

Contents

Acknowledgements	page ix
Introduction: Framing History	1
The Anachronism of Nationalism	4
Intellectual Connections in Early Medieval Britain and Ireland and the Case for Comparative Study	13
Origin Legends and the Construction of Identities in the Early Medieval West	17
Sources, Legends, and Arguments	22
1 Textual Connections	28
Part I: Gildas’s De Excidio et Conquestu Britanniae and the Origin Legend of the Anglo-Saxons	33
Part II: Bede’s Historia Ecclesiastica Gentis Anglorum and the Origins of the Picts	40
Part III: The Historia Brittonum and the Origins of the Irish and the British	45
Part IV: The Lebor Bretnach , the Lebor Gabála Éirenn , and the Continuation of the Corpus	58
Conclusions	62
2 Exile	63
Part I: Exile in Classical, Biblical, and Late Antique Tradition	64
Part II: Exile in Law and History in the Insular Region	70
Part III: Exile in Insular Origin Narratives	83
Conclusions	95
3 Kin-Slaying	98
Part I: Kin-Slaying in Classical, Biblical, and Late Antique Tradition	99
Part II: Kin-Slaying in Law and History in the Insular Region	106
Part III: Kin-Slaying in Insular Origin Narratives	119
Conclusions	135
4 Intermarriage and Incest	137
Part I: Intermarriage and Incest in Biblical Tradition	139
Part II: Intermarriage and Incest in Their Insular Legal and Historical Contexts	145
	vii

viii	Contents
	Part III: Intermarriage in Insular Origin Narratives	160
	Part IV: Incest in Insular Origin Narratives	176
	Conclusions	184
5	Early Medieval Origin Legends in Early Modern Histories	187
	Part I: Geoffrey of Monmouth and the Growth of Origin Legends in the ‘Long Twelfth Century’	188
	Part II: Origin Legends in the High Middle Ages	193
	Part III: The Early Modern Sources	197
	Part IV: Nationalism and Xenophobia	204
	Part V: Defending the Validity of a Nation’s Own Past	209
	Part VI: Questioning the Origins of Others	219
	Conclusions	226
	Conclusion: Origin Legends and Local History	227
	Bibliography	235
	Index	265