Contents

List of Tables  xi
Acknowledgments  xiii

1  Introduction  1
2  Conceiving Cooperation among American Newspapers, 1848–1892  9
   Conduits, Content, and Collusion: The Combination of the NYAP and Western Union  17
   The Advent and Growth of Regional Cooperation  24
   From Regional to National Cooperation: The Importance of Leased Lines  36
3  Cooperation, Competition, and Regulation in the United States, 1893–1945  46
   The Formation and Ascendance of the AP  46
   The Legal Limits of Exclusivity: Inter-Ocean v. AP and the Membership Corporations Law of New York  51
   How Property Rights Reinforced Exclusivity: The Case of INS v. AP  60
   Competition Contrived and Cooperation Expanded: The AP and the UP  67
4  The “Rationalist Illusion,” the Post Office, and the Press, 1868–1913  88
   Forging the Settlement of 1868  89
   Cooperation and Exclusion under a Postal-Telegraph Regime  99
   Private Wires, Telephony, and the Dissolution of the Settlement of 1868  112
Contents

5 Private Enterprise, Public Monopoly, and the Preservation of Cooperation in Britain, 1914–1941
- The Consequences of World War I
- From Private Wire to Private Network: Leased Lines in Britain
- The PA-Reuters Merger: A Further Subsidy for the Provincial Press
- The Threat of the BBC, the Combination of Conduits and Content, and the Shift of the Press Subsidy to Radio

6 Reluctant Imperialist? Reuters in the British Empire, 1851–1947
- Forging Partnership in South Africa
- Between Raj and Revolt: Reuters’s Operations in India
- A Duel of Three: Reuters and the Australian Press
- The Threat of Imperial Broadcasting
- A Strategy of Diversification: Reuters, Radio, and the Rise of Market Intelligence

7 Cartel or Free Trade: Supplying the World’s News, 1856–1947
- Forging International Cooperation
- Competition and Cooperation: The Threat of the UP
- Toward an AP of APs
- Cooperative Competition

8 Conclusion

Bibliography

Index