REGULATING TRADE IN SERVICES IN THE EU AND THE WTO

This volume assesses the viability of various theories of economic integration that take into account the legal, economic, political and social challenges of incorporating free trade with the retention of a plurality of social welfare standards and consumer protection standards. Chapters cover the governance of trade in services at the European and global level; studies on the recent Services Directive and how this interacts with the principle of managed mutual recognition and harmonization in different sectors of the economy (social services, financial services); the recent case law of the European Courts on how the principle of free movement of services accommodates various national public interest concerns; and the interaction of the freedom to provide services with fundamental rights, including social rights. The operation of the principle of managed mutual recognition in other economic integration regimes, in particular in the context of the WTO, is also discussed.

IOANNIS LIANOS is a reader in European and Competition Law at the Faculty of Laws, University College London. He is also the Director of the Centre for Law, Economics and Society, the Institute of Global Law, and the Centre for Law and Governance in Europe at UCL.

OKEOGHENE ODUDU is Herchel Smith Lecturer in the Faculty of Law and Fellow in Law at Emmanuel College, University of Cambridge. He is the co-editor of the Cambridge Yearbook of European Legal Studies and was Deputy Director of the Centre for European Legal Studies between 2006 and 2011.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The editors would like to thank the authors and Cambridge University Press for their patience during the long editorial process. In particular, we would like to thank Finola O'Sullivan and Richard Woodham from Cambridge University Press. The organization of the workshop in London and Cambridge would not have been possible without the generous support of the Modern Law Review, the Centre for Law and Governance in Europe, University College London, the Master and fellows of Emmanuel College, Cambridge and the Centre for European Legal Studies, Faculty of Law, University of Cambridge, to whom we also extend our thanks. Marta Maia and Julia Petrenko have provided excellent editorial assistance and also deserve praise.
