

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-01393-3 - The Psychological Significance of the Blush

Edited by W. Ray Crozier and Peter J. de Jong

Index

More information

Index

- accusation of blushing
 - triggers blush, 67, 204, 215
- acute negative public self-attention, 64, 233
- age changes in blushing, 113–15
- Alden, L. E., 67, 274, 291
- amygdala, 149–52, 165, 166, 167, 169
- anger, 23–4, 32
- animal displays
 - appeasement, 87
 - courtship, 79
 - guilt, 89–90
 - ritualization, 79, 82, 86, 93
 - sources, 79
 - submission, 87, 89–91, 94
- apology
 - blush as, 65, 78, 91, 94, 123, 196, 203, 236, 250, 258, 260, 271, 331, 334
 - in embarrassment, 196
- appeasement, xii, 122, 131, 171, 203, 236, 271, 328
- appeasement display, 91, 124, 170, 214, 236, 252, 328, 334, 335
- Asendorpf, J. B., 103, 124, 125
- audience
 - effect of size on blushing, 23, 127
 - necessary for embarrassment, 103, 121, 190–1, 334
 - role in embarrassment, 112
- audience provocation, 188–9, 197
- autism, 129, 130
- avoidance of embarrassment, 132–8, 194–5
- beta-adrenoceptors, 5, 15, 25–6, 32, 50, 127, 243
- blood pressure
 - in embarrassment, 125–6
- blush
 - as a mask, 235–6
 - as embodied performance, 209
 - believed to reveal incompetence, 208, 209, 215, 280
 - ‘hallmark’ of embarrassment, 8, 185, 193, 199, 222, 231, 233, 237, 336
 - implications for self-identity, 218
- blushing propensity
 - and effects of betablocker on blushing, 25–6
 - and fear of blushing, 269–71
 - and feedback about blushing, 33
 - and measures of blushing, 25–7
 - and remedial function of blush, 51
 - and social anxiety, 30, 51
- Blushing Propensity Scale (BPS), 25, 31, 32, 50–1, 52, 269, 270, 300, 316
- Blushing, Trembling and Sweating Questionnaire (BTS-Q), 50, 51–2, 268, 300
- bodily embarrassment, 137
- Bögels, S. M., 10, 19, 20, 25, 27, 28, 43, 44, 50, 51, 52, 53, 166, 212, 267, 268, 269, 270, 272, 273, 274, 276, 280, 286, 287, 291, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297, 298, 300, 301, 302, 316, 320, 340
- brain cooling, 21–2
- Burgess, T. H., 3, 4, 64, 242, 244, 245
- Buss, A. H., 7, 8, 51, 70, 107, 108, 126, 153, 185, 193, 222, 336
- Casimir, M. J., 101, 231, 329
- Castelfranchi, C., 51, 65, 101, 203, 231, 236, 243, 245–6, 247, 271
- Changizi, M. J., 19, 85, 86, 243, 335
- childhood blushing, 7, 100, 111, 299, 316–17
- children’s understanding of blush, 111–13
- Clark, D. M., 170, 171, 274, 291, 293, 294, 295, 297, 299
- classification of circumstances
 - of blushing, 222–3, 226, 229, 230
 - of embarrassment, 186–9, 195, 222
- cognitive bias modification, 280

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-01393-3 - The Psychological Significance of the Blush

Edited by W. Ray Crozier and Peter J. de Jong

Index

More information

346 Index

- colour patterns in organisms
 - and reproductive status, 82–3, 341
 - and social rank/status, 81–2, 83
 - as social signals, 82–3
 - automimicry, 81, 83
 - in primates, 80–3
- colour perception
 - and social signals, 85, 243
 - identification of emotional states, 19, 86
 - species differences, 83–5
 - trichromatic vision, 84–5, 335
- communicative function of blush, 64–8, 86, 101, 203, 250, 251
- comparison of psychological theories, 73–4
- compensatory sweating, 21
- complexion differences, 23, 63, 236, 259, 310, 336
- compliments, 69, 230, 234
- conspicuousness, 63, 187, 189, 191, 204, 206, 210, 229, 236
- coyness blushing, 92
- creeping blush, 29, 223, 329, 330, 335
- Crozier, W. R., 9, 71, 72, 73, 77, 91, 108, 110, 113, 122, 198, 203, 204, 206, 210, 213, 215, 226, 249, 250, 269, 273, 332, 334, 342
- cultural differences
 - in blushing, 3, 237, 329, 336, 342
 - in bodily embarrassment, 137
 - in fear of blushing, 67
 - in shame-related lexicon, 231
- Darby, R. S., 7, 123, 137, 138, 336, 338, 342
- Darwin, C., xi, 2–4, 5, 6, 8, 15, 24, 64, 77, 94, 100, 101, 138, 222, 231, 233, 235, 237, 238, 243, 245, 331, 341
- de Jong, P. J., 9–10, 23, 51, 52, 53, 66, 67, 91, 101, 123, 194, 198, 203, 214, 246, 251, 254, 256, 260, 267, 269, 270, 271, 272, 274, 276, 277, 278, 279, 286, 287, 294, 296, 297, 298, 300, 316, 331, 332, 333, 337, 339
- de Waal, F. B. M., 2, 88, 90, 242, 248
- Dijk, C., 9–10, 23, 29, 43, 52, 66, 67, 91, 94, 101, 194, 198, 203, 209, 212, 254, 256, 259, 260, 267, 268, 270, 272, 275, 276, 277, 278, 280, 298, 331, 332, 333, 337, 339
- dramaturgic model
 - compared to social evaluation model of embarrassment, 121–2, 190–2
 - of embarrassment, 121, 189–90, 336
- dramaturgical theory
 - and self-presentation, 203
 - of blushing, 203, 204, 209–10, 334
- Drott, C., 21
- Drummond, P. D., 5, 10, 16, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23–4, 25, 26, 27, 28, 30, 31, 32, 33, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 50, 52, 63, 67, 69, 127, 193, 248, 259, 269, 270, 311, 315, 316, 317, 319, 320, 328, 329, 334, 339, 340, 342
- Edelmann, R. J., 25, 28, 31, 46, 63, 93, 124, 126, 140, 196, 204, 215, 222, 234, 242, 269, 273, 286, 291, 297, 302, 316
- Ekman, P., 124
- embarrassability, 31, 192–3
- embarrassment
 - and impression formation, 66–7
 - and measurement of blushing, 22–3
 - consequences, 193–4
 - historical changes in meaning, 232
 - in childhood, 103
 - motivates dysfunctional behaviours, 337
 - motivates prosocial behaviour, 122–3
 - nonverbal displays, 124–5
- Emmelkamp, P. M., 267, 280, 286, 291, 296
- empathic blushing, 23, 70
- empathic embarrassment, 189
- endoscopic thoracic sympathectomy, 20–1, 340–1
- evaluative embarrassment, 103, 109, 110, 334
- exposure, 109, 110–11, 224, 229, 234, 236, 260, 276
- exposure embarrassment, 103, 104, 109, 334
- exposure theory, 9, 71–3, 73–4, 110, 204, 223–6, 234–5
- Facial Action Coding System (FACS), 124
- facial colour analysis, 48–9
- facial skin temperature
 - measurement, 22–3, 46–8
 - relation to visible blush, 46–7, 65, 127–8
 - thermistor measure, 5, 46, 47, 330
- fear of blushing
 - and rosacea, 314
 - and social phobia, 267–8
 - automatic associations, 277–8, 279
 - biased judgments, 67, 194, 272–3, 297, 339
 - consequences, 268
 - core concerns, 267, 275–6
 - empirical studies of blushing, 28–30

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-01393-3 - The Psychological Significance of the Blush

Edited by W. Ray Crozier and Peter J. de Jong

Index

More information

Index

347

- feedback about blushing, 29
- information-processing biases, 279–80, 340
- judgments of standards, 271–2
- measurement, 46, 52
- prevalence, 268
- propensity to blush, 269–71, 339
- self-focused attention, 272–5, 293, 294
- sensitivity to others' judgments, 271–2
- fear of embarrassment, 132, 193–4, 197
 - biased judgments in, 276–7
- fear of negative evaluation, 31, 192, 272, 315
- feedback effects on blushing, 26–7, 29, 33
- Ferguson, T. J., 101, 102, 105, 111, 114
- Fessler, D. M. T., 89, 90, 231, 236
- flushing
 - and anger, 32
 - and blushing, 29, 32, 33, 45
 - and sexual excitation, 83
 - in rosacea, 10, 308–9, 311, 315, 316, 317, 319, 320
 - in social anxiety disorder, 31
 - in thermoregulation, 21
 - post-surgical, 21
 - with rage, 19, 20
- Fox, N. A., 148, 152, 153, 154, 158
- Frank, R. H., 243, 244, 260
- Frijda, N., 236, 249
- frontal and temporal lobes
 - in embarrassment, 130
- frontotemporal lobe degeneration (FTLD), 128–9
- Gawronski, B., 278
- gaze aversion, 31, 70, 87, 103, 114, 124, 125, 139, 140, 167, 236
- gender differences
 - in blushing, 22, 92, 342–3
 - in bodily embarrassment, 137
 - in responses to blushing, 214
 - in rosacea, 309–10, 313
 - in seeking medical attention, 134–5
- Gerlach, A. L., 5, 19, 20, 27, 39, 42, 50, 51, 53, 125, 127, 267, 270, 287, 301, 330
- Gilovich, T., 69, 71, 193, 194
- Goffman, E., 70, 121, 203, 205, 208, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213, 214, 217, 218, 243, 257
- guilt
 - and blushing, 2, 66, 91, 222, 245, 250, 254, 329, 332
 - and rosacea, 316
 - and shame, 231, 342
- Harris, C. R., 7, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 131, 133, 134, 137, 138, 195, 336, 338, 342
- Harris, P. R., 64, 233
- heart rate
 - and fear of blushing, 20
 - in embarrassment, 7, 125–7
 - in temperamental shyness, 154
- Hofmann, S. G., 10, 31, 42, 67, 125, 127, 148, 170, 171, 270, 286, 295, 297, 299, 302, 340
- humour, 139, 185, 196, 197, 235
- illusion of transparency, 194
- infrared thermography, 48
- involuntary nature of blush, xi, 2, 5, 51, 65, 91, 101, 113, 207, 210, 211, 252, 332, 335
- Izard, C. E., 102, 106, 113, 140, 223
- Kagan, J., 104, 148, 149, 152, 153, 154
- Keltner, D., 101, 109, 111, 122, 123, 124, 125, 129, 131, 138, 139, 140, 222, 232, 246, 250, 252, 271
- laser Doppler flowmetry, 5, 22, 24, 25, 42, 43, 48, 317, 330
- Leary, M. R., 6, 7, 19, 25, 29, 32, 50, 66, 68, 70, 92, 94, 101, 106, 109, 110, 132, 193, 195, 204, 206, 215, 223, 224, 230, 234, 243, 247, 248, 259, 267, 269, 271, 273, 316, 329, 331–2, 334, 336, 341
- Lewis, H. B., 224, 226, 237
- Lewis, M., 70, 103, 104, 105, 109, 110, 113, 115, 139, 140, 191, 231
- Manstead, A. S. R., 123, 196, 197, 249, 251, 254, 333
- measurement. See facial skin temperature; infrared thermography; laser Doppler flowmetry; photoplethysmography; physiological measures of blush
- medical embarrassment, 132–8, 194–5
- Mellander, S., 5, 15, 32, 50, 243
- Miller, R. S., 8, 70, 108, 120, 121, 125, 138, 139, 185, 186, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192–3, 195, 196, 197, 198, 215, 222, 230, 246, 335, 336, 337, 339, 342
- Miskovic, V., 7, 154, 157, 158, 166, 168, 170, 249, 338
- Mulkens, S., 25, 42, 46, 52, 53, 267, 268, 269, 270, 271, 272, 274, 286, 287, 294, 296, 297, 300

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-01393-3 - The Psychological Significance of the Blush

Edited by W. Ray Crozier and Peter J. de Jong

Index

More information

348 Index

- Neto, F., 25, 269, 272, 316
- neuroanatomy
 of embarrassment, 128–31
 of social anxiety, 149–53
- neuroticism, 24, 314
- niacin, 31–2, 45
- nitric oxide, 33, 311
- nonverbal display
 of embarrassment, 139–40
 of shame, 139–40
- observational measures of blushing,
 52–4
- Öhman, A., 147, 148, 166, 171
- optimistic bias in embarrassment, 131
- orbitofrontal brain damage, 129–31
- others' negative response to blushing, 215–18, 254, 256
 to performance of shy role, 216–17
- others' positive response to blushing, 198, 213–15, 252–3, 254, 256–7, 332
 to embarrassment display, 123–4,
 197–8
- overpraise, 69, 189
- parasympathetic nervous system, 18–19, 20, 126–7
- Parrott, W. G., 121, 138, 190, 222
- Peters, M. L., 23, 52, 53, 66, 67, 198, 246, 254, 256, 271, 272, 276
- photoplethysmography, 22–4, 40–6,
 127, 330
- physiological measures of blush caveats, 43–6, 46–7
 effects of facial movement, 44
 parameterization, 42–6
- Poggi, I., 51, 65, 101, 203, 231, 236, 243, 245–6, 247, 271
- psychoanalytic explanations, 64, 238
- psychological interventions for fear of blushing applied relaxation, 292–3
 cognitive behavioural therapy, 280, 296, 298
 for children, 299
 cognitive therapy, 291, 293, 296, 297–8 exposure therapy, 293, 295–7
 for children, 298–9
 mindfulness-based cognitive therapy, 295 social skills training, 291–2, 298
 for children, 299
 task concentration training, 287, 293, 294–5
 treatment effectiveness, 292, 300–1, 340
- Rapee, R. M., 27, 52, 53, 67
- remedial function of blush, 65–8, 196, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 257, 331
- remedial theory of blushing, 67–8, 73–4
- responses to embarrassment, 195–8
- Rochat, P., 108, 233, 236
- rosacea
 etiology, 311–12
 nature of, 308
 prevalence, 10, 309–10
 psychiatric comorbidity, 313–14 psychological interventions, 319–20 role of blushing, 316–19
- Rubin, K. H., 154
- rule violation
 and blushing, 64, 65, 245, 246–7, 254, 271
 and fear of blushing, 296
 and shame, 232, 245, 334
- Sabini, J., 121, 122, 132, 138, 190, 232, 233
- safety behaviours, 274, 295, 296, 299
- Salzen, E., 93, 236
- Scheff, T. J., 113, 211, 213, 226, 233, 236, 237
- Schmidt, L. A., 7, 148, 152, 153, 154, 156, 158, 163, 165, 166, 167, 168, 170,
 249, 338
- Schnegg, M., 101, 231, 329
- Scholing, A., 267, 280, 286, 296
- Scott, S., 8–9, 204, 205, 206, 207, 210, 214, 217, 337–8
- self-conscious affect, 102–5
 development, 110
- self-conscious emotions, 89, 94, 100, 128,
 129, 130, 204, 210, 219, 245
- self-consciousness, 25, 63, 89, 90, 209, 211, 212, 215, 233, 273, 315
 and blush, 209
 and shyness, 206–8, 209
 in adolescence, 102, 105–6
 in childhood, 102
 produced by blush, 209
- Self-Consciousness Scale, 51
- self-focused attention, 25, 272–5, 293, 299, 316
- self-presentation strategies, 211–12, 216–17, 337
- Semin, G. R., 123, 196, 197, 251
- Setchell, J. M., 81, 82
- sexual elements of blush, 341–2
- shame
 about blushing, 211
 and exposure, 224–5
 and positive attention, 234–5

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-01393-3 - The Psychological Significance of the Blush

Edited by W. Ray Crozier and Peter J. de Jong

Index

More information

Index

349

- and rosacea, 314, 316
- blush as sign of, 91
- blush with, 3, 230, 231, 232, 237, 244–6, 336
- display, 251, 253
- distinct from embarrassment, 138–40, 230, 231–3, 246, 252
- identification of, 129
 - in computer avatars, 66
 - motivates behaviour, 101
- shame-related affect, 101–2, 105, 115, 334
- Shearn, D., 5, 19, 23, 40, 42, 44, 47, 54, 70, 124, 125, 127, 246
- Shields, S. A., 63, 108, 243, 248, 259, 267
- shy blush
 - and self-consciousness, 209
 - as stigmatizing, 205, 208–12
- shy self, the, 207
- shyness
 - and blushing, 3, 208, 222
 - and social anxiety disorder, 31, 148, 153
 - as self-conscious emotion, 101
 - perception of facial expressions, 167
 - temperamental, 153–4, 165
- signal
 - blush as, 92, 93–4, 242–4, 249–53, 257, 259, 331–3
- Silver, M., 121, 190, 232
- Simon, A., 63, 108, 243, 248, 259, 267
- sincerity of blush, 249, 253, 257, 259, 260, 332, 335
- smile control, 124, 139, 140
- smiling, 65, 102, 103, 104, 124–5, 139, 140
- social anxiety
 - and blushing, 170–1
 - and blushing propensity, 30
 - and rosacea, 315–16, 317, 319, 320
 - EEG studies, 165, 167–8
 - nature of, 147–8
 - neuroimaging studies, 152, 165–9
 - perception of facial expressions, 165–7
 - psychophysiological studies, 170
- social anxiety disorder (SAD)
 - and blushing, 27–8, 31–2, 286
 - and blushing phobia, 212
 - measurement of blush, 46
 - pattern of brain activity, 165
 - scores on Blushing, Trembling and Sweating Questionnaire, 51
 - self-focused attention, 293, 299
 - social anxiety spectrum, 148
 - treatments of, 287, 291–3, 295–9, 301–2
 - with and without fear of blushing, 28, 286–7
- social evaluation model
 - compared to dramaturgic model of embarrassment, 121–2, 190–2
 - of embarrassment, 121, 138, 190–3, 334, 336
- spotlight effect, 69, 106, 193–4
- staring
 - as trigger of blush, 69–70
- Stegge, H., 7, 101, 102, 105, 108, 110, 112, 114, 334
- Strathern, A., 231
- Su, D., 10, 22, 30, 311, 315, 316, 317, 319
- submissiveness, 91, 165, 170, 171, 248, 259, 328, 335
- sweating, 47
 - as measure of blush, 49–50
 - excessive, 21
 - gustatory, 21
- symbolic interactionism, 204, 205, 213
- sympathetic nervous system, 4, 16–17, 19–21, 27, 28, 125–6, 127, 248, 327, 328–9
- Tangney, J. P., 120, 138, 139, 140, 190, 204, 246, 250
- Taylor, G., 224, 225, 231, 233
- theory of mind, 90, 94, 128, 129, 130
- thermoregulation, 4, 21–2, 39–40, 50, 243, 311, 328, 340
- Tinbergen, N., 78, 79, 243, 249
- trustworthiness
 - blush indicates, xii, 66, 91, 101, 198, 203, 251, 254, 256, 257, 260, 333
 - in human evolution, xii
 - judged from face, 260, 333
- undesired social attention
 - and blush, 109, 204, 224, 234, 248, 334
- undesired social attention theory, 68–71, 73–4, 234, 247–8
- van Hooff, J. A. R. A. M., 6, 87, 88, 90, 92, 94, 249, 328, 331, 335, 341
- vasodilation, 5, 17, 18–20, 24, 27, 31, 33, 50, 63, 83, 86, 127, 235, 236, 238, 243, 311, 317, 328
- Voncken, M. J., 19, 20, 27, 28, 44, 46, 53, 67, 194, 212, 270, 274, 276, 286, 287, 291, 295, 297, 298, 300, 301, 302, 320, 337
- Wilkin, J., 20, 243