

Contents

List of figures [page vii]

Preface [xi]

Acknowledgments [xv]

Introduction [1]

Byzantine Athens: a city with no history? [1]

1. Conversions of the Parthenon [11]

The Parthenon in antiquity: a reassessment [11]

The pagan Parthenon in late antiquity [19]

From temple to church [23]

Triumph or continuity? [31]

What happened at Athens? [40]

The Theosophy oracle on the Parthenon [47]

St. Paul in Athens [53]

2. From students to pilgrims in medieval Athens

(AD 532–848) [60]

The collapse of the late Roman city [60]

Traveling to Athens in the Dark Age [63]

Athens and Constantinople [72]

Inscriptions of the Christian Parthenon [74]

3. Imperial recognition: Basileios II in Athens

(AD 1018) [81]

An emperor in Athens [81]

Interpreting imperial pilgrimage [86]

4. Pilgrims of the middle period (AD 900–1100) [92]

Murder in the Parthenon [92]

Loukas of Steiris [96]

Nikon “Repent!” [97]

Phantinos the Younger [101]

Meletios the Younger and the rehabilitation of Athena [103]

Saewulf, Guido, and the light of Athens [107]

5. The apogee of the Atheniotissa in the twelfth century [112]
    - Athens in the twelfth century [113]
    - Georgios Bourtzes (1153–1160) [122]
    - Nikolaos Hagiotheodorites (1160–1175) [125]
    - Pilgrims and the piety of the Athenians [129]
    - The festival of the Atheniotissa [133]
    - Brand-naming and exporting the Atheniotissa [137]
  6. Michael Choniates: a classicist-bishop and his cathedral (AD 1182–1205) [145]
    - The Parthenon as consolation [145]
    - The Parthenon in the late twelfth century [149]
    - Choniates between past and present [156]
    - Leon Sgouros (1204) and the end of Byzantine Athens [162]
  7. Why the Parthenon? An attempt at interpretation [166]
    - The mysterious success of Christian Athens [166]
    - Athens' meager Christian credentials [168]
    - Deconstructing the Christian Parthenon [173]
    - Ancient ruins and the Byzantine beholder: a view of the "sights" in Greece [178]
    - Conclusion: archaeology, polysemy, success [191]
  8. The light of the Christian Parthenon [196]
    - Postscript: some Byzantine heresies [207]
- Appendix: the Little Metropolis* [212]
Bibliography [215]
Index [249]