China’s Civil War

China’s Civil War is the first book of its kind to offer a social history in English of the Civil War in 1945–1949 that brought the Chinese Communist Party to power. Integrating history and memory, it surveys a period of intense upheaval and chaos to show how the Communist Party and its armies succeeded in overthrowing the Nationalist government to bring political and social revolution to China. Drawing from a collection of biographies, memoirs, illustrations and oral histories, Diana Lary gives a voice to those who experienced the war first-hand, exemplifying the direct effects of warfare – the separations and divisions, the exiles and losses, and the social upheaval that resulted from the conflict. Lary explores the long-term impact on Chinese societies on the Mainland, Taiwan and Hong Kong, which have all diverged far from pre-war Chinese society.

DIANA LARY is Emeritus Professor of History at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver.
New Approaches to Asian History

This dynamic new series publishes books on the milestones in Asian history, those that have come to define particular periods or to mark turning points in the political, cultural and social evolution of the region. The books in this series are intended as introductions for students to be used in the classroom. They are written by scholars whose credentials are well-established in their particular fields and who have, in many cases, taught the subject across a number of years.

Books in the series

1. Judith M. Brown, Global South Asians: Introducing the Modern Diaspora
2. Diana Lary, China’s Republic
3. Peter A. Lorge, The Asian Military Revolution: From Gunpowder to the Bomb
4. Ian Talbot and Gurharpal Singh, The Partition of India
5. Stephen F. Dale, The Muslim Empires of the Ottomans, Safavids, and Mughals
7. Sunil S. Amrith, Migration and Diaspora in Modern Asia
8. Thomas David DuBois, Religion and the Making of Modern East Asia
9. Susan L. Mann, Gender and Sexuality in Modern Chinese History
10. Tirthankar Roy, India in the World Economy: From Antiquity to the Present
12. Li Feng, Early China: A Social and Cultural History
China’s Civil War

_A Social History, 1945–1949_

Diana Lary

_University of British Columbia, Vancouver_
This book is dedicated to the many Chinese who believed in progress and change for the country they loved, but, after the Civil War, were denied the chance to contribute their talents. They were persecuted in China, or forced to leave or to stay away from the country.
Contents

List of figures viii
List of tables ix
List of maps x
Acknowledgements xi

Introduction 1
1 The social background to the Civil War 22
2 Ending one war, beginning another: August 1945–June 1946 38
3 Turning points: July 1946–June 1947 80
4 All-out war: July 1947–June 1948 109
5 Nearing the end: July 1948–January 1949 138
6 The end game: February–December 1949 168
7 Immediate outcomes: the early 1950s 195
8 Social outcomes of the Civil War 217

Conclusion 239

Glossary 265
Index 276
Figures

1 Comparative military strengths
2 Chiang Kai-shek and Mao Zedong
3 Comparative military strengths 1946, Column 1
4 Zhou Zuoren
5 A traitor
6 Winter campaign
7 CCP propaganda
8 Wounded soldier, Feng Zikai
9 Jiang Qing, 1946
10 Comparative military strengths 1947–1948, Column 2
11a & b Destroyed tracks
12 New PLA recruits
13 Jovial PLA soldier
14 The PLA enters Beiping
15 Comparative military strengths 1949, Column 4
16 CCP control, mid-1949
17 Pu Yi as emperor of Manzhouguo
18 Happy young woman
19 Officer sewing
Tables

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>0.1 Selected regions of China</td>
<td>19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.1 Prominent Chinese prosecuted for treachery</td>
<td>44</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.2 Military materiel seized from the Japanese armies by the GMD</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.3 Military materiel seized from the Japanese armies by the USSR</td>
<td>61</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.1 Fubi to US dollar and wholesale price index at Shanghai, 1946–1947</td>
<td>90</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4.1 Rise in the wholesale price index and the cost of living at Shanghai, 1947–1948</td>
<td>117</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4.2 The rapidly increasing government deficit</td>
<td>117</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4.3 Changchun: population shifts</td>
<td>123</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.1 PLA victories, January 1949</td>
<td>142</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.2 GMD troop losses, January 1949</td>
<td>145</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.3 Captured GMD generals</td>
<td>146</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.4 Beiping currencies, late 1948</td>
<td>150</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.1 The colour red: symbolic uses</td>
<td>200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8.1 Political campaigns in the early PRC</td>
<td>234</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C.1 Ghosts and spirits in Chinese</td>
<td>252</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C.2 Chinese identities</td>
<td>256</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C.3 Traditional and simplified characters</td>
<td>258</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Maps

1. CCP-controlled and influenced areas, late 1945  page 40
2. Shandong Peninsula and Liaodong Peninsula  58
3. Manchuria 1946  85
4. CCP-controlled areas in Shandong, mid-1947  86
5. Manchuria 1947  112
6. Besieged Changchun  124
7. HuaiHai Campaign  144
8. Beiping and the Western Hills  146
9. China, December 1949  178
Acknowledgements

I have had the idea of this book in my mind for a long time, ever since I first realised what an enormous impact the Civil War had had on Chinese society. But the war was so complicated, and so full of contradictions, that it has taken me until the last stage of my career to feel able to write it. Over that long time many people have helped me with the writing, by telling me of their own experiences, and by helping me with the research for it.

I have learnt most of all from my beloved teacher Jerome Ch’en (Chen Zhirang), whose own life was so influenced by the war. I will never be able to thank him enough for all the help he has given me. As a scholar and as someone who lived through the war his knowledge and insights have been invaluable to me.

In Beijing in 1964–1965, several people whose lives were changed by the Civil War gave me my earliest understanding of the effects of the war: Cao Richang, Selma Vos Tsao, Peng Ping, Pi Ge, Tang Kai, Yang Xianyi, Gladys Yang. These people were devoted to the creation of the new China, and paid very high prices for their devotion. All of them were cruelly victimised in the Cultural Revolution.

Over many years in Beijing and in Haadchao Samaran, Endymion Wilkinson has been a wonderful source of knowledge and the most perceptive and challenging person with whom to discuss ideas.

In Beijing over the past three decades many people have helped me. Wang Bingsheng introduced me to chengyu, a field in which he is a master. Li Zongyi, who died much too young, and Qi Wenxin have given me deep insights. Yang Tianshi has been a constant help and advisor.

In Hong Kong, Hai Chi-yuet, David Jones, C.C. Kwong, Kenzie Kwong, Willy Lam, Gianni Mok and Elizabeth Sinn have all given me help and helped me to an understanding of Hong Kong’s experience during and after the Civil War.

In Fujian, Li Minghuan and Wang Lianmao have helped me to understand the impact of the Civil War on Overseas Chinese.
In Vancouver, Alison Bailey, Phoebe Chow, Chu Shao-kang, Peter Eng, Colin Green, Jing Zhichun, Judy Lam Maxwell, Jing Liu, Joanne Poon, Shaun Wang, Alexander Woodside, Wu Yang, Dominic Yang, Helen Yu, Henry Yu, John Yu and Eleanor Yuen have all helped me in different, invaluable ways.

In Cambridge, Marigold Acland and Lucy Rhymer, at Cambridge University Press, have been the most astute and helpful of editors.

I give all these people my deepest thanks. My thanks go too to the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, whose financial support made this project possible.