THE ARCHAEOLOGY OF POWER AND POLITICS IN EURASIA

Regimes and Revolutions

For thousands of years, the geography of Eurasia has facilitated travel, conquest, and colonization by various groups, from the Huns in ancient times to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics in the last century. This book brings together archaeological investigations of Eurasian regimes and revolutions ranging from the Bronze Age to the modern day, from Eastern Europe and the Caucasus in the west to the Mongolian steppe and the Korean Peninsula in the east. The authors examine a wide-ranging series of archaeological studies in order to better understand the role of politics in the history and prehistory of the region. This book reevaluates the significance of power, authority, and ideology in the emergence and transformation of ancient and modern societies in this vast continent.

Charles W. Hartley is a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Chicago. He most recently published (with Alan Greene) "From Analog to Digital: Protocols and Program for a Systematic Digital Radiography of Archaeological Pottery," in Vessels: Inside and Outside, Proceedings of the Conference EMAC '07, Ninth European Meeting on Ancient Ceramics, edited by Katalin Biró, Veronika Szilágyi, and Attila Kreiter.

G. Bike Yazıcıoğlu is a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of Near Eastern Languages and Civilizations at the University of Chicago. Her published work includes "Archaeological Politics of Anatolia: Imaginative Identity of an Imaginative Geography," in Social Orders and Social Landscapes, edited by L. M. Popova, C. W. Hartley, and A. T. Smith.

Adam T. Smith is a professor of anthropology at Cornell University. His publications include The Political Landscape: Constellations of Authority in Early Complex Polities and The Archaeology and Geography of Ancient Transcaucasian Societies I: The Foundations of Research and Regional Survey in the Tsaghkahovit Plain, Armenia (coauthored with R. Badalyan and P. Avertisyan).
