

Index

- All China Federation of Trade Unions (ACFTU), 9–10, 48–49 role in legal mobilization, 67, 163 urban bias, 63
- Apartheid, 7, 26
 comparisons to the bukou system, 32–34, 44, 84
- atomized protest, see also protest, 10, 12 as a tool of material co-optation, 2, 57–58 changing nature of, 217–218 tolerance of, 1, 69–71
- atomization, see also particularization, atomized Incorporation, repression, 3 as a labor control strategy, 50–51 challenges to, 219–227 cognitive implications of, 59
 in China, 3, 55–56
- atomized incorporation: definition, see atomization, incorporation, particularization, blame 3–4, 9, 54 advantages and limitations, 3–4, 11–12, 16–17, 54, 56, 156
 as a strategy of blame avoidance, 102–105
 characteristics, 11
 comparisons to other strategies, 9 implications, 19, 227–229 political economy explanations for, 77–93
 relationship between atomization and incorporation, 4, 74–75
 risk, 61–62, 162
- authoritarian regimes: information problem, see also co-optation, corporatism, repression, 16–17, 57–58 economic growth and resilience of, 6, 24–25
 labor coercive growth in, 26–27 tolerance of protests, 1–2, 57–58
- automation, 85, 200
- anti-foreign protests, 207
- Brazil, 24, 27, 44
- blame attribution: internal, see also depoliticization; politicization, 100, 102, 107–109
 firm-level patterns of, 182–184 of experienced workers, 110 of younger workers, 109–110 protest intention and, 151–154 survey data, 105–122
 to the central government, 106–107
- blame avoidance: strategy, 100–101
- Cai, Yongshun, 72, 102, 128, 144
- cellular activism, 2, 4
- Chan, Chris, 60, 129, 209, 222
- Chen, Xi, 18, 60, 186
- China Labour Bulletin, 161, 217, 218
 relations with mainland labor NGOs, 224–225
 strike map data, 172–176, 179–181, 217–218
- China's rise, see also economic development, 6

- aftermath, 36–39, 43–44, 214 declining economic efficiency, 8, 77–78 its benefits, 6
 marginalization of migrant workers, 6–7, 35 migrant workers' contribution to, 31 co-optation: political, 52 institutional, 52
 material, see material co-optation of unorganized groups, 52–54 collective action problems, see protest, 17 free riding, 125–126, 146, 155 in unorganized groups, 126–127 solutions, 127–128
 collective action resources: mobilizational resources, see also mobilization, 127–129
 collective bargaining: labor NGOs and,
 see also labor non-governmental organizations, 220–221
 local governments' attitudes toward, 221–222
 corporatism: state corporatism, 47 exclusionary, 48
 inclusionary, 48

dagong. See migrant workers, 7, 42 frustrations of younger migrant workers about, 98, 112
 democratization: role of labor, 76–77 depoliticization, see also politicization, 5–6, 58–61
 as a strategy of blame avoidance, 96
 Diaoyu-Senkaku dispute: labor protests and, 207
 discursive opportunities: definition, 187 at anti-foreign protests, 210–211 bargaining power and, 186, 200–201 media and, 187, 195, 202 perceived group efficacy and, 193 economic development: in authoritarian regimes, see also export-oriented industrialization; labor-intensive production, 24, 26–27

 authoritarian resilience and, 6, 24–25 sustainable development, 78 economic grievances: job-specific, see also social grievances; politicization, 13, 99 about low wages, 138–139 about wage arrears, 68
 definition, 111

 effect on protest intention, 147, 150
 political implications, 58 economic protest, see atomized protest efficacy, see individual efficacy, group efficacy
 environmental pollution: attitudes of local government, 86
 exit: from the firm, see also vote with feet, Hirschman, labor turnover, 141 from the society, 229
 export-oriented industrialization, 27
 China, 7, 30, 36
 declining exports, 81
 employment of migrants, 30
 labor coercion and, 35
 labor shortages, 36–38
 expressive benefits: definition, 144 for rank-and-file workers, 149 of joining protests, 145 extra-legal demands, see also legal demands, interest-based protests, 161 effect on protest tactics, 177–178, 199–202, 205
 increase of, 164
 local governments' view of, 165–166

 fire alarm system, see also particularization, 11, 12, 67
 firm embeddedness, 17
 effect on job turnover intention, 142–143
 effect on protest intention, 149 firm-specific training, 141 firm retribution, see repression firm tenure, 150, 151
 protest intention and, 204–205
 social network and, 203–204 firm-level patterns of protest: effect of ownership, 167–168, 172–176 effect of size, 169, 172–176
 law-abiding firms and, 169–171
 foreign direct investment, see also Opening up; foreign-owned firms, 31
 labor coercion and, 28
 labor disputes and, 167–168 foreign-owned firms: employment of migrant workers at, 31 higher incidence of labor disputes at, 167–168
 interest-based protests at, 171–176, 208–210

- law-abiding behavior, 92, 167, 191–192, 200 reputational concerns of, 192–193, 200
 Four Asian Tigers, 24, 44
 Foxconn, 192
 media reports of, 192
- Gallagher, Mary, 68, 110, 167, 184 gender: effect on social grievances, 112–114 generalization: generalized framing, see also social grievances, politicization, particularization, 103 role of migration experience, 114–116 global value chains: labor coercion and, 27–28 collective action at a firm of, 199–202 reputational concerns, 191–193, 200 workers' expectation of media exposure at, 196–198, 202
- group efficacy: of SOE workers, 144
 definition, 144
 discursive opportunities and, 193–195 effect of protest experience on, 158
 effect on protest intention, 149, 154
 law-abiding firms and, 193
 measurement of perception, 145–146
 of migrant workers, 144–145
- Henan, 20
 Hirschman, 141
 Honda Nanhai: labor strike at, 1, 210
 Hong Kong; mainland labor activism and, 224
bukou system, see also Apartheid, migrants, 5, 7
 changes, 63–64
 consequence for migrants, 32–36, 97 history, 28–30, 32
- incorporation, see also atomized
 incorporation, 54–55
 industrial relocation: double relocation in Guangdong, see also industrial upgrading, 79–80
 discouraging migration, 85–86 in Jiangsu, 80
 in Zhejiang, 86
 industrial upgrading, see also
 export-oriented industrialization;
 industrial relocation, 78
 cases, 86–87, 89–90
- effects on local tax revenues in Guangdong, 81–83
 measures of local governments, 79–80
 specific criteria for elimination and
 upgrading, 89–90
 use of environmental policies, 88, 89 use of labor policies, 87–92 inequality: workers' perception of, see also migrant workers, 111 information: protest as a source of, see also atomization, politicization, blame, generalization, protest, 2, 16–17, 19, 57–58, 120–122
 about other protests, 201
 atomization and, 59
 blame attribution and, 100–101, 110, 114–116
 control of, in factories, 131 interest-based protests, 18, 161, 164 anti-foreign sentiment and, 208
 cases, 199–202, 208–210
 for higher wages, 171–176 importance of leadership, 128–129 in Shenzhen, 164
 local authorities' handling of, 167
 media reports of, 192–193, 200–202
 police presence at, 179–181
 political implications, 18, 161–162 strike map stats, 172
 survey stats, 170–171
 tactics of, 165–166, 177–178
- Jasic incident, 75, 219, 225–227 job availability: of different workers, see also structural bargaining power, labor turnover, labor shortage, job hopping, 142
 effect on protest intention, 149
 increases in export-oriented regions, 36–37
 job hopping: of different workers, 141–142
 effect on social network, 143 job tenure: job turnover and, see also social network, job turnover, exit, 142
- labor activists: repression of, 72–74, 216, 219–222, 224–225
 external mobilization by, 221–227
 student activists, 75, 225–226

- labor assertiveness, see also extra-legal demands, interest-based protests, structural bargaining power, 8
- labor coercion: definition, 25 comparison to labor repression, 25–26 consequences, 43–45
- Labor Contract Law, 65, 163, 200
- labor control in authoritarian regimes, 47–51
- labor grievances, 39–43 implications of, 6
- labor law: adoption of pro-labor laws, see also labor rights, 64–65 bottom-up enforcement, 66–69, 165 consequences for labor costs, 65–66 limited top-down enforcement, 191 relations to industrial upgrading, 87–92 sectoral and regional variations of enforcement, 92 violations, 68
- labor movement, 52
- labor non-governmental organization: lack of independent organization in China, see also All China Federation of Trade Unions (ACFTU), 51–54 exposure of labor incidents and, 192 foreign-funded, 75
 involvement in workers' protests, 221–224 legal mobilization of, 163 movement oriented, 62, 220–221 state repression of, 71–76, 219–225
- labor rights: legal rights consciousness, 67–68 individualization of, 69
- labor shortage: of migrant workers, 7–8, 36–39
 effect on protest intention, 149
- labor turnover: of migrant workers, 7, 34, 39
 consequences, 8
 effect on politicization, 116
 effect on protest intention, 149
 turnover intention, 142
- labor-intensive sectors: reliance on migrants, see also export-oriented industrialization; migrants; industrial upgrading, 32 declining profits, 8, 81, 85 declining tax contribution, 81, 86 governments' changing attitudes to, 78–87
- increasing labor costs, 8, 81 policies to discourage investment in, 86–93
- land scarcity, 83
 relations to industrial upgrading, 83, 87, 90
- law-abiding firms, see also labor law, legal demands, 161 attribution of blame at, 182–184 concerns for reputation at, 191, 200 expected media exposure at, 195–196 perception of group efficacy at, 193
 survey stats, 169–170
- law-based protests, see also rightful resistance, 161 for overtime pay, 204
 for payment of wage arrears, 171–176 for social insurance, 203–204 media attention to, 206
 police presence at, 179–181, 205
 reliance on state authorities, 165–166
- Lee, Ching Kwan, see also cellular activism, 2, 60
- legal demands: payment of wage arrears, see also extra-legal demands, 166, 171–172 about overtime pay, 203
 about social insurance, 203
- legal disputes, see also law-based protests, 66–69 judicialization of labor disputes, 163 labor dispute resolution system, 163 number of cases, 163, 170–171
- Levi, Margaret, 99
- Lewis Turning Point, 38
- Lide protest, 222–224
- line supervisor, see also protest leader, mobilizational resources, 17 capacity to demobilize, 130 experience of upward mobility, 107 internal attribution of blame, 107–109 migration background, 130
 mobilizational resources, 130–133, 199–200, 203–204
 perception of upward mobility, 111, 140 protest experience of, 157 protest intention, 133, 135, 140–141, 147 relationship with rank-and-file workers, 129–131

- role in protests, 105, 129–130, 199–200, 203–204 views of the central government, 118–119 Lorentzen, Peter, 12, 57, 212 lying flat movement, 228–229
- Mao era: the hukou system, 28–29 Maoist ideology, of student activists, 227 material co-optation, 12, 57–58 protests as a tool for material, 2, 57–58 media: reports of labor protests, see also
 mobilizational resources, mobilizational structures, protest leaders, 187–190, 200–201 changes in the Xi era, 218–219 commercialization, 190
 depiction of migrant workers, 102, 104–105
 foreign-invested firms and, 192–196 framing of protests; group efficacy and, 187, 193–195, 200–201 investigative journalism, 188–190 large-scale firms and exposure of, 196 perception of successful mobilization
 and, 149, 158
 role during protest, 192–193, 200–201 workers' expectation of reports, 194–196, 200–201
- migrant workers: rural-to-urban workers, see also hukou system; economic grievances, social grievances, 5, 30–32 as protest participants, 8 as temporary residents, 30, 32–36 changing policies of, 63–66 exploitation of, 32–36
 lack of social security, 84 media's depiction of, 102, 104–105 new generation of, 39–42, 97, 103, 109–110
 perceived benefits of, 36, 84–85 perceived social costs of, 84–86
 perception of upward mobility, 97–98 public prejudice against, 85, 103 regional distribution of, 31 sectoral distribution of, 31 social and political exclusion of, 41–42, 63, 102
 support for the status quo, 97, 102–103
 the central government's attitudes, 104–105
 mobilization resources, 17, 133–135
- discursive, 18, 186, 193–195, 200–201 external, 221–224
 importance in overcoming collective action barriers, 127–128 legal knowledge, 67–69
 of line supervisors, 129–135
 use of anti-foreign slogans as, 208–210
- mobilizational structures: definition, see also protest leader, collective action resources, line supervisors, social network, 133
 importance of social network, 143 production units as, 133–135
- nationalism: effect on labor protests, see also Asian Tigers, 208 display of, during labor protests, 208–210
- newly industrialized countries: comparisons to China, 50
- non-cooperation, subtle forms of, see also lying flat movement, sanbe youth, 228–229
- O'Brien, Kevin, see rightful resistance Olson, 127
 Opening up (kaifang), 29, 30
- particularization, see fire alarm system 60 particularistic bargaining, 11, 12, 16 particularistic framing, 59, 103
- Pearl River Delta (PRD) region, 20, 31 attraction of migrants to, 31, 85 collective bargaining in, 221 declining industries, 81 increasing bankruptcy, 66 shortage of migrant labor in, 37
- performance legitimacy, 95
- personal efficacy: definition, see also group efficacy, 146
 effect of protest experience on, 158
 effect on protest intention, 146–147
 measurement of perception, 147
- political grievances, of migrants: debate
 about, 61
- political grievances, of migrants: debate about, police see repression, 59
- politicization: of economic grievances, see also depoliticization, generalization, structural attribution, 13, 59–96, 98–99
 of social grievances, 15–16

- pro-democracy movement: involvement of labor, 2, 8–9
- protest leader
 importance for unorganized groups, 128 in migrant protests, 199–200 in SOE protests, 128
- protest tactics: disruptive and non-disruptive, 177, 205 local government response and, 177, 180 police response to, 181, 205 publicity, 192–193, 200–201 strike map data of, 177
- protest: toleration of, in authoritarian intention of, 137–154
- protest: toleration of, in authoritarian regimes, see also information, atomized protest, interest-based protest, law-based protest, 1–2 apolitical, 2, 4, 18, 57, 60, 183 as a source of information, 2, 57–58 as a tool for material co-optation, 2, 57–58
 atomized, see atomized protest; defensive and offensive, 18, 129
 blame attribution and intention of, 120–122
 changing nature of, 164
 debates about origins, 143–144 defensive and offensive, 18, 129 direct experience of, 120–121, 136, 156–159
 indirect experience of, 120, 201
 intention of, 135–136
 media reports of, 187–190, 200–202 reasons for non-participation, 155 state authorities' handling of, 165–167, 180–181
 success rates of, 158, 171 survey stats of, 170
 toleration of, in China, 1–3 Pun, Ngai, 7, 209
- repression: differences from coercion, see also labor coercion, 25–26
 during protests, 179–181
 effect on protest intention, 149–150 in Tiananmen Square, 9–10, 51 limits of, 229
 police, 146, 179–181, 205, 222
 the 2015 crackdown, 219–225
 the 2018 crackdown, 225–227
 under the Xi leadership, 216
- within firm, 146, 151, 200 workers' expectation of, 146, 200
- rightful resistance, 18, 164
- safety valve, 2, 12, 17
- sanbe* youth, 228
- social grievances, 42–43, 97–98
 definition, 111
 determinants of, 112–116
 effect of job hopping on, 114–116 measurement, 111
 passive resistance and, 228–229
 politicization of, 116–119
- social media: public exposure of protests
 and, 172
- social movement: differences from protest, see also protest, 145
- social network: in factories, see also
 mobilizational resources, 133–135
 firm tenure and, 203–204 labor turnover and, 143
- South Korea: economic growth in the military regimes, 26–28 labor activism during the military rule, 104 labor control, 50, 53, 61
 labor disputes at Korean-owned firms, 168
 student activists, 226
 wage increase, 45
- state-labor relations in authoritarian regimes, see labor coercion, atomization, corporatism, incorporation, co-optation 100
- state-owned enterprises (SOEs): protest during SOE reform, 71–72 government's framing of, 101
- strategic agency of workers: debate in literature, 143–144
 during anti-foreign protests, 208–210
 in cases, 132, 200–201, 206
 of line supervisors, 154, 199–201
 use of media, 200–201
- structural bargaining power, see also labor shortage, labor turnover, job availability, 8, 36–39, 124, 146
 definition, 38
 perceived job availability, 142 relationship with protest, 149 the bukou system and, 35

- surplus labor: of migrants, 30, 37–38 absorption of, 38
 survey data: using survey to study protest behavior, 136–137
 system attribution, see also politicization; blame, 15
 formation of causal beliefs and, 99 workers' difficulty of, 98
- Tilly, Charles, 127, 139 trade unions, see All-China Federation of Trade Unions
- upward mobility: lack of, within firm, see also social grievances, 17, 41, 140
 determinants of, 112
 effect on protest intention, 147–149 lack of, within society, 14, 41–42 of different workers, 111
 politicization of, 118
 workers' perception of, 111, 113–114
- urban bias: the hukou system and, 28–29
- vote with feet, see also Hirshman, exit, 8
- wage arrears, 166
- media reports of, 188 protests for, 171, 172
- wages: low wages of migrants, 35 increase of migrant wages, 8, 38
- Wen Jiabao, 103, 188
 Wintrobe, 26, 33
- workplace disputes: about compensation on firm tenure, see also protest, economic grievances, 151, 175, 203
 about overtime pay, 203
 about social insurance, 150, 203
 about wage arrears, 166, 171
 about year-end bonuses, 150, 199
- Xi era: increased repression, 216, 218–219
 crackdown on labor NGOs and activists, 219–225
 decreasing discursive resources, 218–219 decreasing interest-based protests, 217–218
- Yangtze River Delta, 20, 31
- Yue Yuen, 115, 140, 143 anti-foreign slogans in, 209 involvement of labor activists in, 222
 media reports of, 188