Contents

List of figures
ix

Part I  Remodeling visual social science

1. Prologue and outline: (re)framing visual social science?
2. An integrated framework for conducting and assessing visual social research

Part II  The visual researcher as collector and interpreter

3. Researching ‘found’ or ‘pre-existing’ visual materials
4. A visual and multimodal model for analyzing online environments

Part III  The visual researcher as producer, facilitator and communicator

5. The mimetic mode: from exploratory to systematic visual data production
6. Visual elicitation techniques, respondent-generated image production and ‘participatory’ visual activism
7. The ‘visual essay’ as a scholarly format: art meets (social) science?
8. Social scientific filmmaking and multimedia production: key features and debates

Part IV  Applications / case studies

9. Family photography as a social practice: from the analogue to the digital networked world
A visual study of corporate culture: the workplace as metaphor
11 Health communication in South Africa: a visual study of posters, billboards and grassroots media

Part V Visual research in a wider perspective
12 Ethics of visual research in the offline and online world
13 A meta-disciplinary framework for producing and assessing visual representations
14 Advancing visual research: pending issues and future directions

Index