

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-04280-3 - The Rani of Jhansi: Gender, History, and Fable in India

Harleen Singh

Frontmatter

More information

---

THE RANI OF JHANSI

Gender, History, and Fable in India

Harleen Singh

Brandeis University

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-04280-3 - The Rani of Jhansi: Gender, History, and Fable in India

Harleen Singh

Frontmatter

More information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge House, 4381/4 Ansari Road, Daryaganj, Delhi 110002, India

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.

It furthers the University's mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781107042803

© Harleen Singh 2014

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2014

Printed in India

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Singh, Harleen.

The Rani of Jhansi : gender, history and fable in India / Harleen Singh.

pages cm

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-1-107-04280-3 (hardback)

1. Lakshmibai, Rani of Jhansi, 1828-1858--Military leadership. 2. India--History--Sepoy Rebellion, 1857-1858--Historiography. 3. Lakshmibai, Rani of Jhansi, 1828-1858--In literature. 4. Lakshmibai, Rani of Jhansi, 1828-1858--In motion pictures. 5. Lakshmibai, Rani of Jhansi, 1828-1858--Legends. 6. Women revolutionaries--India--Biography. 7. Masculinity--Political aspects--India--History. 8. Nationalism--India--History. 9. India--Colonization--History. 10. India--History--British occupation, 1765-1947. I. Title.

DS475.2.L34S55 2014

954.03'17--dc23

[B]

2014003924

ISBN 978-1-107-04280-3 Hardback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-04280-3 - The Rani of Jhansi: Gender, History, and Fable in India

Harleen Singh

Frontmatter

More information

---

*This book is dedicated to my mother, Purnima Singh (1954–1980),
whose rebellion ended too soon,
and to my four-year-old daughter, Meher Rai,
whose rebellion has begun much earlier than expected.*

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-04280-3 - The Rani of Jhansi: Gender, History, and Fable in India

Harleen Singh

Frontmatter

More information

---

Contents

List of Figures	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
I. Introduction	1
II. Enslaving Masculinity: Rape Scripts and the Erotics of Power	33
III. India’s Aryan Queen: Colonial Ambivalence and Race in the Mutiny	67
IV. Coherent Pasts in Hindi Literature and Film	95
V. Unmaking the Nationalist Archive: Gender and Dalit Historiography	135
Afterword	163
Bibliography	169
Index	181

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-04280-3 - The Rani of Jhansi: Gender, History, and Fable in India

Harleen Singh

Frontmatter

More information

---

List of Figures

1. Congress Party poster from 2007	4
2. Examples of cover art from books on the Rani of Jhansi	5
3. Illustration from Lachmi Bai of Jhansi: The Jeanne D'Arc of India (1901)	75
4. Mehtab and Sohrab Modi in Jhansi ki Rani (1953)	123
5. Cover art from the Amar Chitra Katha series comic Rani of Jhansi	163

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-04280-3 - The Rani of Jhansi: Gender, History, and Fable in India
Harleen Singh
Frontmatter
More information

---

Acknowledgements

My schoolteachers in India, Mrs Jaspreet Grewal and the late Mrs Biba Bakshi, nurtured my early forays into literature, history, and writing—encouraged me to speak up when most times I was being told to quiet down.

I was fortunate to receive a university education in the United States. Professor Cheryl Mares continues to inspire me with the quality of her teaching and curiosity. I thank her here for never allowing me to turn in work that was not revised and rethought. She had a higher ambition for me than I had for myself, and my debt to her can never be repaid. My professors and lifelong friends Ella Magruder and Mark Magruder ensured my equal attention to the body in their dance courses. They gave me a home, sage advice, and taught me what it meant to live with love and joy. I could not have made it through college without them.

My dissertation advisor, Professor Rosemary Marangoly George, who tragically passed away in 2013, envisioned the book in my research and writing long before I could. She was gently stern and kept me focused when distractions abounded. I learnt from her scholarship, her pedagogy, and from her indefatigable spirit; I remember her with a deep regard and warmth. In the Literature Department at UCSD, Lisa Lowe, J. Jack Halberstam, Masao Miyoshi, Vicente Rafael, and Kathryn Shevlow provided seminars and conversations that have greatly informed my work.

Inderpal Grewal has been a mentor and friend for many years, who cannot be thanked enough for the conversations in Punjabi and for a meaningful solidarity. Vasudha Dalmia graciously shared her vast knowledge of Hindi literature and took a special interest in my work.

My years at Brandeis University have been filled with warmth and collegiality in the department of German, Russian, and Asian Languages and Literature. Robin Feuer Miller and Stephen Dowden protected and nurtured a young scholar, sharing with me their experience and wonderful humour. My friend

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-04280-3 - The Rani of Jhansi: Gender, History, and Fable in India

Harleen Singh

Frontmatter

More informationx Acknowledgements

Sabine Von Mering enthusiastically welcomed me into this diverse community and I thank her for the many years of generous friendship; I am delighted that my daughter has a Tante Bine. Matthew Fraleigh and I went through the tenure process together and were able to share our anxieties and our eventual celebration.

The Women's and Gender Studies Program at Brandeis provided a set of colleagues who inspire me with their stellar academic achievements and their continued commitment to social justice. Susan S. Lanser read more drafts of my work than anyone should ever have to—no better mentor exists. I have learned incredibly much from her as a feminist academic and aspire to the high standards she has set in the field. Sarah Lamb has been a special friend and colleague and I cannot thank her enough for being a caring didi. Faith Smith and Chae Ran Freeze read drafts and were a reservoir of support through all these years.

My friends and colleagues at Brandeis have spanned many departments and offices: I thank Daniel Terris for his support; Fernando Rosenberg for Tango and conversation; Joseph Wardwell for wine and BBQ, Govind Sreenivasan for talks on Indian parenting; and Anita Hill for her commitment to women of color in the academy.

I thank Robert Young for reading my work and providing valuable commentary even though I was not his student. Mala Pandurang and Sujata Mody helped greatly by reading drafts of individual chapters. Arvind Mandair, Pal Ahluwalia, Jasbir Puar, Virinder Kalra, and Tej Purewal have supported my work for many years. I am indebted to Anjali Arondekar, Christian Novetzke, and Andy Rotman for the immense support I received from them in this crucial year. Jyoti Puri read chapters from the book, looked out for me, and welcomed me into the South Asian feminist community in Boston. Rohin Mhatre prevented me from taking myself too seriously and provided friendship and laughter in good doses.

I thank Lucy Rhymer, Suvadip Bhattacharjee, and the editorial team at Cambridge University Press for their faith in the book. Encouraging and incisive comments from the anonymous reviewers greatly helped in revising the manuscript.

My friends David Morrow and Stephen Cope were special allies in San Diego. I thank them for fond memories of soccer, movies, food, and graduate school. Jason Stanyek—the drive back from Los Angeles, noodle soup on cold days, ceviche on Friday, and imaginary sandstorms. Sharad Chaudhary made the anxiety-ridden years of graduate school seem so romantic—it was a brilliant bit of false advertising that resulted in the scholar I am today. How can I put in

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-04280-3 - The Rani of Jhansi: Gender, History, and Fable in India

Harleen Singh

Frontmatter

More informationAcknowledgements xi

words our shared love for the Bull Durham Blues Festival, Little Willie John, Asterix, and Sandman?

My childhood friends Vinit Jensen and Kimi Bhomia have stood by me through thick and thin—it is a wonder to now share the experience of watching our daughters grow. Japjit Singh Bagga, Shivjit Singh Bagga, Aditya Trehan, Sai Kiran Chaudhuri, Ajay Rangray, and Rajiv Madhok have been up to no good since we were ten years old, and thankfully nothing is changing that soon. Jasspreet Singh Rai and Simarjit Singh Bagga left us too early—they are missed. I thank Anu and Kush Singh, and their lovely children, Udai Bir and Saloni, for allowing me to be a part of their family. I have shared a special relationship with Nazm and Kudrat Singh, just as our mothers did.

A large and loving group of people constitutes my family in Canada, the United States, England, and India: Kiran and Rajinder Roy, Dr Saranjit and Dr Gursharan Nahl, Amrit and Harjinder Singh, Rewa and Deepak Dharni. Thank you Guddi Bhua for more than I can say here; thank you Cuckoo Masi for all your songs; thank you Deepak Mamu for all your love; and thank you Ginni Chachu for “Bhoot Singh Shaitan.” My grandmothers, Sharda Bhardwaj and Prakash Kaur, and my grandfathers, Captain Gopal Krishna Dharni and Major Harbhajan Singh, left a legacy of love and resilience. I thank my loving cousins for an irreplaceable sisterhood: Lovleen Sagar for a shared childhood; Simran Roy for sharing her mother with me; and Prerna Dharni for a heartfelt love. You make me proud everyday, Preru. My father, Sarabjit Singh, taught me how to read and spent time reading with me—it is his truest gift. My in-laws, Major Charanjit Singh Rai and Mrs Baljit Kaur Rai, gave me a home, love, and unconditional support for my life as a scholar. No parents could have done more. They are deeply loved.

I have shared a long journey with my brother, Shamsheer Singh, and my sisters, Nanki Singh and Tripti Singh—their love sustains me. No bond could be stronger.

My husband, Avinash Singh Rai, is my north, my south, my east, my west—I would be lost without him. Our daughter, Meher Rai, has brought a meaning and measure to my life that is beyond words—she is my best work.