

CONTENTS

Preface	page ix
Acknowledgements	xiii
List of Abbreviations	xv
1 Beginnings	1
2 Dante, Petrarch, Boccaccio	17
3 The Italian Renaissance Takes Root in Florence	44
4 Florentine Humanism, Translation, and a New (Old) Philosophy	71
5 Dialogues, Institutions, and Social Exchange	94
6 Who Owns Culture? Classicism, Institutions, and the Vernacular	120
7 Poggio Bracciolini	138
8 Lorenzo Valla	157
9 The Nature of the Latin Language: Poggio versus Valla	178
10 Valla, Latin, Christianity, Culture	200
11 A Changing Environment	228
12 Florence: Marsilio Ficino, I	241
13 Ficino, II	264
14 The Voices of Culture in Late Fifteenth-century Florence	288
15 “We barely have time to breathe.” Poliziano, Pico, Ficino, and the Beginning of the End of the Florentine Renaissance	313
16 Angelo Poliziano’s Lamia in Context	338
17 Endings and New Beginnings: The Language Debate	372
Epilogue	401
Bibliography	405
Index	432