BUYING DEFENCE AND SECURITY IN EUROPE

Buying Defence and Security in Europe is the first critical evaluation of the EU Defence and Security Procurement Directive 2009/81/EC, which is now the basis for public and private entities buying armaments and sensitive goods and services in the EU. This instrument aims to ensure non-discrimination, competition and transparency in the security sectors. Part I provides a critical analysis of the economical, historical, political, military-strategic and legal contexts of the new EU Defence and Security Procurement Directive. Part II covers the main aspects of the Directive: its scope, procedures, security of supply and information, offsets and subcontracting and, finally, its review and remedies system. This book is an essential overview of a legislative milestone in the field.

MARTIN TRYBUS is Professor of European Law and Policy and Director of the Institute of European Law at the University of Birmingham. He has been involved in many studies of the OECD, the European Commission and the European Defence Agency on matters of public procurement and the European armaments market. He currently serves on the Procurement Review Board of the European Space Agency and is the legal expert on a team led by RAND Europe, providing advice and research for the European Commission on the transposition and implementation of the Defence and Security Procurement Directive.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to thank a number of colleagues who supported the completion of this book by reading and providing feedback on several draft chapters: Andrew James (Manchester Business School) on chapter 1, Luke Butler (University of Bristol) and Luca Rubini (currently EUI Florence) on parts of chapter 4, Roberto Caranta (University of Turin) and Georgios Sampanis (University of Siegen) on chapter 6, Pedro Telles (University of Bangor) on chapter 7 and Michael Steinicke (University of Aarhus) on chapter 8. Moreover, I especially thank Tony Arnall (Birmingham Law School) for his feedback on chapters 3 and 10 and Baudouin Heuninckx (Belgian Air Force) for his feedback on chapters 5, 9 and 10. Baudouin and Luke also provided comments on my recommendations.

I have also benefited from seminar and conference events on European defence procurement which occurred during the completion of this book. This refers especially to the seven seminars on the Defence Directive at the European Institute of Public Administration (EIPA) in Maastricht between 2008 and 2012, but also to conferences organised by the Atlantic Council in Washington in 2010, the (United Kingdom) Procurement Lawyers Association (PLA) in London in 2011, the International Chamber of Commerce (ICC) in Paris in 2011, Forum Vergabe and the University of the Bundeswehr in Munich in 2012 and the Public Procurement Research Group of the University of Nottingham in 2013. These events gave me the opportunity to communicate with many colleagues, practitioners, the drafters of the Defence Directive and the drafters of some of the transposing legislation in the Member States.

Moreover, I benefited from discussions with Barbara Rupp, Bill Giles, Nicholas Pourbaix, Aris Georgopoulos, Bernardo Diniz de Ayala, Ciara Kennedy-Loest, Susie Smith, Michael Bowsher, Chris Yukins, Michael Walter, the participants of the event mentioned above, my PhD student Luke Butler, my LLM student Lucien Lagarde and the students on my public procurement and EU defence integration courses at the University of Birmingham. Finally, I want to thank Brina Počivalček (University of Ljubljana) for help with the compilation of the tables and bibliography. The title of this book was inspired by Christopher McCrudden, Buying Social Justice (2007).
