

Be a More Productive Scholar

Some scholars are highly productive. They break new ground and do it again and again. Their names and ideas are ubiquitous in scientific journals and scholarly books. They scoff at “publish or perish.” To them, it’s “publish and flourish.” But how are they so productive, publishing hundreds of powerful works over their careers? Most graduate students, junior faculty, and even senior faculty have no idea. The methods of the productive are rarely taught and remain a hidden curriculum. Kenneth A. Kiewra interviewed dozens of productive scholars to uncover the hidden curriculum of scholarly success. Be a More Productive Scholar now reveals those productivity stories and methods by dispensing more than a hundred pointers for enhancing professional development and boosting scholarly productivity. Graduate students to seasoned scholars can benefit from this career-guiding advice.

KENNETH A. KIEWRA is John E. Weaver Professor in Educational Psychology at the University of Nebraska–Lincoln, USA. He has published six books and is listed among the top 2 percent of the most cited researchers worldwide. He has given more than five hundred invited presentations worldwide, and his teaching excellence has been recognized with numerous awards.

Acknowledgments

Thank you to those who helped shape Be a More Productive Scholar.

Foremost are my colleagues, my collaborators, who joined me in investigating productive scholars the past twenty-five years. They are John Creswell, Abe Flanigan, Saima Hasnin, Priya Karimuddinahalli, Doug Kauffman, Chris Labenz, Linlin Luo, Melissa Patterson-Hazley, Anja Prinz, Alexander Renkl, Jared Soundy, Jessica Walsh, and Helene Zeeb. I appreciate your dedicated work and collegiality, the fun times, and all you taught me.

Thank you Cambridge University Press for adopting this book and bringing it to life. A special thanks to David Repetto, Executive Publisher; Vinithan Sedumadhavan, Project Management Executive; Natasha Whelan, Senior Content Manager; Rowan Groat, Editorial Assistant; Joon Moon, Marketing Executive; and Penny Harper, Copy-editor. I am honored to have Cambridge University Press as my publisher.

Many thanks and much love to my supportive family: wife Christine, and children Keaton, Anna, and Samuel. You're my inspiration.

Of course, this book would not exist were it not for the über-talented and productive scholars whose stories fill these pages. You were generous to share your time, accomplishments, and hidden curriculum advice with me and others traveling along their scholarly paths.

This book is dedicated in loving memory of my parents, Frank and Winifred Kiewra. I appreciate all you did for me and all you taught me. I miss you dearly.
