

The Micro-Sociology of Peace and Conflict

How do micro-interactions of resistance, fighting, and dialogue shape larger patterns of peace and conflict? How can nonviolent resistance, conflict transformation, and diplomacy be analyzed in micro-detail? Exploring these questions, Isabel Bramsen introduces micro-sociology to peace research and International Relations. Breaking new methodological, empirical, and theoretical ground, Bramsen develops a novel theoretical and analytical framework for analyzing micro-dynamics of peace and conflict. The book features chapters on the methods of micro-sociology (including video data analysis) as well as analytical chapters on violence, nonviolence, conflict transformation, peace talks, and international meetings. It is at once broad and specific, analyzing a wide variety of phenomena and cases, while also introducing very specific lenses to analyzing peace and conflict. Presenting a highly practical and micro-detailed approach, The Micro-Sociology of Peace and Conflict will be of use to students, researchers, practitioners, activists, and diplomats interested in understanding and addressing contemporary conflicts. This title is also available as open access on Cambridge Core.

ISABEL BRAMSEN is Associate Professor and Director of Peace and Conflict Studies at Lund University, Sweden. She is a member of Nordic Women Mediators (NWM), Chair of the board of Peace Research Sweden (PRIS), Chair of the Council for International Conflict Resolution (RIKO), and a mediator at the Centre for Conflict Resolution (CFK).

The Micro-Sociology of Peace and Conflict

ISABEL BRAMSEN
Lund University

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
 978-1-009-28266-6 — The Micro-Sociology of Peace and Conflict
 Isabel Bramsen
 Frontmatter
More Information

CAMBRIDGE
 UNIVERSITY PRESS

Shaftesbury Road, Cambridge CB2 8EA, United Kingdom
 One Liberty Plaza, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10006, USA
 477 Williamstown Road, Port Melbourne, VIC 3207, Australia
 314–321, 3rd Floor, Plot 3, Splendor Forum, Jasola District Centre, New Delhi – 110025, India
 103 Penang Road, #05–06/07, Visioncrest Commercial, Singapore 238467

Cambridge University Press is part of Cambridge University Press & Assessment, a department of the University of Cambridge.

We share the University's mission to contribute to society through the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org
 Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781009282666
 DOI: 10.1017/9781009282710

© Isabel Bramsen 2024

This work is in copyright. It is subject to statutory exceptions and to the provisions of relevant licensing agreements; with the exception of the Creative Commons version the link for which is provided below, no reproduction of any part of this work may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

An online version of this work is published at <http://dx.doi.org/10.1010/9781009282710> under a Creative Commons Open Access license CC-BY-NC 4.0 which permits re-use, distribution and reproduction in any medium for non-commercial purposes providing appropriate credit to the original work is given and any changes made are indicated. To view this license, visit <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc/4.0>

All versions of this work may contain content reproduced under license from third parties. Permission to reproduce this third-party content must be obtained from these third-parties directly. When citing this work, please include a reference to the
 DOI: 10.1010/9781009282710

First published 2024
 First paperback edition 2025

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication data

Names: Bramsen, Isabel, author.

Title: The micro-sociology of peace and conflict / Isabel Bramsen, Lund University.

Description: United Kingdom ; New York, NY : Cambridge University Press, [2023] |

Includes bibliographical references and index.

Identifiers: LCCN 2023009618 (print) | LCCN 2023009619 (ebook) | ISBN 9781009282697
 (hardback) | ISBN 9781009282666 (paperback) | ISBN 9781009282710 (epub)

Subjects: Peace-building–Social aspects–Case studies. | Conflict management–Social aspects–Case studies. | Peace-building–International cooperation–Case studies. | Conflict management–
 International cooperation–Case studies. | Violence–Social aspects–Case studies.

Classification: LCC JZ5538 .B72 2023 (print) | LCC JZ5538 (ebook) | DDC 327.1/720723–dc23/
 eng/20230309

LC record available at <https://lccn.loc.gov/2023009618>

LC ebook record available at <https://lccn.loc.gov/2023009619>

ISBN 978-1-009-28269-7 Hardback

ISBN 978-1-009-28266-6 Paperback

Cambridge University Press & Assessment has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Contents

List of Images	page vi
List of Figures	viii
List of Tables	ix
Acknowledgments	x
List of Abbreviations	xiii
Introduction	1
1 The Theory of Micro-sociology	18
2 The Methods and Methodology of Micro-sociology	53
3 The Micro-sociology of Violence	78
4 The Micro-sociology of Nonviolent Resistance	104
5 The Micro-sociology of Conflict Transformation	132
6 The Micro-sociology of Peace Talks	159
7 The Micro-sociology of International Meetings	187
Conclusion	218
References	225
Index	252

Images

1.1 Demonstration in Bahrain 2011 (Bahrain Viewbook, https://bahrain.viewbook.com/)	page 32
1.2 Low-intensity interaction in protests (Screenshot from video recorded by the author)	35
1.3 Putin allows his dog at the press conference with Merkel in 2007 (TT News Agency)	36
1.4 An Israeli Soldier and Palestinian man mirroring each other in a conflict interaction ritual (TT News Agency)	39
3.1 Tunisian protesters are attacked while running away (AFP)	88
4.1 Zainab al-Khawaja resisting arrest (Photo by Mazen Mahdi)	123
5.1 Robert Cooper takes off his glasses to signal that the parties have gone too far (by Karen Stokkendal Poulsen)	141
5.2 Robert Cooper applies humor to soften up relations between the parties (by Marie Billegrav)	148
5.3 Members of the Northern Ireland Assembly, including Allister, laughing about Allister sparing the other members of his intervention (Northern Ireland Assembly Commission)	150
5.4 DUP support Maskey as speaker yet deliberately resist clapping as he is elected (Northern Ireland Assembly Commission)	155
6.1 Cheerful interaction at the negotiation table (OPPAP)	163
6.2 Disengaged interaction at the negotiation table (OPPAP)	167
6.3 Coffee break at the third round of the Philippine peace talks 2017, at the hotel lobby in Rome (OPPAP)	169

List of Images	vii
6.4 Turkey–Russia–Ukraine Trilateral Foreign Ministers Meeting on March 3, 2022 (TT News Agency)	178
6.5 Turkey–Russia–Ukraine Trilateral Foreign Ministers Meeting on March 10, 2022 (TT News Agency)	178
7.1 Moon Jae-in and Kim Jong Un meet for the first time and cross the North–South Korean border hand in hand (TT News Agency)	192
7.2 Handshake between Donald Trump and Justin Trudeau (TT News Agency)	197
7.3 Screenshot from video portraying conflict between Israeli and Palestinian representatives in the UN Security Council 2018 (UN Web-TV)	201
7.4 Von der Leyen is not offered a chair at the meeting with Erdoğan (TT News Agency)	204
7.5 Von der Leyen struggling to sit up straight in the soft sofa (TT News Agency)	204
7.6 Ugandan Minister of Foreign Affairs Odongo does not shake Von der Leyen’s hand (EU debates – eudebates.tv)	206

Figures

1.1 Collins’ model of interaction ritual	page 23
1.2 Friendly interaction	31
1.3 Low-intensity interaction	34
1.4 Domination interaction	36
1.5 Conflictual interaction	40
3.1 De-energized man after dominant interaction at a Palestinian checkpoint (Drawing by the author)	82
3.2 Ingredients and dynamics of violent situations	102
4.1 Energizing spiral of nonviolent resistance	114
4.2 Bahraini riot police unable to dominate a situation and refrain from hitting a shouting protester (Drawing by the author)	118
5.1 Vertical and horizontal relations on three tracks	134
6.1 Spaces of peace talks	165
6.2 Degrees of rigidity and stiffness in peace talks	177

Tables

2.1 Three micro-sociological research strategies	page 59
2.2 Data, methods, and case studies in the book	75

Acknowledgments

Just as peace and conflict emerge from a web of interactions, this book has been produced in interaction with numerous people, including activists, diplomats, academics, and friends. More than 100 years ago, Peirce and Ketner (1992 [1898], 76) wrote that ideas often emerge out of “conversations with all sorts of people,” but unfortunately “interesting people are as hard to find as interesting books.” Luckily, I have been surrounded by many not only interesting but also genuinely inspiring and brilliant people throughout my career. Many of the ideas in this book have emerged from conversations and collaborations with these people. As will become obvious throughout the book, I am in great intellectual debt to Randall Collins. Through personal conversations and a continuous willingness to discuss aspects of his theory, Collins has contributed both directly and indirectly to the production of this book, while at the same time proving true his own hypothesis about academic life: the importance of social bonds between scholars and the immense benefits of being close to “intellectual stars” (Collins 2009a). Another source of inspiration whose “stardust” has been critical for developing the ideas and thinking for this book is Ole Wæver. I am very grateful for the hours of inspiring, mindboggling dialogue on the nature and characteristics of conflict and peace that we have had. Similarly, many of the ideas for this book have emerged out of continuous discussions with Simone Molin Friis on the nature of violence and Lisa Strömbom on the dynamics of conflict transformation. I am grateful indeed to be surrounded by such great minds.

Some of the empirical, theoretical, and methodological content of the book has been produced for other projects in collaborations with others. Poul Poder opened my eyes to the fruits of Randall Collins’ theoretical garden, and many of the ideas presented in this book have emerged out of our collaboration on emotions and conflict. Similarly, my work on developing video data analysis (VDA) in relation to peace research and International Relations has been carried out in collaboration with Jonathan Austin. Empirically, the observations on Nordic Women Mediator meetings and some of the interviews with participants in peace diplomacy have been conducted with my “partner in peace,” Anine Hageman, and my study of the Colombian National Dialogue has been conducted together with Maria del Mar Morales. These collaborations have been extremely valuable to me, and I am grateful for having been allowed to publish parts of our findings in this book.

Acknowledgments

xi

I also want to extend my sincere gratitude to Rasmus Nørlem Sørensen, who graciously agreed to spend his summer holiday reading and commenting on the manuscript to this book in its entirety. Many other colleagues and friends have contributed tremendously with brainstorming idea development, theoretical and empirical discussions, and constructive feedback. In particular, I would like to thank Karin Aggestam, Andreas Hirblinger, Roger Mac Ginty, Gustav Agnemann, Annika Björkdahl, Annika Bergman, Wendy Pearlman, Anne Nassauer, Oliver Ramsbotham, Sara Dybris McQuaid, Vincent Pouliot, Lasse Liebst, Kristoffer Lidén, Nickolas Wheeler, Rebecca Adler Nissen, Lisa Strömbom, Lene Hansen, Jenny Lorentzen, Mette Juel Madsen, Anne Lene Stein, Nicholas Wheeler, and Marcus Holmes. Likewise, several research groups have provided invaluable comments on chapters of the book, including the Peace and Conflict group at Lund University, the Research Group on Dialogic Communication at Roskilde University, the IR group at the University of Copenhagen, and the Trust in World Politics network, currently facilitated by the Institute for Conflict, Cooperation and Security at the University of Birmingham. I am also very grateful for the magic and copyediting that Jon Jay Neufeld did to the manuscript.

The core of the book consists of empirical, micro-sociological observations, most of which would not be possible without the openness and helpfulness from numerous interlocutors from the Philippines, Bahrain, Syria, Tunisia, Colombia, and across the globe. I appreciate all of the detailed and at times deeply personal accounts that my informants have shared with me. Many people have risked their lives to talk with me, opened their homes for me to stay overnight, or driven me around to show me the realities of their everyday lives. Special thanks to Elisabeth Slåttum, the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Philippine government, and the CPP/NDFP, who allowed me to attend the Philippine peace talks, which provided unique insights into how peace talks work, for which I am forever grateful. Also, I would like to extend a special thanks to Karen Stokkendal Poulsen who gave me access to the large amount of raw data from her documentary The Agreement.

The Centre for Resolution of International Conflict (CRIC) at the University of Copenhagen and Peace and Conflict Studies at Lund University have provided the perfect research environments for developing and nurturing the book. I am so grateful for all of the help I have received from these two institutions, including various assistants who have helped throughout the writing process. I would also like to thank the many students who have helped me develop my thinking on conflict, violence, and peace by asking good questions, forcing me to present the arguments in a straightforward manner, and honing inspirational case studies.

Perhaps most importantly, I am also deeply grateful for the support and understanding that I have received from my two daughters, Vilma Fri and Ingvild. Lying in bed with you while waiting for you to fall asleep at night has provided the perfect space to develop ideas, and drawing with you has provided the space to sketch models for the book. As evident in these two examples, you have put up with a great deal of absentmindedness, and for that I am very thankful. But I am of course most grateful for all of the joy and love preventing any cynicism that might otherwise arise from working with issues of war and violence. I would also like to thank my dear husband for the many conversations we have had on the ideas and concepts in this book and for always saying yes to whatever work-related opportunity I might suggest.

Finally, I would like to thank the journals that graciously allowed me to include in this book parts of content that I have previously published with them: International Affairs, Conflict Resolution Quarterly, Third World Quarterly, Peace & Change, International Journal of Conflict and Violence, Psychology of Violence, Journal of Resistance Studies, and Conflict, Security & Development.

Abbreviations

AU	African Union
CPP	Communist Party of the Philippines
DUP	Democratic Unionist Party
EU	European Union
FARC	Fuerzas Armadas Revolucionarias de Colombia (The Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia)
GDPR	General Data Protection Regulation
GUI	graphical user interface
IR	International Relations
IRA	Irish Republican Army
MILF	Moro Islamic Liberation Front
MINURSO	United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara
NATO	North Atlantic Treaty Organization
NDFP	The National Democratic Front of the Philippines
NGO	nongovernmental organization
NWM	Nordic Women Mediators
OPAPP	Office of the Presidential Advisor on the Peace Process
UN	United Nations
US(A)	United States (of America)
UNSC	United Nations Security Council
VDA	video data analysis