

Contents

Acknowledgments	page viii
Transliteration	x
1 Introduction	1
1.1 Who Are the Russian Hawks?	2
1.2 Sources	5
1.3 A Social History of the Russian Hawks’ Ideas	8
1.4 Modernist Conservatism: An Illiberal Ideology of Modernity Formed across the 1991 Regime Change	11
1.5 From Ideological Fringes to Policy Prominence: Tracking the Career of an Idea Network in an Authoritarian Context	20
1.6 Structure of the Book	24
2 Reenchanting Soviet Modernity (1960–1985)	28
2.1 The “Convergence Horizon”: A Major Concern for Soviet Elites	30
2.2 A New Conservative Ideology Based on the “Spiritualization of Technology”	38
2.3 Modernist Conservatism’s Controlled Dispersion inside the Soviet State Ideology	52
2.4 Conclusion	59
3 The Emergence of the Russian Hawks as an Idea Network (1985–1999)	61
3.1 An Idea Network Formed across Intellectual and Political Elites (1985–1993)	63
3.2 The Newspaper Den as the Fabric of the Coalition’s Ideological Magnet	72
3.3 The Russian Hawks between Opposition and Competition with Yeltsin’s New Course (1993–1999)	78
3.4 Conclusion	94
	v

vi	Contents
4	From Fringe to Mainstream: The Mister Hexogen Controversy (2001–2002) 96
4.1	Mister Hexogen : A Catalyst in the New Culture War against the 1990s 99
4.2	A Changing System of Value Attribution within the Literary Field 109
4.3	The Collapse of Consensus among Intellectual Elites and the Legitimation of Prokhanov’s Hawkish Ideas 114
4.4	Conclusion 126
5	The Rise of the Next-Generation Hawks in the 2000s 127
5.1	A New Generation of Russian Hawks 128
5.2	The Establishment of Young Conservatism in the Public Sphere 139
5.3	The Russian Doctrine: Professionalized Ideological Entrepreneurship 150
5.4	Conclusion 169
6	Inside the Regime’s Market for Ideology (2005–2012) 170
6.1	Ideology in Transaction between Intellectual and Political Elites 172
6.2	The Izborskii Klub: The Institutionalization of the Russian Hawks’ Idea Network 187
6.3	The Izborskii Klub as an Entrepreneur of Capital for Policy Influence 202
6.4	Conclusion 212
7	Competing for Russia’s Grand Strategy (2012–2022) 213
7.1	The Hawks’ Contribution to the Regime’s Strategic Objectives (2012–2014) 216
7.2	The Regime’s Commitment to Managed Ideological Pluralism (2014–2016) 226
7.3	A Strategic Subculture Maintained through a Conservative Lobby Group (2018–2022) 235
7.4	Conclusion 249
8	Shaping Russia’s Wartime Ideology (2022–2024) 251
8.1	Russia’s Grand Strategic Shift 254
8.2	Wartime Transformations of the Sphere of Ideology Production 269

Contents	vii
8.3 War Ideology versus Exile Philosophy: Intellectual Polarization Maintained	282
8.4 Conclusion	289
9 Conclusion	291
Annex 1: List of Interviews	300
Annex 2: Professional Occupation and Network Connections of the Izborskii Klub’s Founding Members (2012–2013)	302
Annex 3: Professional Occupation and Biographical Details of the Izborskii Klub Members Added in the Period 2013–2021	314
Bibliography	321
Index	369