Index

accountability of institutions political motives for migration and, 26–29 principal-agent theory and diaspora institutions and, 151–54 adaptation, migration as, 210–11 Africa, migration flows from, 60–64, 79–82 agency loss, principal-agent theory and diaspora institutions and, 151–54 altruism, remittances and, 133–35 An Inquiry into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations (Smith), 7–8 anti-immigrant politics. See also restrictive immigration policies COVID-19 pandemic and, 201–3 economic impact of, 168–71
global migration analysis and, 77–82 growth of, 211–13
impact on investment of, 207–8 impact on migration of, 14–15 migrants’ perceptions of, 63–64 myths about, 1–4
negative economic impacts of, 168–71, 208–11 restrictive immigration policies and, 171–73 apprehension rates, unauthorized immigration and remittance analysis, 177–78 Armenian diaspora, international investment studies on, 98–99, 101 aspiration-ability framework economic incentives for migration and, 21–23 voluntary migration and, 19–20 asylum hearings backlog, unauthorized immigration and, 180–81 Austrian Freedom Party, 63–64 authorized immigration, remittances and, 175–77 autocratic regimes
diaspora institutions in, 150–59
global migration analysis and role of, 78–82
Bachus, Trevor, 171–73
Bamboo Network, 119
international investment and, 100
Banco di Napoli, 129–30
Bancroft, George, 135–36
Bandelj, Nina, 100–1
Bertoli, Simone, 69–70
bilateral migration
determinants of, 60–64
education levels and political openness in destination countries, 74–77 modeling of, 64–70
pseudo-Poisson maximum likelihood estimator in models of, 69–70 remittances and, 175–77, 190–92
Blonigen, Bruce A., 109–13
Bollard, Albert, 184 border restrictions, magnitude and intensity measurements of, 59n.2
Borjas, George J., 58
Bracero program (US), 181–87
Index

Brain Drain Database (IAB) (Germany), 74–77
Braithwaite, Alex, 171–73
Bretton Woods Accords, 5
Brexit referendum, 211–13
Bush, George W., 173

Cameron, A., 105–6
capital
cross-border capital flows, co-ethnic networks and, 101–12, 129 destination countries’ statecraft and flow of, 168–71 financial aid as source of, 129 gravity model of financial transactions and, 102–5 international investment and flow of, 96–98 migration and flow of, 14, 91–96, 206 remittances as source of, 130–33, 173–81
Cavalli-Sforza, Luigi Luca, 102–5
Central American Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA), 169, 173
CEPII gravity dataset, 69, 102–5
Chami, Ralph, 142
Chinese social networks, international investment and, 106–10, 119
Choi, Inbom, 98–99
citizenship rights and policies. See also dual citizenship bilateral migration models and, 65–66, 70–72 data sources on, 88
in destination countries, 61 economic benefits of, 207–8
migrants’ perceptions of, 62–63 climate change, migration and, 203, 210–11 Clinton, William, 173
closed immigration systems, in liberal democracies, 10 Cobb-Clark, Deborah A., 182–84 cross-ethnic networks education levels in, 115–18 heterogeneous investment, 113–18 as institution substitutes, 116–23
international investment and, 99–102, 110–18
robustness of, 109–13
Cohen, Robin, 93
common legal origin, international investment and, 102–5 common religion variable, international investment and, 102–5 Constant, Amelie F., 147–49 consumption enhancement, remittances from migrants and, 133–35, 173–81 contract design, diaspora engagement institutions and, 153–54 Coordinated Direct Investment Survey (CDIS), 102–4
Coordinated Portfolio Investment Survey (CPIS), 102–5 Correia, Sergio, 69–70 corruption
global migration analysis and role of, 78 institutional measures of, 119
international investment and, 92–95, 119
political motives for migration and, 28–29
remittances’ impact on, 134–35, 142 costs of migration, bilateral migration and, 60–64 Coval, Joshua D., 97n.4
COVID-19 pandemic, migration disruption and, 201–5 Credit Reporting System (CRS) (OECD), 154–59
cross-border capital flows, co-ethnic networks and, 95, 98–99, 101–2, 123–24 cultural identity and preferences diaspora engagement and, 140–41 gravity model of international investment and, 102–5 home bias in international investment and, 96–98
international investment and, 106–10 cumulative causation loop, sociological migration models, 25 Danish immigration policies, bilateral migration flows and, 71–72
Danish People’s Party, 71–72 Database on Immigrants in OECD Countries (DIOC), 115–18 decision-making models for migration, 30–41 education as factor in, 38–41 intentions and behaviors measurements, 30–31
remittances and, 173–81
satisfaction with political conditions, 32–36 statistical summary, 47–48 summary of countries in, 46–47
Délano, Alexandra, 149–50
DEMIG POLICY database, 67–68 democracies economic impact of immigration restriction in, 168–71 global migration analysis and role of, 78 international measures in, 119 labor shortages in, 205 restrictive immigration policies linked to, 10, 190–91 DeSipio, Louis, 149–50
destination countries
bilateral migration modeling, 64–70 education and political openness in, 74–77, 81 labor market policies and, 14–15 migrant investment in, 206 migrant’s choice of, 14 population data for, 79 restrictive entry policies in, 204 statecraft and capital flow to, 168–71 Devillanova, Carlo, 182–84 diaspora engagement. See also co-ethnic networks; specific diasporas, e.g., Indian diaspora
cross-border capital flows, 95, 98–99, 101–2, 123–24, 129 dual citizenship and, 131–33 emergence of institutions for, 150–59 empirical analysis of institutions for, 134–59
globalization and, 91–96 institutions for, 137–41, 162–67 local entrepreneurs and, 101 macro-level analysis of, 141–45 Mexican initiatives for, 149–50 micro-level analysis of, 145–50 origin country institutions, 14 principal-agent theory and institutions for, 151–54
remittances and, 131–33, 135–50
strategies for, 137–39
Disdier, Anne-Célia, 102–5 dual citizenship autocratic regimes and, 150–59 benefits of, 139–40
bilateral migration models, 65–66, 70–72, 74–77 contract design and, 153–54 destination countries’ requirements concerning, 62–64 diaspora engagement through, 131–33, 137–39, 143 economic and lobbying capacities and, 154–59 education levels of migrants and, 74–77
empirical analysis of institutions for, 154–59
globalization and, 205
government resistance to, 135–36
international investment and, 205, 214 policy incentives for, 130 remittance trends and, 145–50, 161–62 skilled migrants and importance of, 83 dyad fixed effects, bilateral immigration models, 177–78, 190–92 Eastern European, co-ethnic international investment in, 100–1 economic conditions benefits of migration for, 207–8 diaspora engagement impact on, 151–59 foreign investment and, 91–96 immigration restrictions’ impact on, 168–71 migration linked to, 1–4, 79–82 political conditions impact on, 41–43 remittances from migrants and, 10–12, 129–35 economic expectations, bilateral migration modeling and, 68–69 economic self-interest
New Economics of Labor Migration (NELM) models and, 22–23 voluntary migration and, 21–23 economic statecraft immigration restriction and, 168–71 remittance increases and, 181–87
The Economic Consequences of Peace (Keynes), 4–5 education levels in co-ethnic networks, 115–18 economic migration models and, 22–23 intention to emigrate and, 38–41, 52–56 political motives for migration and, 28–29, 52–56

Index
Index

robustness of co-ethnic networks in, 109–13
Global South
diaspora engagement in, 135–36
global migration analysis and, 77–82 inter-region migration and, 210–11 migration from, 5–7, 22–23 remittance flows and, 149–50
robustness of co-ethnic networks in, 109–13
Goldring, Luin, 139–40
Gould, David M., 10
governance
diaspora engagement and, 135–50
global migration analysis and role of, 78
political motives for migration and,
26–29, 211–13
remittances’ impact on, 134–35
Graham, Benjamin A. T., 95 gravity models
bilateral migration modeling, 64–70
of international transactions, 97–98, 102–5
of migration, 8
greenfield investment, 101–2
Greif, Avner, 9–10, 95
Grinblatt, Mark, 97n.4
gross domestic product (GDP) per capita bilateral migration modeling, 68–69, 79–82
foreign investment as share of, 92–95 remittances as share of, 130–33, 141–45 unauthorized immigration and, 178–81
Grzymala-Busse, Anna, 77–78 guest worker programs economic statecraft and remittance increases and, 181–87, 190–91
H-2B visa program (US), 184–87 postwar migration trends and, 5–7
remittances and, 171–87
Guimarães, Paulo, 69–70
H1-B visa program (US), 184–87
H2-B visa program (US), 184–87
Hague Convention on Certain Questions Relating to the Conflict of Nationality Laws (1910), 135–36
Hatton, Timothy J., 58
Helms, Benjamin, 77–82, 171–87
heterogeneity in international investment, 101–2, 113–18
Hirschman, Alberto O., 26–29, 130 historical factors, bilateral migration modeling, 69
Hoffmann, Bert, 136
Hollifield, James F., 190–91
home bias, in international investment, 96–98
host countries
dual citizenship policies and, 135–36
labor shortages in, 205
migration effects on, 10 political tools in, 203 household-level migration model, 22–23
Huber, John, 66–68
Huberman, Gur, 97n.4
Hughes, Samuel, 100, 119
human capital
political motives for migration and,
28–29
remittances and, 133–35
Indian diaspora
coeconomic investment patterns and,
99–100
Indian Ministry of Overseas Indian Affairs and, 140–41 individual agency, migration and, 8–9, 16–19
Inesta Sanpaolo, 206n.2
information asymmetries coeconomic reduction of, 100–2, 119 migration impact on, 95
Inglehart, Ronald, 66–68
Institution for Employment Research (IAB, Germany), Brain Drain Database, 74–77
institutions
coeconomic networks as substitutes for, 116–21
confidence scores for, 33–34 for diaspora engagement, 135–59, 162–67
international investment and, 91–96, 128
political motives for migration and strength of, 28–29
remittance attraction and role of, 141–45, 162–65
intentions measurement, decision-making models for migration, 30–31
Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), 204
Index

254 internal migration, 7–8 international agreements, immigration and lack of, 5–7 international asymmetries, home bias in international investment, 96–98 international capital asset pricing model (ICAPM), 96–98 international investment co-ethnic networks as institution substitutes, 109–13, 116–23

determinants of, 96–98
dual citizenship and, 205, 214 educated migrants and, 115–18 empirical model, 105–10 global migration and, 91–96, 206–7
heterogeneous investment, 113–18
institutional strength and, 119, 128 migrant networks and, 98–118 remittances as share of GDP compared with, 110–13 research design, 102–5
International investment, social networks’ role in, 98–102
International Monetary Fund (IMF), 5, 91–96
Coordinated Direct Investment Survey, 102–5
Coordinated Portfolio Investment Survey, 102–5 International Organization for Migration (IOM), 2–3 international trade model, migration and, 9–10, 173 intolerance and hostility levels, migrants’ perceptions of, 62 Irish Abroad Unit (Ireland), 140–41
Itzigsohn, José, 139–40
Javorka, Beata S., 95
Jones-Correa, Michael, 147
Jus solis principle, 65n.1
Kang, Jun-Koo, 96–98
Kapur, Devesh, 99–100
Kausal, Neeraj, 182–84
Keloharju, Matti, 97n.4
Keohane, Robert O., 123–24
Keynes, John Maynard, 4–5
Korean diaspora, international investment by, 98–99
Kossoudji, Sherrie A., 182–84 Kugler, Maurice, 95
labor agreements, postwar migration trends and, 5–7 labor markets
COVID-19 pandemic and, 201–3 entry policies for migrants and, 67–68 host country labor shortages and, 205 immigration and globalization of, 91n.6, 201–3 micro-level mechanisms in, 187–90 migrant access to, 171–87
New Economics of Labor Migration (NELM) models and, 22–23 remittances and access to, 181–87, 190–91, 196 unauthorized immigration crackdowns impact on, 179n.12, 180–81 visa policies and, 185–87 labor migration defined, 12
dual citizenship policies and, 135–36
global migration analysis and, 78 political rights and, 83 Lane, Philip R., 97–98, 102–3 language fluency economic benefits for migrants with, 60–61, 69
education levels of migrants and, 74–77
gravity model of financial transactions and, 102–5 language requirements
bilateral migration models and, 65–66, 70–72 citizenship access and, 62–64 education levels of migrants, 74–77 migration intent and, 62–63
League of Nations, 135–36
Levintal, Oren, 95
linear probability model, motivations for migration, 35–36 Linebarger, Christopher, 171–73 linguistic distance or similarity, as migration determinant, 60–61 lobbying capacity, diaspora institutions and, 133–39 Loungani, Prakash, 97–98
Lubbers, Marcel, 66–68
© in this web service Cambridge University Press & Assessment www.cambridge.org
Index

Lucas Paradox, 92
Luengnaruemitchai, Pipat, 97–98, 102
Luzzatti, Luigi, 129–30
Maghrebi traders, 9–10, 95
Masayoshi Son, 98–99
Massey, Douglas S., 48
material wellbeing, remittances’ impact on, 187–90
Mayda, Anna Maria, 67–68
Mayer, Thierry, 102–5
Mazzolari, Francesca, 147
McHale, John, 99–100
McKenzie, David, 184
Menozzi, Paolo, 102–3
mergers and acquisitions, international investment and, 101–2 Mexico
Bracero program and, 181–87
diaspora institutions in, 150–59 dual citizenship policies in, 143, 149–50 impact of remittances in, 174–75 migrant flows
from Africa, 60–64
bilateral migration modeling, 64–70, 77–82, 175–77
capital flow and, 14, 91–96, 206
Danish immigration policies and, 71–72 defined, 6n.3
education levels and political openness in destination countries, 74–77
intra-European flows, 60–64 OECD countries’ political rights and, 84–88 regional flows, 16–19
migrant stocks
bilateral migration models and, 77–82
education levels and, 74–77
global migration and, 2–3 measurement of, 12
remittances and, 175–77
social networks’ impact on, 69 migration. See also bilateral migration by country corridors, 5–7 economic motivations for, 21–23 future of globalization and, 201–3 future research issues in, 208–11 globalization and, 3–5, 14, 95, 211–13 history of, 1–4
individual motivations for, 14, 16–19
measurements of, 12
motivations for, 19–20
political roots of, 26–29 regional flows of, 16–19 sociological models, 23–26 statistical trends in, 2–3 migration diplomacy scholarship, remittances and, 190–91 Milesi-Ferretti, Gian Maria, 97–98, 102
Miller, Douglas L., 105–6
Miller, Michael K., 130 mobility, migration and, 16–19, 26–29 political conditions and, 79–82 modernization theory, education and democracy in, 28–29 Mody, Ashoka, 97–98
monitoring requirements, principal-agent theory and diaspora institutions and, 151–54
Moraga, Jesús Fernández-Huertas, 69–70
Morocco, diaspora institutions in, 150–59
Morten, Melanie, 184
Moskowitz, Tobias J., 97n.4
motivations for immigration decision-making models, 30–41
education levels and, 38–41
intentions and behaviors measurements, 30–31 political conditions, 14, 16–19, 32–36
Mundell, Robert A., 9–10
Nanes, Matthew, 171–73
National Front (France), 63–64
National Immigrant Survey of Spain (NIS), 145–50 nativist movements, restrictive immigration policies and, 171–73 naturalization process
diaspora engagement and, 139–40
dual citizenship and, 145–50 neoclassical migration models economic self-interest and, 21–23 trade flow increase and migration decrease in, 173 wage maximization in, 8
New Economics of Labor Migration (NELM) models, 8 voluntary migration and, 22–23
Newton, Isaac, 8
New Zealand First Party, 71–72
New Zealand immigration policy, bilateral immigration flows and, 71–72

© in this web service Cambridge University Press & Assessment www.cambridge.org
Norris, Pippa, 66–68
North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), 169, 173
Nye, Joseph S., 123–24
OECD migration data
bilateral migration modeling, 64–70
education levels and political openness in destination countries, 74–77 international investment in OECD countries, 115–118, 206–7 political rights and migration flows, 84–88 temporary visas and, 181–87
Ogulman, Nedim, 139–40
Oh, Yonghyup, 97–98
open immigration systems, in liberal democracies, 10 origin (home) countries
bilateral migration modeling, 64–70 demand for exit from, 171–73
diaspora institutions in, 151–54
dual citizenship policies and, 135–36
global migration analysis and, 79 impact of migration on, 10–12 political environment in, 83, 201–3 remittances as capital source in, 129–35
Ortega, Francesca, 67–68
Østergaard-Nielsen, Eva, 139–40
Padron Municipal (municipal registrar) (Spain), 145–50
Palop-García, Pau, 136
Panda, Sonal, 95, 113–18
Parsons, Christopher R., 10
Pedroza, Lusy, 136
Peri, Giovanni, 67–68
personal capital, migration and flow of, 14 Peters, Margaret E., 10, 130 physical border controls, restrictive immigration policies and, 171–73
physical distance
dyadic investment and, 106–10 international investment and role of, 97–98, 102–5, 125 as migration determinant, 58, 60–61 physical safety perception scores for, 34–35, 38–41
political motives for migration and, 26–29 Piazza, Alberto, 102–5
political conditions
in bilateral migration modeling, 65–66, 70–72 in decision-making models for migration, 32–36, 38–41 de jure vs. de facto conditions, 63–64
in destination countries, 61, 65–66 destinations for migrants and, 58–59 economic impact of immigration restriction and, 168–71 education levels and political openness in destination countries, 74–77 emigration intentions and, 36–38, 48–50 emigration preparations and, 50–52
global migration analysis and, 79
international investment and, 128 migration and, 14, 16–19, 26–29, 201–3 moderating effects on emigration intention, 41–43 remittances’ impact on, 113–35, 190–91
restrictive immigration policies and, 171–73, 211–13 political engagement, migration motivation and, 28–29 political rights. See also political conditions bilateral migration models and, 72–73, 83 global perspective on migration and, 77–82 migrants’ perceptions of and migration intent, 62 OECD countries’ migration flows and, 84–88 restrictive immigration policies and, 171–73
polyarchy measurements global migration analysis, 78 of institutions, 119 polychoric principal components analysis, decision-making models for migration, 32–16 populist party data, anti-immigrant sentiment analysis and, 77–82 Portes, Alejandro, 97n.4, 97–98 portfolio risk
institutional strength and, 119
international investment and, 96–98
Poterba, James M., 96–98
poverty alleviation, remittances from migrants and, 133–35 Poterba, James M., 96–98

predicted bilateral emigration rate, remittances and, 175–77 preparations assessment, decision-making models for migration, 30–31 principal-agent theory, diaspora institution creation and, 151–54 Prinz, Vanessa, 62
pseudo-Poisson maximum likelihood (PPML) estimator
bilateral migration modeling, 69–70, 74–77
international investment and, 207 remittances and bilateral immigration, 175–77 unauthorized immigration and, 180–81
public goods
government failure to deliver, 16–19, 26–29 migration impact in origin countries on, 10–12 remittance receipts and, 134–35, 173–81, 187–90 satisfaction with, measurements of, 14, 33 radical right-wing parties anti-immigration politics and, 211–13 bilateral migration modeling and, 66–68, 70–72 COVID-19 and mobilization of, 204–5
education levels of migrants and, 74–77 negative economic effects of rise in, 168–71, 207–8 Rapoport, Hillel, 95
Rauch, James E., 10, 95, 100–1, 106–10, 113–18
Ravenstein, Ernst Georg, 8, 58
Razin, Assaf, 97–98
refugee migrants
data on, 3–7
global migration analysis and, 78 sociological studies of, 44–45, 209–10 remittances authorized migration and, 175–77 bilateral migration and, 175–77, 190–92 causes and consequences of, 133–35
diaspora engagement and, 131–33, 141–50
dual citizenship and, 145–50, 161–62
economic impact of, 130–33, 142–43 economic statecraft and increase in, 181–87 external voting rights and, 162–65 future of, 204–5
H-2B visa program (US) and, 184–87 history and growth of, 129–30 immigration pressures and, 169–70 impact in origin countries of, 10–12 international investment patterns and, 98n.8 labor market access and, 196
macro-level analysis of, 141–45
micro-level analysis of, 145–50, 187–90 political impact of, 133–35, 190–91
restrictive immigration policies and, 173–81, 208–11 temporary worker visa programs and, 171–87 unauthorized migration and, 178–81, 195–96 visa policy and, 185–87 residency requirements
bilateral migration models and, 65–66, 70–72 education levels and routes to, 74–77 migrants’ perceptions of, 62–63 restrictive immigration policies increases in, 201–3 negative economic effects of, 168–71, 207–8 politics and, 171–73, 211–13 remittances as tool for, 173–81
Rey, Hélène, 97–98
Ricardo, David
Rivera-Batiz, Francisco L.
Rose, Andrew K.
Rivera-Batiz, Francisco L.
Rosen, Andrew K., 97–98
Santos Silva, J. M. C., 69–70
Schengen Area membership, bilateral migration modeling and, 67–68
Schon, Justin, 171–73
Schulte, Bettina, 100
Schüttler, Kirsten, 98–99
scientific populism, 204–5 self-interest, remittances and, 133–35
Shain, Yossi, 139–40
Shin Kyuk-ho, 98–99
skill levels, economic migration models and, 22–23 Smith, Adam, 7–8
social networks. See also co-ethnic networks bilateral migration and, 61, 69 social networks. (cont.) international investment and role of, 98–118 migration and role of, 8–9 political factors in emigration intention and, 41–43, 57 sociological migration models, 23–26 unauthorized migration and role of, 179–80 sociological migration models, 23–26
South Korea, international investment in, 98–99 Spain, remittances and diaspora engagement in, 145–50 specialization, migration and role of, 9
Spiegel, Mark M., 97–98
Spolaore, Enrico, 104 standard of living, emigration intention and declines in, 41–43, 56–57 state-diaspora relations, scholarship on, 137–39 stocks of migration, defined, 6n.3
Stulz, Rene M., 96–98
Swiss People’s Party, 63–64
tapping strategies, diaspora engagement and, 150–59 Teets, Jessica C., 65–68
telephone traffic, international investment and, 97–98 Temporary Protected Status (TPS) policy (US), 171–87, 190–91 temporary worker programs, 171–87, 210–11 Tenreyro, Silvana, 69–70
Tesar, Linda J., 96–98
trade flows immigration reduction and, 168–71 migration patterns and, 9–10, 177–81 transaction costs, co-ethnic reduction of, 100–2 transnational social networks. See social networks remittance flows and, 149–50
state-diaspora relations and, 137–39
Trindade, Vitor, 10, 95, 100–1, 106–10, 113–18
Trump, Donald, 203, 207–8, 211–13
United Nations migration data bilateral migration modeling, 64–70 diaspora engagement and, 137
United Nations Population Division (UNPD), 102–5 global migration data from, 5–7
United Nations Refugee Convention, 209–10
United Nations Security Council, diaspora engagement and membership in, 155 United States H2-B visa program, 184–87 immigration restriction in, 169 unauthorized immigration and remittances in, 178–81 V-Dem, 78
polyarchy measurements using, 119 remittance analysis, 142 venture capital, international investment and, 101–2 Vink, Maarten, 147, 205 visa policy, remittances and, 185–87 voluntary immobility, political motives for migration and, 26–29, 211–13 voluntary migration, 19–20 decision-making models and, 30–31 Wacziarg, Romain, 104
wage maximization models
bilateral migration and, 60–64 migration based on, 8, 21–23
remittance increases and, 184
Wang, Hongying, 96
Wang, Miao, 98
Weidenbaum, Murray, 100, 119 welfare services, political motives for migration and, 26–29 Wellman, Elizabeth, 140
Werner, Ingrid M., 96–98
Williamson, Jeffrey G., 58
Winters, L. Alan, 10
World Bank bilateral remittance matrices, 175–77 development indicators, 68–69, 141–45 World Development Indicators (WDI) (World Bank), 68–69, 141–45 unauthorized immigration and, 178–81
Index

World Population Policies (United Nations), 137 World Trade Organization (WTO), 91–96
General Agreement on Trade in Services, 209
World Values Survey (WVS), 105
Yang, Dean, 142

Zeitz, Alexandra O., 95, 129–30
Zellner, Arnold, 113–18
Zimmermann, Klaus, 147–49
Zipf, George, 8
Zylkin, Tom, 69–70

Index 259