Modern Rwanda

Rwanda has been the subject of much research following the genocide against the Tutsi ethnic group in 1994. Moving beyond recent histories which examine Rwanda's past predominantly through the lens of this tragic event, Filip Reyntjens utilises a longue durée framework to provide new insights into historical developments over the last 150 years. Tracking the foundations of modern Rwanda from the mid nineteenth century to the present day, this book offers the first comprehensive examination of both the political continuities and ruptures which have shaped the country. Reyntjens examines the nineteenth-century precolonial polity; colonisation from the end of the nineteenth century; the revolution of 1959–1961, followed by independence in 1962; and the 1994 genocide, followed by the seizure of power by the Rwandan Patriotic Front. Across these periods of dramatic transition, this study demonstrates the role of both political constancy and change, allowing readers to reshape their understanding of Rwanda's political history.

Filip Reyntjens is Professor Emeritus of Law and Politics at the University of Antwerp. He has specialised in the law and politics of Sub-Saharan Africa, particularly the Great Lakes Region, for over forty years. Previous publications include The Great African War: Congo and Regional Geopolitics, 1996–2006 (Cambridge University Press, 2009), Political Governance in Post-genocide Rwanda (Cambridge University Press, 2013) and Le génocide des Tutsi au Rwanda (Presses universitaires de France, 2017, 2021).
