 43
 Vietnam. See also Annam (Ch. Annan 安南); Đại Việt; Đinh Bộ Lĩnh; Hồ dynasty (1400–1407); Lê dynasty (1427–1789); Lê Hoàn (黎桓); Lý

- dynasty (1009–1225); Mạc
 dynasty; Trần dynasty
 (1225–1400)
 “Period of the Twelve Warlords”
 (965–967), 70, 137
 Chinese occupation of, 87–90
 economic growth in the second half
 of the 20th century, 187
 emulation of Chinese models, See Vietnamese emulation of Chinese
 models
 incorporation by the Song as Giao
 Chi Prefecture, 138
 Khúc Thừa Du as military governor of Đại La (Hanoi), 69
 national tax system initiated in, 139 nationalist Vietnamese narrative of its history, 67–69, 71
Qin ding Yue shi tong jian gang mu
 欽定越史通鑑綱目 [The Imperially
 Ordered Annotated Text Completely Reflecting the History of Viet] (IHV), 149, 151
 scholar officials by name. See Hồ Sĩ Đống; Lê Quý Đôn; Li Bancun;
 Nguyễn Co Phu; Nguyễn Vĩnh;
 Phùng Khắc Khoan
 scholar officials sent on tribute missions, 164–170
 stability of the Sino-Vietnamese border, 72, 151
 state formation of, 135–140
 Vietnamese emulation of Chinese
 models
 annalistic histories produced by the Vietnamese royal court, 149 central administration organized around specialized ministries, 147
 China as a domain of manifest civility
 (văn hiến chi bang), 146, 149, 168 China as source of inspiration rather than competition, 90, 147
 and indigenous ideas maintained by,
 50, 53, 99
 institutionalization of the civil service examination in Vietnam, 141–143 literary Chinese as the language of education, scholarship, literature, and government, 139
 and the role of Buddhism, 158 scale and intensity of, 51, 134 use of Confucian and Sinic ideas and institutions as the way things were done, 146–147, 154
 Vietnamese literature written in Chinese, 146
 Von Glahn, Richard
 on state formation in the Sui–Tang era, 1, 23, 57
 Vu, Tuong, 25, 193
 the state defined by, 11
 Waldner, David, 192
 Walthall, Anne, 37, 103, 110, 117
 Wang, Gaoxin, 61
 Wang, Sixiang, 183
 Wang, Yuan-Kang, 74
 Wang, Yuhua, 59, 173, 184
 Weingast, Barry R., 13–15, 194
 Whitmore, John K., 137, 144–145, 166
 Wigen, Kären, 96, 102
 Wills, John E. Jr., 96, 169
 Womack, Brantly, 33, 90, 147
 Wong, R. Bin, 7, 9, 14–15, 35, 38, 46, 59, 92, 130–131, 173
 on ideational factors as central to the Chinese state, 22
 on moral instruction as a basic aspect of Chinese rule, 40, 42
 on state sponsored granaries established during the Qing, 57, 130
 Woo, Jung-en, 192
 Woodside, Alexander, 7, 23–24, 54,
 107, 131, 139, 145, 147
 Wright, David C., 59, 180
 Yi Sŏng-gye
 founding of the Chosŏn as tributary of the Ming, 82, 122
 grain loan system (hwan’gok)
 introduced by, 129
 Yi Sugwang (1597–1598)
 meeting with Phùng Khắc Khoan, 162–164
 Yu, Anthony C., 43
 Yuan dynasty (1271–1368)
 impact of its influence, 181–182

Yuan dynasty (1271–1368) (cont.)	on Confucian-Legalist state
Mandate of Heaven adopted by, 34, 182	formation in China, 20–21, 34, 37
Zhang, Feng, 115	on the unpredictability of historical development, 21
Zhang, Yongjin, 75	on wars as the consequence of bureaucratization, 19
Zhao, Dingxin, 7, 22, 33	Zhao, Zhibin
on centralized bureaucracy during the Western Han, 39	on the history of Paekche, 97
on Confucianism in the Han, 39	Zheng, Lina, 50