

The Origin Legends of Early Medieval Britain and Ireland

The inhabitants of early medieval Britain and Ireland shared the knowledge that the region held four peoples and the awareness that they must have originally come from ‘elsewhere’. The Origin Legends of Early Medieval Britain and Ireland studies these peoples’ origin stories, an important genre that has shaped national identity and collective history from the early medieval period to the present day. These multilingual texts share many common features that repay their study as a genre, but have previously been isolated as four disparate traditions and used to argue for the long roots of current nationalisms. Yet they were not written or read in isolation during the medieval period. Individual narratives were in constant development, written and rewritten to respond to other texts. This book argues that insular origin legends developed together to flesh out the history of the region as a whole.

Lindy Brady is Assistant Professor and Ad Astra Fellow in the School of History at University College Dublin. She taught at the University of Mississippi from 2012 to 2020. Her first book, Writing the Welsh Borderlands in Anglo-Saxon England (2017), won Best Book on an Anglo-Saxon Topic Publication Prize, 2019, from the International Society for the Study of Early Medieval England (formerly the International Society of Anglo-Saxonists) and won the Southeastern Medieval Association award for best first book, 2020.

The Origin Legends of Early Medieval Britain and Ireland

---

Lindy Brady
University College Dublin

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
978-1-009-22563-2 – The Origin Legends of Early Medieval Britain and Ireland
Lindy Brady
Frontmatter
More Information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Shaftesbury Road, Cambridge CB2 8EA, United Kingdom
One Liberty Plaza, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10006, USA
477 Williamstown Road, Port Melbourne, VIC 3207, Australia
314–321, 3rd Floor, Plot 3, Splendor Forum, Jasola District Centre, New Delhi – 110025, India
103 Penang Road, #05–06/07, Visioncrest Commercial, Singapore 238467

Cambridge University Press is part of Cambridge University Press & Assessment, a department of the University of Cambridge.

We share the University's mission to contribute to society through the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781009225632

DOI: 10.1017/9781009225601

© Lindy Brady 2022

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press & Assessment.

First published 2022

First paperback edition 2024

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication data

Names: Brady, Lindy, author.

Title: The origin legends of early medieval Britain and Ireland / Lindy Brady, University College Dublin.

Description: Cambridge ; New York : Cambridge University Press, 2022. | Includes bibliographical references and index.

Identifiers: LCCN 2022007324 (print) | LCCN 2022007325 (ebook) | ISBN 9781009225618 (hardback) | ISBN 9781009225632 (paperback) | ISBN 9781009225601 (ebook)

Subjects: LCSH: Great Britain – History – Medieval period, 1066–1485 – Sources. | Great Britain – History – Medieval period, 1066–1485 – Historiography. | Ireland – History – To 1603 – Sources. | Ireland – History – To 1603 – Historiography. | Great Britain – In literature. | Ireland – In literature. | Nationalism and literature – Great Britain. | Nationalism and literature – Ireland.

Classification: LCC DA170 .B73 2022 (print) | LCC DA170 (ebook) | DDC 941.02–dc23/eng/20220328

LC record available at <https://lcn.loc.gov/2022007324>

LC ebook record available at <https://lcn.loc.gov/2022007325>

ISBN 978-1-009-22561-8 Hardback

ISBN 978-1-009-22563-2 Paperback

Cambridge University Press & Assessment has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

For Marios

Contents

---

Acknowledgements	page ix
Introduction: Framing History	1
The Anachronism of Nationalism	4
Intellectual Connections in Early Medieval Britain and Ireland and the Case for Comparative Study	13
Origin Legends and the Construction of Identities in the Early Medieval West	17
Sources, Legends, and Arguments	22
1 Textual Connections	28
Part I: Gildas's De Excidio et Conquestu Britanniae and the Origin Legend of the Anglo-Saxons	33
Part II: Bede's Historia Ecclesiastica Gentis Anglorum and the Origins of the Picts	40
Part III: The Historia Brittonum and the Origins of the Irish and the British	45
Part IV: The Lebor Bretnach , the Lebor Gabála Éirenn , and the Continuation of the Corpus	58
Conclusions	62
2 Exile	63
Part I: Exile in Classical, Biblical, and Late Antique Tradition	64
Part II: Exile in Law and History in the Insular Region	70
Part III: Exile in Insular Origin Narratives	83
Conclusions	95
3 Kin-Slaying	98
Part I: Kin-Slaying in Classical, Biblical, and Late Antique Tradition	99
Part II: Kin-Slaying in Law and History in the Insular Region	106
Part III: Kin-Slaying in Insular Origin Narratives	119
Conclusions	135
4 Intermarriage and Incest	137
Part I: Intermarriage and Incest in Biblical Tradition	139
Part II: Intermarriage and Incest in Their Insular Legal and Historical Contexts	145
	vii

viii	Contents
	Part III: Intermarriage in Insular Origin Narratives	160
	Part IV: Incest in Insular Origin Narratives	176
	Conclusions	184
5	Early Medieval Origin Legends in Early Modern Histories	187
	Part I: Geoffrey of Monmouth and the Growth of Origin Legends in the ‘Long Twelfth Century’	188
	Part II: Origin Legends in the High Middle Ages	193
	Part III: The Early Modern Sources	197
	Part IV: Nationalism and Xenophobia	204
	Part V: Defending the Validity of a Nation’s Own Past	209
	Part VI: Questioning the Origins of Others	219
	Conclusions	226
	Conclusion: Origin Legends and Local History	227
	Bibliography	235
	Index	265

Acknowledgements

---

The ideas for this book have been germinating for nearly a decade, but the manuscript itself was written almost entirely during the lockdown caused by the Covid-19 pandemic. This experience has made me more grateful than ever for the support of those whom I have been lucky enough to call my friends and colleagues over the years. Initial research for this project was funded by two College of Liberal Arts Summer Research Grants at the University of Mississippi during the summers of 2017 and 2018. I am immensely grateful to my friends and colleagues in Oxford for a wonderful seven years, and I owe particular thanks to Sarah Baechle, Tom Brady, Cristie Ellis, Kate Lechler, Dan O’Sullivan, Dan Stout, and Nancy Wicker for their unwavering support.

This book benefitted greatly from the receipt of two fellowships that facilitated the research and writing stages. During the summer of 2018, this project was funded by a British Academy Visiting Fellowship at the University of Birmingham. I am grateful to colleagues there – particularly Megan Cavell, Christopher Callow, and Victoria Flood – for making my stay in Birmingham such a pleasant and productive one. During the 2019 to 2020 academic year, I was funded by a Marie Skłodowska Curie COFUND Fellowship in the Trinity Long Room Hub at Trinity College Dublin. I am grateful to all those who warmly welcomed me into Trinity’s academic community, particularly Alice Jorgensen, Ruth Karras, and Immo Warntjes, and to the early-career researchers on the fourth floor of the Long Room Hub for creating an incredible community full of support and camaraderie that withstood the test of Ireland’s multiple lockdowns. The initial draft of this book was also much improved by thoughtful suggestions from CUP’s two anonymous readers.

This project’s journey concludes in the School of History at University College Dublin. I am so grateful to UCD and to all my colleagues for so graciously welcoming a new hire during the middle of a pandemic, with particular thanks to Elizabeth Dawson, Kelly Fitzgerald, Roy Flechner, Irial Glynn, John McCafferty, William Mulligan, and Michael Staunton.

x Acknowledgements

My move to Ireland would have been utterly hopeless without the bottomless supply of friendship, advice, and alcohol provided by Lizzie Boyle, Elva Johnston, and Rebecca Stephenson. Motivation during the grim days of lockdown was cheerfully supplied by Brian Cook and Helen Davies, whom I was once proud to call students and am now even prouder to call colleagues. Words cannot express my gratitude to those friends who have offered me their constant support throughout the years: Fred Biggs, Ben Guy, Georgia Henley, Charles Insley, Vicky McAlister, Joshua Byron Smith, and Patrick Wadden.

My biggest thanks are due to my family. My wonderful parents Ken and Sue and sister Sarah Alender have been unwavering in their love and support, even from across the Atlantic. My partner, Marios Costambeys, has given me reasons to hope when the world felt very bleak. This book is for him.

Lindy Brady
Dún Laoghaire, Ireland
7 July, 2021