

Contents

Acknowledgements	page vii
A Note on Primary Sources	ix
Introduction	I
PART I NIETZSCHE'S INTELLECTUAL CONTEXT AND EARLY RECEPTION OF PESSIMISM
1 The Varieties of Pessimism	21
1.1 Four Pessimistic Theses	21
1.2 The Defence : Arguments for Pessimism	29
1.3 The Explanation : Pessimism in Human History and Culture	56
2 Nietzsche's Initial Engagement with Pessimism	66
2.1 Another 'Apostle' of Schopenhauer?	66
2.2 Pessimism in The Birth of Tragedy	72
2.3 'Practical Pessimism': Suicide, Mercy Killing, and the Problem of Quietism	76
2.4 Art as an Antidote to Practical Pessimism	84
2.5 The Problem of Suffering's Meaning	93
PART II THE BEGINNINGS OF CHANGE: PESSIMISM IN HUMAN, ALL TOO HUMAN
3 Nietzsche's New Naturalism	101
3.1 Beyond Optimism and Pessimism	102
3.2 Nietzsche's Initial Critique of Metaphysics	104
3.3 The Nature of Value Judgements: The Influence of Rée and Dühring	110
3.4 Frame of Reference Arguments against Pessimism	119

vi	Contents
4	“Bad News for Priests”: Scientific Progress and Suffering	129
	4.1 The Origins of Metaphysics in Utility	129
	4.2 On the Possibility of Science as the ‘Axe’ to the Root of Metaphysical Impulse	135
	4.3 Nietzsche and the Social Question: Religion and Art Reconsidered	142
PART III NIETZSCHE’S MATURE REJECTION OF THE ‘PESSIMISM OF SENSIBILITY’
5	A Psychological Critique	155
	5.1 Pessimism as Weltschmerz: Nineteenth-Century Critiques	155
	5.2 Nietzsche’s Psychological Critique (I): Drives, Health, and Decadence	164
	5.3 Nietzsche’s Psychological Critique (II): Metaphysical Revenge	174
	5.4 Christianity as the Pinnacle Manifestation of Pessimism	181
	5.5 The Scope of Nietzsche’s Psychological Critique and Its Strategic Implications	187
6	An Existential Critique	198
	6.1 Pessimism and Nihilism	199
	6.2 Eternal Recurrence as Response to the Pessimism Dispute	205
	6.3 The (Re)Vindication of Art	216
7	A Perfectionist Critique	227
	7.1 Pessimism and Hedonism	227
	7.2 Greatness and the Poverty of Hedonism	229
	7.3 The Philosophical Force of Nietzsche’s Critique	235
	7.4 A ‘Pessimism of Strength’: The Value of Suffering	242
	7.5 Hedonism as Cause or Consequence?: Rescuing Schopenhauer	252
	Conclusion	260
	Bibliography	264
	Index	277