Discourse on Leadership

In a wide-ranging and provocative new study, Bert A. Spector provides a critical analysis of past and present theories of leadership. Spector asserts that our perception of leadership influences who we vote for, who we hire and promote, and ultimately to whom we choose grant our authority. Focusing on leadership in discourse, the book sets out to explore how the notion of leadership has been articulated, studied, and debated by academics, but also by practitioners, journalists, and others who seek to influence the thoughts of others. Paying particular attention to the social, economic, political, intellectual, and historical forces that have helped shape the discussion, Discourse on Leadership offers an insightful historiography of leadership as a concept and how our understanding of it continues to evolve.

BERT A. SPECTOR (PhD, American History) is Associate Professor of International Business and Management at Northeastern University's D'Amore-McKim School of Business. His research interests include organizational change, leadership, business model innovation, and management history. His articles have appeared in Leadership, Management & Organizational History and the Harvard Business Review. He is the author/co-author of seven previous books, including The Critical Path to Corporate Renewal which received the Johnson, Smith, and Knisely Award for New Perspectives on Executive Leadership. He has been a visiting professor at MIT's Sloan School of Management and INSEAD.

Acknowledgments

It is always wise to start acknowledgments by recognizing the invaluable contributions of those closest to you. In the D'Amore-McKim School of Business at Northeastern University in Boston, my gratitude (and apologies for being a constant source of pestering!) to Nick Athanassiou, Allan Bird, Paula Caligiuri, Len Glick, Harry Lane, Jeanne McNett, Donald Margotta, Joe Raelin, and Christian Thoroughgood. At the larger university, my thanks to James Dendy (Snell Library), Maureen Kelleher (Sociology), Stephen Nathanson (Philosophy), and Kathrin Zippel (Sociology). I also want to thank Lori Lefkowitz and Tim Cresswell of the Northeastern University's Humanities Center as well as the 2014–2105 Humanities Fellows with whom I shared a productive and insight-producing year. Beyond Northeastern, my appreciation for the contributions of Françoise Chevalier (HEC-Paris), David Collinson (Lancaster University Management School), Keith Grint (University of Warwick Business School), Barbara Kellerman (Harvard University Kennedy School of Government), Deborah Kolb (Simmons College and the Harvard Law School Program on Negotiations), Karen Ward Mahar (Siena College), Albert Mills (Saint Mary's University), Andrew Pettigrew (University of Oxford Said Business School), José Santos (INSEAD), Günter Stahl (Vienna University of Economics and Business), and Dennis Tourish (Royal Holloway University of London and Leadership). Finally, my thanks to the two professors who served as mentors in my training as a historian: Richard Kirkendall and David Thelen.
