

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
978-1-107-05286-4 — Great Lakes Creoles: A French-Indian Community
on the Northern Borderlands, Prairie du Chien, 1750–1860
Lucy Eldersveld Murphy
Frontmatter
More Information

Great Lakes Creoles

A case study of one of America's many multi-ethnic border communities, Great Lakes Creoles builds upon recent research on gender, race, ethnicity, and politics as it examines the ways that the old fur-trade families experienced and responded to the colonialism of United States expansion. Lucy Eldersveld Murphy examines Indian history with attention to the pluralistic nature of American communities and the ways that power, gender, race, and ethnicity were contested and negotiated in them. She explores the role of women as mediators shaping key social, economic, and political systems, as well as the creation of civil political institutions and the ways that men of many backgrounds participated in and influenced them. Ultimately, Great Lakes Creoles takes a careful look at Native people and their complex families as active members of an American community in the Great Lakes region.

Lucy Eldersveld Murphy is Associate Professor of History at the Ohio State University, Newark.

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
 978-1-107-05286-4 — Great Lakes Creoles: A French-Indian Community
 on the Northern Borderlands, Prairie du Chien, 1750–1860
 Lucy Eldersveld Murphy
 Frontmatter
More Information

Studies in North American Indian History

Editors

Frederick Hoxie, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign
 Neal Salisbury, Smith College
 Tiya Miles, University of Michigan
 Ned Blackhawk, Yale University

This series is designed to exemplify new approaches to the Native American past. In recent years scholars have begun to appreciate the extent to which Indians, whose cultural roots extended back for thousands of years, shaped the North American landscape as encountered by successive waves of immigrants. In addition, because Native Americans continually adapted their cultural traditions to the realities of the Euro-American presence, their history adds a thread of non-Western experience to the tapestry of American culture. Cambridge Studies in North American Indian History brings outstanding examples of this new scholarship to a broad audience. Books in the series link Native Americans to broad themes in American history and place the Indian experience in the context of social and economic change over time.

Also in the Series

Sidney L. Harring Crow Dog's Case: American Indian Sovereignty, Tribal Law, and United States Law in the Nineteenth Century
 Colin G. Calloway The American Revolution in Indian Country: Crisis and Diversity in Native American Communities
 Frederick E. Hoxie Parading through History: The Making of the Crow Nation in America, 1805–1935
 Jean M. O'Brien Dispossession by Degrees: Indian Land and Identity in Natick, Massachusetts, 1650–1790
 Claudio Saunt A New Order of Things: Property, Power, and the Transformation of the Creek Indians, 1733–1816
 Jeffrey Ostler The Plains Sioux and U.S. Colonialism from Lewis and Clark to Wounded Knee
 David J. Silverman Faith and Boundaries: Colonists, Christianity, and the Community among the Wampanoag Indians of Martha's Vineyard, 1600–1871
 John Bowes Exiles and Pioneers: Indians in the Trans-Mississippi West
 Richard White The Middle Ground: Indians, Empires, and Republics in the Great Lakes Region, 1650–1815 2nd ed.

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
978-1-107-05286-4 — Great Lakes Creoles: A French-Indian Community
on the Northern Borderlands, Prairie du Chien, 1750–1860
Lucy Eldersveld Murphy
Frontmatter
More Information

Great Lakes Creoles

A French-Indian Community on the Northern Borderlands, Prairie du Chien, 1750–1860

LUCY ELDERSVELD MURPHY

The Ohio State University, Newark

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
 978-1-107-05286-4 — Great Lakes Creoles: A French-Indian Community
 on the Northern Borderlands, Prairie du Chien, 1750–1860
 Lucy Eldersveld Murphy
 Frontmatter
More Information

CAMBRIDGE
 UNIVERSITY PRESS

Shaftesbury Road, Cambridge CB2 8EA, United Kingdom

One Liberty Plaza, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10006, USA

477 Williamstown Road, Port Melbourne, VIC 3207, Australia

314–321, 3rd Floor, Plot 3, Splendor Forum, Jasola District Centre, New Delhi – 110025, India

103 Penang Road, #05–06/07, Visioncrest Commercial, Singapore 238467

Cambridge University Press is part of Cambridge University Press & Assessment, a department of the University of Cambridge.

We share the University's mission to contribute to society through the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781107052864

© Lucy Eldersveld Murphy 2014

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press & Assessment.

First published 2014

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication data

Murphy, Lucy Eldersveld, 1953–

Great Lakes Creoles : a French-Indian community on the northern borderlands, Prairie du Chien, 1750–1860 / by Lucy Eldersveld Murphy, Associate Professor of History, Ohio State University, Newark.

pages cm. – (Studies in North American Indian history)

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-1-107-05286-4 (hardback) –

ISBN 978-1-107-67474-5 (pbk.)

1. Creoles – Wisconsin – Prairie du Chien – History. 2. Prairie du Chien (Wis.) – History. 3. Prairie du Chien (Wis.) – Race relations – History. I. Title.

F589.P8M87 2014

305.8009775'74–dc23 2014002459

ISBN 978-1-107-05286-4 Hardback

ISBN 978-1-107-67474-5 Paperback

Cambridge University Press & Assessment has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
978-1-107-05286-4 — Great Lakes Creoles: A French-Indian Community
on the Northern Borderlands, Prairie du Chien, 1750–1860
Lucy Eldersveld Murphy
Frontmatter
More Information

For my family, past, present, and future.

Contents

List of Tables	page x
List of Figures	xi
Acknowledgments	xiii
Introduction	1
1. “The Rightful Owners of the Soil”: Colonization and Land	24
2. “To Intermeddle in Political Affairs”: New Institutions, Elections, and Lawmaking	65
3. “Damned Yankee Court and Jury”: More New Institutions, Keeping Order and Peace	108
4. Public Mothers: Women, Networks, and Changing Gender Roles	148
5. “A Humble ... People”: Economic Adaptations	187
6. Blanket Claims and Family Clusters: Autonomy, Land, Migration, and Persistence	241
Conclusion	288
Epilogue	301
Index	309

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
978-1-107-05286-4 — Great Lakes Creoles: A French-Indian Community
on the Northern Borderlands, Prairie du Chien, 1750–1860
Lucy Eldersveld Murphy
Frontmatter
More Information

Tables

1.1. Prairie du Chien Ethnicity, 1817	page 34
2.1. Territorial Elections at Prairie du Chien	96
2.2. Prairie du Chien Creole Proportion of the Population	104
3.1. Petit Jurors, Prairie du Chien, 1823–1833, Percent Creole	122
4.1. Crawford County, Wisconsin, Marriages, 1820–1848	158
5.1. Prairie du Chien Population, 1816–1860	203
5.2. Prairie du Chien, 1850, Occupational Categories of Men	219

Figures

I.1.	Louis Barrette	page 2
I.2.	Caroline Powers Barrette and children	3
1.1.	Western Great Lakes fur-trade territory	28
1.2.	Plan of the settlement at Prairie des Chiens	52
1.3.	Antaya Kin Map	59
2.1.	Territorial changes, 1800–1838	67
2.2.	James Duane Doty	68
2.3.	Joseph Rolette	97
2.4.	Jane Fisher Rolette Dousman	98
2.5.	Prairie du Chien voter turnout, 1823–1837	101
3.1.	Indian land cessions	138
3.2.	Prairie du Chien petit jurors and population	139
3.3.	Nominated petit jurors and population, 1836–1860	140
5.1.	Prairie du Chien in 1836	188
5.2.	Hercules Dousman	200
5.3.	Julian Carriere	224
5.4.	Prairie du Chien farms	226
6.1.	Euphrosine Antaya Powers	242
6.2.	Bird’s-eye view map	267
6.3.	Albert Coryer map	268
6.4.	Coryer map, detail 1	269
6.5.	Coryer map, detail 2	270
6.6.	“The Oyster Club”	271
E.1.	Carl Valley, April 1951	305

Acknowledgments

This project has taken over a dozen years, even though I have had an amazing amount of help from all kinds of people. The administration at Ohio State University, Newark, where I work, has given generous support in the form of travel and research funds and leaves of absence. Two fellowships at the Newberry Library in Chicago in 1998–9 and 2006–7 provided wonderful opportunities to find sources, reflect on the project, and engage with other scholars in a nurturing environment. I am grateful to the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Lloyd Lewis Fellowship, and the Committee on Institutional Cooperation American Indian Studies Consortium for funding them, and to the entire Newberry family for creating and sustaining such an awesome site of learning. The Newberry's librarians were extremely helpful, particularly John Aubrey, whose expertise in this area is legendary. Since the mid-nineteenth century, the Wisconsin Historical Society has saved and shared an amazing assortment of the Midwestern past. There, Genealogy Reference Librarian James L. Hansen has been an extraordinary resource, given his great knowledge of the old fur-trade families and his generous willingness to share what he knows.

Numerous friends and colleagues have read drafts of my chapters and conference papers and given their advice and suggestions. They include Rebecca Kugel, Richard Shiels, Allan Kulikoff, Wendy Hamand Venet, Joan Jensen, Frederick Hoxie, Daniel Usner, John Brooke, Randy Roth, Michael Les Benedict, Rowena McClinton, Jennifer Brown, Lisbeth Haas, and one anonymous reviewer. I have done my best to revise according to their good advice but am sure I have fallen short in some respects; I truly appreciate their wise assistance. I am also grateful for many conversations about fur-trade families, colonization, race and ethnicity, and other related topics with OSU colleagues and friends Katherine Borland, Alcira Dueñas, Judy Wu, Lilia Fernandez, Marti Chaatsmith, Christine Ballengee Morris, Margaret Newell, Chad Allen, Peter Hennen, and Kathryn Magee Labelle. Many other friends, fellow conference participants, and Newberry Fellows shared ideas and suggestions, including Theda Perdue, R. David Edmunds, Neal Salisbury, Susan Sleeper-Smith, Heather Devine, Anne Hyde, Jacqueline Peterson, Carolyn Podruchny, Sherry Ferrell Recette, Pierre Lebeau, Denys Delage, Laurier Turgeon, Diana Robin, Kathleen Conzen, Jameson Sweet, Clara Sue Kidwell, Theresa M. Schenck, and Leslie Choquete. Furthermore, Linda Waggoner, Tanis Thorne, Nicole St-Onge, Dennis Au, and Carl Ekberg gave helpful guidance and even shared research materials. James McClurken kindly trained me in land research methods. And it was my privilege to have had many long conversations about this project with the late Helen Tanner, who knew everything about Great Lakes ethnohistory.

In Prairie du Chien, Michael Douglass, former director of the Villa Louis Historic Site, gave me encouragement, allowed access to the site's archives, drove me around to historic places, and helped me to connect with local people who could assist me with my research. Susan Caya-Slusser, the present director, was one of them, as were president of the Prairie du Chien Historical Society Mary Antoine, Josh Wachuta, Myra and Chuck Lang, Marcella Cornford, and Dean Cornford. Sandy Halverson at St. Gabriel's Church was also very helpful.

The Barrette family – Phil and Doris Barrette, Geri Curley, and Rosemary Stephens – greeted me at my first meeting with them by giving me a copy of a photograph of Euphrosine Antaya Powers, whose importance I had yet to understand. They and their relative Virginia Barrette Powell were extremely generous in sharing family documents and pictures over the years. Similarly, the late Mary Valley and her daughter Bette Valley Beneker befriended me and helped me to understand the values, history, and culture of the people of the Fourth Ward. Mike Valley and Lori Valley Frisbee were also very kind in chatting with me about the history of their family and community.

Dale Klemme and Cheryl Mader live in the old home of Euphrosine Antaya and Strange Powers. They kindly invited me over to see the historic “French” log construction of the dwelling, to marvel at the many artifacts Dale has found under the house, and to sup with them. Dale also chatted with me at length about the Fourth Ward removal project of the mid-twentieth century.

Acknowledgments

xv

The efforts of my talented, smart, and wonderfully organized student assistants contributed significantly to this project. Dr. Cecily Barker McDaniel crunched and organized the census data when she was a graduate student at Ohio State. Undergraduate student assistants Christa Hupp, Trisha Bradley, Alicia Barringer, Danielle Nelson, Lori Carter-Devereaux, and Megan Cromwell assisted in numerous ways.

Earlier versions of parts of Chapters 4 and 6 found their way into two articles, “Public Mothers: Native American and Métis Women as Creole Mediators in the Nineteenth-Century Midwest” (Journal of Women’s History, special issue titled “Revising the Experiences of Colonized Women,” 14, no. 4 [Winter 2003]: 142–166) and “Women, Networks, and Colonization in Nineteenth-Century Wisconsin” (in Contours of a People: Metis Family, Mobility, and History, edited by Nicole St-Onge, Carolyn Podruchny, and Brenda MacDougall [Norman: University of Oklahoma Press, 2012]). I am grateful for the constructive feedback I received on them from Claire Robertson, Carolyn Podruchny, Nicole St-Onge, and Brenda MacDougall.

I am blessed to be working with editor Debbie Gershenowitz of Cambridge University Press whose wise enthusiasm is just what I needed to bring this project to completion. Working with Debbie and her able assistant Dana Bricken has been a real joy.

My wonderful family members have pitched in many times over the years: my children Bethany and Colin and my daughter-in-law Dannielle all spent time with me in archives, as did our dear friend Kate Stevenson. My mother Molly Wilson Magee joined me on some of my earliest trips to Prairie du Chien and Platteville, assisting me in visiting key sites and sifting through old court records. My father Samuel J. Eldersveld cheered me all along the way, always happy to discuss my research, especially when it touched on politics. My brother Sam encouraged (no doubt with some apprehensions) my efforts to quantify political data; Els Niewenhuijsen expressed enthusiasm for the project, and my aunt Wilma Phillips was always rooting for me. Cousins Mary and Dave Vanderhart sheltered me with much interest when I conducted research in and near our nation’s capital and politely refrained from expressing their wonder that this project was taking so darn long. Our newest family members, son-in-law Guillermo Gomez and grandchildren Finnegan, Alice, and Kellan, provided additional love and distractions – the perspective we all truly need.

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
978-1-107-05286-4 — Great Lakes Creoles: A French-Indian Community
on the Northern Borderlands, Prairie du Chien, 1750–1860
Lucy Eldersveld Murphy
Frontmatter
More Information

My terrific husband Tom has abided this amazingly drawn-out project with humor, affection, support, patience, and ideas, reading multiple drafts and helping to clarify my prose and data. He has been my strongest cheerleader, central to all I do.

I share credit for whatever virtues this project may have with these amazing relatives, friends, and scholars while reserving to myself blame for its shortcomings. I thank them all from the bottom of my heart.