

Invisible Revolutionaries

Invisible Revolutionaries sheds light on the critical role women play in a contemporary revolution. The book argues that women's engagement in contentious politics is often far less visible than men's participation, when measured by the physical presence of women in protest space. Using the case of the 2013–2014 Revolution of Dignity in Ukraine, the book outlines the different modes of women's participation in a revolution and illustrates how women can be at the forefront of civil resistance, fighting for national independence and democratic development. Drawing on data from large-N surveys and oral history projects, the book uncovers the diverse motivations and forms of women's involvement in mass mobilization and traces the multifaceted outcomes of their activism in the post-revolutionary period. The book proposes an original typology of women's engagement in a revolution and explores a pivotal moment in Ukraine's history that precedes the Russia–Ukraine War.

Acknowledgments

The idea for this book was conceived during Ukraine's Revolution of Dignity, and the importance of telling women's stories and preserving national history has become even more acute since the onset of Russia's brutal war against Ukraine in 2014. Over the past century, Ukrainian women exhibited a great deal of resilience and resourcefulness in fighting for Ukraine's national independence, democratic development, and cultural heritage. This book is dedicated to unsung heroines of the Ukrainian liberation struggle from the early twentieth century to the present day.

I am profoundly thankful to Ukrainian historians who gathered rich qualitative data on citizens' participation in Euromaidan and made it available to the academic community. In particular, I am grateful to Tetiana Kovtunovych, Tetiana Pryvalko, and Volodymyr Viatrovych at the Ukrainian Institute of National Remembrance (Ukrainskyi instytut natsionalnoi pam'iaty) and Leonid Finberg and Anna Prokhorova at the National University of Kyiv-Mohyla Academy for meticulously documenting individuals' engagement in civil resistance. Ukrainian sociologists at the Institute of Sociology of the National Academy of Sciences of Ukraine, the Kyiv International Institute of Sociology, and the Ilko Kucheriv Democratic Initiatives Foundation also collected detailed data on Euromaidan protesters. I thank Iryna Bekeshkina (posthumously) and Viktor Stepanenko for generously granting access to the survey data. Additional thanks go to Nataliya Dovhopol for an excellent transcription of interviews. Furthermore, I am deeply indebted to all the participants in the oral history projects for taking the time to share their experiences and their recollections of this critical juncture in Ukrainian history.

The book has greatly benefited from thoughtful comments by many historians, political scientists, and sociologists. I thank Özlem Altan-Olcay, Mark Beissinger, Cynthia Buckley, Susanne Yuk Ping Choi, Sonja Grimm, Janet Elise Johnson, John Krinsky, Tamara Martsenyuk, Lisbeth Matzer, Olga Onuch, Kiran Klaus Patel, Kevin M. F. Platt, Daniel Ritter, Jillian Schwedler, Ostap Sereda, Thomas Süssler-Rohringer, Anh Tran, Aili Mari Tripp, and Sophia Wilson for their helpful feedback. I am especially grateful to Henry Hale for organizing a manuscript development workshop at the Institute for European, Russian, and Eurasian Studies at the George Washington University and to workshop participants – Daina Stukuls Eglitis, Eugene M. Fishel, Erik Herron, Miriam Lansky, and Kateryna Ruban – for their close reading and constructive criticism of the manuscript. Some of the findings from the book project were presented at the Gender and Transformation: Women in Europe Workshop at New York University; the Politics and Protest Workshop at the Graduate Center of the City University of New York; the Harriman Institute at Columbia University; the research colloquium (Oberseminar) at Project House Europe at the Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich; the Monday Seminar (Oberseminar Osteuropäische Geschichte) at Imre Kertész Kolleg Jena; the international workshop “Why to Fight against Dictatorship at High Personal Costs? Studying Political Activism and Its Leadership in Autocracies” at the Peace Research Institute Frankfurt; the Gender Research Centre at the Chinese University of Hong Kong; the workshop “A Woman’s Work Is Never Done: Female Life and Labor across the Imperial, Soviet and Post-Soviet Eras” at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign; the interdisciplinary conference “Contested Bodies: Identities and Spaces in Post-Soviet Territories” at the University of Pennsylvania; Taras Shevchenko Ukrainian Studies Conference at Indiana University; the Center for Russian, East European and Eurasian Studies at the University of Kansas; the Conference of the Ukrainian Studies Association of Australia and New Zealand; the Shevchenko Scientific Society in the United States; and the annual meetings of the American Political Science Association, the Association for Slavic, East European, and Eurasian Studies, and the Association for the Study of Nationalities.

This research was supported by the American Political Science Association (APSA Small Research Grant), the Petrach Program on Ukraine at the George Washington University (Petrach Ukrainian Studies Fellowship), Project House Europe at the Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich (Simone Veil Fellowship), Summer Research Laboratory Program on Russia, Eastern Europe, and Eurasia at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign (Title VIII Research Award), and Fordham University (Faculty Research Grant).

At Cambridge University Press, I thank Rachel Blaifeder and David S. Meyer for their enthusiasm about the book project and their incisive feedback throughout various stages of the review process. My infinite thanks go to anonymous reviewers for their thought-provoking and insightful comments on the manuscript. Laura Blake skillfully guided the book through the production process. I am also deeply appreciative of all the invaluable advice Mark Beissinger has given me.

My family provided unwavering support for my research endeavors. I thank my spouse for his boundless love and immense support. I am also fortunate to have been raised by parents who placed a high value on education and freedom. Being born in 1946, my father grew up with the belief that his generation would never live through a war on their soil. Yet, he now witnesses how the Russian military is destroying Ukrainian towns and villages by dropping aerial bombs in residential areas and launching missile and drone strikes against the critical infrastructure with the intent to occupy the land. My hope is that peace and democracy will prevail on the continent.
