

THE CAMBRIDGE HISTORY OF REFORMATION-ERA THEOLOGY

The Cambridge History of Reformation-Era Theology explores the key developments in both Protestant and Catholic theology ca. 1475–1650. Examining the various settings and schools in which theology was formulated and taught, and the social backgrounds of its exponents – including women and non-university-trained men, as well as writers both in and outside Europe – it establishes how the major denominations took their positions and participated in a broader discourse. The volume examines specific theological themes from different confessional perspectives, demonstrating how theology affected the lives of believers via pastoral theology, canon law, and spirituality, and how theological ideas were linked to politics, warfare, science, and the arts. Written by an international team of leading scholars in the field, this History expands the range of theological discourse by introducing new topics and spokespersons, as well as global and ecumenical perspectives. It will remain the definitive place to begin any further study of theology during this period for years to come.

KENNETH G. APPOLD is the James Hastings Nichols Professor of Reformation History at Princeton Theological Seminary and has written extensively on the history and theology of the Reformation and post-Reformation periods. He was formerly a professor at the Institute for Ecumenical Research in Strasbourg, France, and remains active in Lutheran ecumenical work.

NELSON H. MINNICH is Ordinary Professor of Church History at the Catholic University of America. He works primarily on early sixteenth-century conciliar and papal history. Between 1993 and 2019 he published four books and edited or co-edited four others. The recipient of numerous fellowships and a former member of the Pontifical Committee of Historical Sciences, he has been the editor of the Catholic Historical Review since 2005.

Acknowledgments

As with any volume of this size, there is a long list of persons without whom the work would have been impossible or more difficult. The editors wish especially to thank the Very Rev. Dr. Iain Torrance for supporting the project since its inception. Sincere thanks are also due the Cambridge University Press editors who have shepherded the process throughout its various phases of development: Kate Brett, Laura Morris, and Beatrice Rehl. Finally, the international composition of the volume called for considerable translating work. The editors are grateful to Dr. Stefan Megyery for translating Mariano Delgado's chapter, Dr. Margaret Katya Mouris for help editing the Spanish-language essays, Nelson H. Minnich for translating Ana Morisi's contribution, Nicholas Hopman and Kenneth G. Appold for translating Markus Matthias's chapter, and Kenneth G. Appold for translating the chapter by Walter Sparr. We thank Jonathan Gaworski for editorial help with footnotes, made possible by the Annabelle Melville Fund; and Briana Grenert for her work in fashioning the sizable index, with support from Princeton Theological Seminary. And we especially thank Mary Starkey for her sensitive and thorough copy-editing of this large work. There are many others in our personal and professional lives whose counsel and inspiration has enriched our work throughout these years, and though they cannot all be named here, we remain mindful of their contributions and grateful for their support.
