

CONTENTS

List of tables, figures and boxes	xvi
List of contributors	xxi
Preface and acknowledgements	xxv
Guide to online instructor resources	xxvii

Introduction: The origins and changing agendas of international relations	1
Richard Devetak
Introduction	2
What are international relations?	2
International Relations as a discipline: Traditions, origins and evolution	5
Traditions of thought	6
Origins and evolution of the discipline	9
Globalising International Relations	11
Changing agendas: Theory and practice	12
From states, war and law to globalisation and global challenges	14
Conclusion	17
Discussion questions	17
Further reading	17

PART 1 THEORIES OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS 20

1 International Relations theory in an age of critical diversity	22
Jim George
Introduction	22
The need for theory	23
The search for (scientific) certainty in International Relations:
Issues of ontology and epistemology	24
Mainstream International Relations theory	25
Liberalism, realism and the war in Ukraine	27
The age of critical diversity	29
Conclusion	32
Discussion questions	32
Further reading	32
2 Liberalism	34
Liane Hartnett
Introduction	34
What is liberalism?	35
Liberalism and empire	37

The interwar years	39
The Cold War and the 'new world order'	41
Conclusion	44
Discussion questions	44
Further reading	45
3 Realism	46
Michele Chiaruzzi
Introduction	46
Who are the realists? Genesis of a tradition of thought	47
What is realism? Synthesising theory and practice	54
Conclusion	56
Discussion questions	57
Further reading	57
4 Marxism and critical theory	58
Jim George and Richard Devetak
Introduction	58
Historical and intellectual context: Marx and the critique of capitalism	59
Marxism as historical materialism	60
Marxism in International Relations	61
Critical Theory and International Relations	62
Gramscian critical theory	66
Explaining the current political order: Hegemony, organic crisis and 'interregnum'	67
Conclusion	68
Discussion questions	69
Further reading	69
5 Feminism	70
Katrina Lee-Koo
Introduction	70
Feminist interventions into international relations	71
The feminist International Relations agenda	72
Challenging the masculine bias in International Relations	74
Where are the women?	75
Reconstructing international relations through analysing gender relations	76
Gendered institutions	77
Feminist theories of International Relations	78
Conclusion: What does feminism add to our study of International Relations?	81
Discussion questions	81
Further reading	82

6	Postmodernism	83
	Roland Bleiker
	Introduction	83
	Postmodernity as a new historical period	84
	Postmodernism as a critical way of understanding modernity	85
	The emergence of the third debate in International Relations scholarship	89
	Polemical critiques and the legacy of postmodernism	91
	Conclusion	92
	Discussion questions	93
	Further reading	94
7	Constructivism	95
	Patrick Thaddeus Jackson and Sujin Heo
	Introduction	95
	What does constructivism do? Identity and international institutions	96
	Constructivism's understanding of change in the international system	101
	Identity and governance	104
	International conflict and security communities	105
	Conclusion	106
	Discussion questions	107
	Further reading	107
8	Postcolonialism	108
	Giorgio Shani
	Introduction	108
	Postcolonialism in an historical context	110
	Key concepts, questions and thinkers	111
	Postcolonial International Relations?	113
	Conclusion	117
	Discussion questions	118
	Further reading	118

PART 2 INTERNATIONAL HISTORY 120

9	The global expansion of international society	122
	Shogo Suzuki
	Introduction	122
	International society and its expansion: Insights from the English School of International Relations	124
	Postcard: Indigeneity and IR by Mary Graham and Morgan Brigg	125
	The expansion of international society	127

Civilisation at gunpoint: Questioning the rosy vision of the expansion of international society	130
The expansion of international society: An unfinished project?	132
Conclusion	134
Discussion questions	134
Further reading	135
10 From the ‘Great War’ to World War II	136
Louise Fawcett
Introduction	136
International history and International Relations	137
After World War II: The Paris Peace Conference	139
The League of Nations	141
The Soviet Union in International Relations	143
The United States and interwar order	144
The Great Depression	145
Asia’s rise	146
Hitler’s world	146
Appeasement and the roads to World War II	147
Conclusion: Reflections on the ‘great’ interwar era	148
Discussion questions	148
Further reading	149
11 The Cold War and after	150
Nick Bisley
Introduction	150
The Cold War begins: 1945–53	151
The Cold War spreads: 1953–75	154
Détente and the ‘second’ Cold War: 1975–85	156
The end of the Cold War: 1985–91	156
The Cold War and International Relations	158
Postcard: Rising powers and transformations in the international order by Tom Chodor	160
Conclusion: Echoes of the Cold War	162
Discussion questions	164
Further reading	165
PART 3 THE TRADITIONAL AGENDA: STATES, WARS AND LAW	166
12 The modern state	168
Richard Devetak
Introduction	168
What is a state?	168

Origins of the modern state	171
The idea of the sovereign state	172
The triumph of the sovereign state: State-building as war-making	175
Whither the sovereign state?	179
Conclusion	180
Discussion questions	180
Further reading	180
13 Nations and nationalism	181
Gavin Mount
Introduction	181
Terminological debates	182
How nationalism shaped modern states and international society	184
Understanding nations and nationalism in International Relations	187
New nationalisms in contemporary world politics	188
Postcard: Nationalism, sovereignty and disintegration in the European Union by Ben Wellings	190
Pandemic nationalism	192
Conclusion	193
Discussion questions	194
Further reading	194
14 Security	195
Anthony Burke
Introduction	195
Security and insecurity in the early twenty-first century	195
Defining security	197
Key theories and concepts	198
Conclusion	205
Discussion questions	205
Further reading	205
15 Arms control and disarmament	207
Marianne Hanson
Introduction	207
What is arms control? What is disarmament? Why do states engage in these practices?	208
Arms control during the Cold War	209
Arms control after the Cold War	210
New initiatives in arms control: Conventional weapons	212
Arms control and disarmament in International Relations theory	214
Nuclear weapons: A special case?	215
Conclusion	219
Discussion questions	220
Further reading	220

16	The ethics and laws of war	221
	Alex J. Bellamy
	Introduction	221
	When is it right to fight (jus ad bellum)?	222
	How should war be waged (jus in bello)?	225
	Revisionism: Two judgements or one?	228
	Jus in bello dilemma: Suicide car bombs	230
	Conclusion	231
	Discussion questions	232
	Further reading	232
17	International law	233
	Sarah Percy
	Introduction	233
	Sources of international law	234
	Debates about international law	236
	Contemporary examples of international law	240
	Conclusion	243
	Discussion questions	244
	Further reading	244
18	Diplomacy	245
	Geoffrey Wiseman and Paul Sharp
	Introduction	245
	Defining diplomacy: What is diplomacy and who are the diplomats?	246
	The evolution of diplomacy	246
	Trends	253
	Diplomacy and the study of International Relations	255
	Conclusion	256
	Discussion questions	256
	Further reading	257
19	The United Nations	258
	Ian Hurd
	Introduction	258
	The United Nations in the Charter	259
	The United Nations' principal organs	260
	The United Nations as actor, forum and resource	266
	Conclusion	268
	Discussion questions	268
	Further reading	269

PART 4 THE NEW AGENDA: GLOBALISATION AND GLOBAL CHALLENGES

270

20	Non-state actors: A sociology of International Relations?	272
	James Goodman
	Introduction	272
	Multinational corporations: Transnationalised material power	274
	International non-governmental organisations: Transnationalised normative power	278
	Conclusion	281
	Discussion questions	283
	Further reading	283
21	Religion and secularism	284
	Elizabeth Shakman Hurd
	Introduction	284
	Religion and International Relations	285
	History of a concept: Secularism	287
	Secularism and world politics	288
	Rereading revolution: Politics of secularism in Iran	291
	Beyond the politics of 'secular versus religious'?	292
	Conclusion	293
	Discussion questions	294
	Further reading	294
22	Global economic institutions	296
	Marc Williams
	Introduction	296
	Perspectives on global economic institutions	297
	Global economic institutions and managing the global economy	298
	Global economic institutions and contemporary challenges	304
	Conclusion	307
	Discussion questions	308
	Further reading	308
23	Global trade and finance	309
	Maryanne Kelton, Leonard Seabrooke and Annika Stenström
	Introduction	309
	Who is afraid of the global economic system?	310
	The rise and fall of the Bretton Woods system	310
	Over-lending and trade conflicts: 1970s to 1980s	312
	Talking about architecture: 1990s to 2000s	314
	Credit booms, liquidity busts and low growth: The GFC to the present	315

Conclusion	318
Discussion questions	319
Further reading	319
24 Global poverty, inequality and development	320
Heloise Weber
Introduction	320
Global poverty and inequality: Politics of development	321
A relational approach to global poverty, inequality and development	323
The 2030 Sustainable Development Goals in context	327
Conclusion	330
Discussion questions	331
Further reading	331
25 Globalisation and its critics	333
Steven Slaughter
Introduction	333
Understanding globalisation	334
Public critiques of globalisation	338
Scholarly critiques of globalisation	342
Conclusion	343
Discussion questions	343
Further reading	344
26 Terrorism	345
Audrey Kurth Cronin
Introduction	345
When and why did this issue become important to the study of International Relations?	346
What are the major issues and debates in the study of terrorism?	348
What are the most useful concepts for understanding and analysing this topic?	352
What is at stake in this issue? Why and to whom does it matter?	356
Conclusion	357
Discussion questions	357
Further reading	357
27 The international politics of cyberspace	358
Tim Aistrope and Constance Duncombe
Introduction	358
From ARPANET to the World Wide Web	359
Cybersecurity and its limits	361
Tweeting International Relations	365

The rise of internet sovereignty	368
Conclusion	369
Discussion questions	369
Further reading	369
28 The changing character of warfare	370
Robert Ayson
Introduction	370
The diversity of warfare	371
Postcard: Infotech at war: Mapping the new intersection between media and conflict by Sebastian Kaempf	373
War as violence	375
War as organised violence	376
War and politics	377
War as a case of between	379
War as large scale	381
Postcard: Women in combat: The role of gender bias and myth in security policy by Megan Mackenzie	382
Conclusion	384
Discussion questions	384
Further reading	385
29 Post-conflict state-building	386
Beth K. Greener
Introduction	386
Understanding post-conflict state-building	387
The rise of post-conflict state-building	387
State-building and nation-building	390
The ideological politics of post-conflict state-building	391
Unpacking the post-conflict state-building agenda	392
The future of post-conflict state-building	395
Conclusion	396
Discussion questions	396
Further reading	397
30 Humanitarianism and armed intervention	398
Thomas G. Weiss
Introduction	398
The origins of humanitarianism	399
A short history of humanitarian intervention	402
The responsibility to protect	405
Postcard: Responsibility to Protect (R2P) and prevention of mass atrocities: Translating an emerging political norm from words to deeds by Noel Morada	408

Conclusion	412
Discussion questions	413
Further reading	413
31 Human rights	415
Anthony J. Langlois
Introduction	415
The historical development of an idea	417
The human rights idea today	419
The politics of liberal universalism	420
The future of human rights	424
Conclusion	425
Discussion questions	426
Further reading	426
32 Global public health	427
Adam Kamradt-Scott
Introduction	427
Why is global health important to the study of international relations?	428
What are the major issues and debates?	429
What are the most useful concepts for understanding and analysing global public health?	432
How will recent developments change our understanding of global public health?	434
Conclusion	437
Discussion questions	438
Further reading	438
33 Migration and refugees	439
Sara E. Davies and Thu Nguyen
Introduction	439
States, refugees and immigrants	440
Controlling migration: A brief history	440
The origins and purposes of refugee law	442
The distribution of refugees around the world	445
The present situation	449
Conclusion	451
Discussion questions	451
Further reading	451
34 Global environmental politics	453
Robyn Eckersley
Introduction	453
The rise of the environment as a global political problem	454
The study of global environmental politics	454

Key environmental discourses	455
International Relations theories of global environmental politics	460
Conclusion	464
Discussion questions	464
Further reading	465
35 Climate change	466
Peter Newell
Introduction	466
A brief history of climate change politics	468
The organisation of the negotiations	471
Explaining the global politics of climate change	473
Postcard: Planet politics by Stefanie Fishel and Anthony Burke	475
Conclusion	476
Discussion questions	478
Further reading	478
36 The futures of International Relations	479
Daniel R. McCarthy
Introduction	479
International Relations and complex global challenges	480
New directions in International Relations theory	482
Utopia, dystopia and the futures of International Relations	485
Conclusion	488
Discussion questions	488
Further reading	489
References	490
Index	549
Figure and text acknowledgements	563