

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-01082-6 - Demography and the Graeco-Roman World: New Insights and Approaches

Edited by Claire Holleran and April Pudsey

Frontmatter

More informationDEMOGRAPHY AND THE GRAECO-ROMAN WORLD

Through a series of case studies this book demonstrates the wide-ranging impact of demographic dynamics on social, economic and political structures in the Graeco-Roman world. The individual case studies focus on fertility, mortality and migration and the roles they played in various aspects of ancient life. These studies – drawn from a range of populations in Athens and Attica, Rome and Italy, and Graeco-Roman Egypt – illustrate how new insights can be gained by applying demographic methods to familiar themes in ancient history. Methodological issues are addressed in a clear, straightforward manner with no assumption of prior technical knowledge, ensuring that the book is accessible to readers with no training in demography. The book marks an important step forward in ancient historical demography, affirming both the centrality of population studies in ancient history and the contribution that antiquity can make to population history in general.

CLAIRE HOLLERAN is a Leverhulme Early Career Fellow at the University of Liverpool. Her research interests lie primarily in ancient social and economic history, focusing in particular on the city of Rome. She is the author of a forthcoming monograph, Shopping in Ancient Rome, and is co-editor with Amanda Claridge of A Companion to the City of Rome (2011).

APRIL PUDSEY is a Leverhulme Early Career Fellow at the University of Liverpool. Her research interests lie primarily in ancient historical demography, with particular focus on Roman Egypt. She is preparing a monograph, Population and Society in Roman Egypt, and is the author of a forthcoming chapter in Lovén and Harlow (eds.), The Family in the Imperial and Late Antique Roman World (in press), and a forthcoming chapter in Evans Grubbs and Parkin (eds.), Oxford Handbook of Childhood and Education in the Classical World (2012).

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-01082-6 - Demography and the Graeco-roman World: New Insights and Approaches

Edited by Claire Holleran and April Pudsey

Frontmatter

More information

---

DEMOGRAPHY AND THE GRAECO-ROMAN WORLD

New Insights and Approaches

EDITED BY
CLAIRE HOLLERAN
AND
APRIL PUDSEY

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-01082-6 - Demography and the Graeco-roman World: New Insights and Approaches

Edited by Claire Holleran and April Pudsey

Frontmatter

More information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS
Cambridge, New York, Melbourne, Madrid, Cape Town,
Singapore, São Paulo, Delhi, Tokyo, Mexico City

Cambridge University Press
The Edinburgh Building, Cambridge CB2 8RU, UK

Published in the United States of America by Cambridge University Press, New York

www.cambridge.org
Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781107010826

© Cambridge University Press 2011

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2011

Printed in the United Kingdom at the University Press, Cambridge

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloguing in Publication data

Demography and the Graeco-Roman world :
new insights and approaches / [edited by] Claire Holleran and April Pudsey.
p. cm.

ISBN 978-1-107-01082-6 (hardback)

1. Demography – Greece – History. 2. Greece – Population – History. 3. Demography – Rome – History. 4. Rome – Population – History. I. Holleran, Claire, 1979– II. Pudsey, April. III. Title.

HB3632.5.A3D464 2011

304.60938–dc22

2011005954

ISBN 978-1-107-01082-6 Hardback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-01082-6 - Demography and the Graeco-roman World: New Insights and Approaches

Edited by Claire Holleran and April Pudsey

Frontmatter

More informationContents

List of contributors	page	vii
Acknowledgements		ix
Introduction	Studies in ancient historical demography Claire Holleran and April Pudsey (University of Liverpool)	I
1	Demography and development in classical antiquity Neville Morley (University of Bristol)	14
2	Demography and classical Athens Ben Akrigg (University of Toronto)	37
3	Nuptiality and the demographic life cycle of the family in Roman Egypt April Pudsey (University of Liverpool)	60
4	Family matters: fertility and its constraints in Roman Italy Saskia Hin (Max Planck Institute for Demographic Research)	99
5	Migration and the demes of Attica Claire Taylor (Center for Hellenic Studies, Washington DC)	117
6	Counting the Greeks in Egypt: immigration in the first century of Ptolemaic rule Christelle Fischer-Bovet (University of Southern California)	135
7	Migration and the urban economy of Rome Claire Holleran (University of Liverpool)	155

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-01082-6 - Demography and the Graeco-roman World: New Insights and Approaches

Edited by Claire Holleran and April Pudsey

Frontmatter

More information

---

vi

Contents

8	From the margins to the centre stage: some closing reflections on ancient historical demography Tim Parkin (University of Manchester)	181
	Bibliography	189
	Index	214

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-01082-6 - Demography and the Graeco-roman World: New Insights and Approaches

Edited by Claire Holleran and April Pudsey

Frontmatter

More informationContributors

BEN AKRIGG has taught Greek history at King's College London and is currently Associate Professor at the University of Toronto. His principal research interest is in the economic and social history of classical Greece, and his current main project is on the population and economy of Athens in the fifth and fourth centuries BCE. He is also co-editing (with Professor Rob Tordoff of York University) a volume on slaves and slavery in Greek comedy.

CHRISTELLE FISCHER-BOVET specialises in the social and cultural history of the eastern Mediterranean (fourth century BC – first century AD), with a particular interest in Graeco-Roman Egypt. She has been a fellow of the Swiss National Science Foundation at the University of California at Berkeley and is currently Assistant Professor at the University of Southern California. Her current research combines documentary evidence (papyri, inscriptions) with social theory to investigate the role of ethnicity in the institutions of the new Hellenistic states, and she is also preparing a monograph for Cambridge University Press, Army and Society in Ptolemaic Egypt, 330–30 BC.

SASKIA HIN is interested in the interactions between individuals and their surroundings and has written on the ephēbeia in the Hellenistic world, the Roman practice of census taking, and the relationship between ancient concepts of citizenship and demographic behaviour. She is also the author of a forthcoming monograph, The Demography of Roman Italy: Population Dynamics in an Ancient Conquest Society, 201 BCE – CE 14 (Cambridge University Press). She is currently a postdoctoral fellow at the Max Planck Institute for Demographic Research, where she works on Graeco-Roman demography and reproductive desires in modern low-fertility settings.

CLAIRE HOLLERAN has written on various aspects of Roman social and economic history, focusing in particular on the city of Rome. She is the author of a forthcoming monograph, Shopping in Ancient Rome, and co-editor with Amanda Claridge of A Companion to the City of Rome (2011).

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-01082-6 - Demography and the Graeco-roman World: New Insights and Approaches

Edited by Claire Holleran and April Pudsey

Frontmatter

More information

viii

List of contributors

She has held a fixed-term lectureship at King's College London, fellowships at the British School at Rome and the University of Cincinnati, and is currently a Leverhulme Early Career Fellow at the University of Liverpool, researching a project on the urban economy of ancient Rome.

NEVILLE MORLEY is Professor of Ancient History at the University of Bristol. He works on ancient economic history, historiography and reception; his recent books include Trade in Classical Antiquity (2007), Antiquity and Modernity (2008) and The Roman Empire: Roots of Imperialism (2010).

TIM PARKIN is Professor of Ancient History at the University of Manchester. His publications include Demography and Roman Society (1992), Old Age in the Roman World: A Cultural and Social History (2003) and (with Arthur Pomeroy) Roman Social History: A Sourcebook (2007).

APRIL PUDSEY has research interests in the ancient family and ancient historical demography, with particular focus on Roman Egypt. She is preparing a monograph, Population and Society in Roman Egypt, and is the author of forthcoming chapters on widows and divorcées, and children in Roman and early Byzantine Egypt. April has held a fixed-term teaching fellowship in ancient history at the University of Edinburgh, and is currently a Leverhulme Early Career Fellow at the University of Liverpool, researching a project on the social and demographic history of the ancient family.

CLAIRE TAYLOR is a Fellow at the Center for Hellenic Studies, Washington, DC. She has written on various aspects of fifth- and fourth-century Athenian politics and society, as well as on the epigraphic culture of non-elite groups. She is co-editor of Ancient Graffiti in Context (2011), and her current research explores wealth and poverty in fourth-century Attica.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-01082-6 - Demography and the Graeco-roman World: New Insights and Approaches

Edited by Claire Holleran and April Pudsey

Frontmatter

More information

Acknowledgements

This book has its origins in a conference entitled ‘Pre-modern Populations and Economies: the Case of Greece and Rome’, which we organised while we were postgraduate students at the University of Manchester in June 2005. Versions of some of the papers were presented at this conference, and others were added later in order to extend the scope of the volume. We would like to thank our speakers: Ben Akrigg, Nigel Goose, Ian Harrison, Mike McCarthy, Neville Morley and Bob Woods, and our session chairs and discussants, Alex Craven, Polly Low and James Thorne. We would also like to thank the staff and postgraduate students in the School of Arts, Histories and Cultures at the University of Manchester, and all those who contributed to this conference. We are grateful to both the Institute of Classical Studies and the University of Manchester for their generous financial assistance and support for this event.

We completed much of the writing and editing of this book while we held Leverhulme Early Career Fellowships in the School of Archaeology, Classics and Egyptology at the University of Liverpool, and we would like to thank both the Leverhulme Trust and the University for their generous support.

We would also like to thank warmly Tim Cornell, Roy Gibson, Neville Morley, Tim Parkin and Walter Scheidel, all of whom gave constructive comments during the planning, writing and editing of this book. We also thank Michael Sharp, the anonymous readers, the copy-editor and the staff at Cambridge University Press for their invaluable advice, patience and good humour throughout the process of producing this book, and Terry Abbott for his painstaking work on proofreading and indexing.