

Contents

Acknowledgements	page ix
List of Abbreviations	xi
Introduction	I
1.1 Questions and Objectives	1
1.2 Pessimistic Poets, Optimistic Philosophers?	8
1.3 The Analytic Toolbox	12
1.4 The Contemporary Discourse and the Ancient Views	20
1.5 Some Background Assumptions of Ancient Theories	27
1.6 The Approach	32
1 Plato on Making Life Worth Living by Doing One's Job	34
1.1 Happy Life and Life Worth Living	34
1.2 The Unexamined Life Is Not Worth Living	36
1.3 Death Better than Life with a Corrupted Soul	40
1.4 Why Is a Good Carpenter's Life Worth Living?	49
1.5 Bad Use of the Soul and the Value of Mere Living	55
1.6 The Unexamined Life Reconsidered	58
1.7 Retrospect and Prospect	60
2 Aristotle on the Natural Goodness of Life	63
2.1 Three-Level Axiology of Life	63
2.2 Eudaimonia , or the Life Most Worth Living	66
2.3 Life Is Fine	70
2.4 The Good versus the Mere Exercise of Function	77
2.5 Lives Not Worth Living	85
2.6 Unhappy Lives Worth Living	91
2.7 Practical Implications of Choosing Life	94
2.8 Jellyfish and Humans: Plato and Aristotle on Life Worth Living	95
3 Decoupling Happy Life from Life Worth Living in Stoicism	99
3.1 Two Ways of Doing Well	99
3.2 Happiness, Virtue and Indifferent Things	103
3.3 Life Worth Continuing	113
3.4 Life Worth Beginning	124

viii	Contents
3.5	Mere Living As a Preferred Indifferent	127
3.6	The Necessary Meaningfulness of the Human Life	130
3.7	Stoics and Aristotle on Life Worth Living	132
4	Threshold Nears the Target: Hellenistic Hedonists on the Life Worth Living	135
4.1	Ancient Hedonists As Optimists?	135
4.2	Hegesias the Cyrenaic: Threshold as the Target	138
4.3	Epicureans on Happiness and Death	141
4.4	The Axiological Dominance of Ataraxia	151
4.5	The Life Worth Continuing	155
4.6	Epicureans and the Value of Mere Living	159
4.7	No Life Worth Living without Philosophy	160
5	Peripatetics on Vicious Humans and Caged Animals	164
5.1	Introducing Later Peripatetics	164
5.2	Peripatetic Happiness After Aristotle	168
5.3	Life as an Intrinsic Conditional Good	178
5.4	Lives Not Worth Living	183
5.5	Unhappy Life Worth Living, or the Decent Life	190
5.6	No Life Worth Living without Freedom	193
6	Plotinus on the Worth of Embodied Existence	195
6.1	Competing Perspectives on the Value of Embodied Life	195
6.2	Metaphysical Fundamentals	200
6.3	Happiness as the Abundance of Life	205
6.4	Life Worth Beginning	212
6.5	Life Worth Continuing	218
6.6	Plotinus, Plato, the Stoics and Aristotle on the Value of (Mere) Life	221
	Conclusions	224
	C.1 Philosophers and the Poets	224
	C.2 Ancients and Moderns	230
	Bibliography	233
	Index Locorum	247
	Subject Index	251