

POPULAR GOVERNANCE OF POST-CONFLICT RECONSTRUCTION

Under what conditions does a post-conflict government have authority? What challenges to its legitimacy does it face? To what standards can it be held accountable? Via case studies of Sierra Leone and Afghanistan and detailed accounts of extant international law, Matthew Saul explores the international legal framework that regulates popular governance of post-conflict reconstruction.

MATTHEW SAUL is a post-doctoral research fellow at the University of Oslo, Norway.

CAMBRIDGE STUDIES IN INTERNATIONAL AND COMPARATIVE LAW

Established in 1946, this series produces high quality scholarship in the fields of public and private international law and comparative law. Although these are distinct legal sub-disciplines, developments since 1946 confirm their interrelations.

Comparative law is increasingly used as a tool in the making of law at national, regional and international levels. Private international law is now often affected by international conventions, and the issues faced by classical conflicts rules are frequently dealt with by substantive harmonisation of law under international auspices. Mixed international arbitrations, especially those involving state economic activity, raise mixed questions of public and private international law, while in many fields (such as the protection of human rights and democratic standards, investment guarantees and international criminal law) international and national systems interact. National constitutional arrangements relating to 'foreign affairs', and to the implementation of international norms, are a focus of attention.

The series welcomes works of a theoretical or interdisciplinary character, and those focusing on the new approaches to international or comparative law or conflicts of law. Studies of particular institutions or problems are equally welcome, as are translations of the best work published in other languages.

General Editors	James Crawford SC FBA Whewell Professor of International Law, Faculty of Law, University of Cambridge John S. Bell FBA Professor of Law, Faculty of Law, University of Cambridge
-----------------	---

A list of books in the series can be found at the end of this volume.

POPULAR GOVERNANCE OF POST-CONFLICT RECONSTRUCTION

The Role of International Law

MATTHEW SAUL

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
978-1-107-05531-5 — Popular Governance of Post-Conflict Reconstruction
Matthew Saul
Frontmatter
More Information

Shaftesbury Road, Cambridge CB2 8EA, United Kingdom

One Liberty Plaza, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10006, USA

477 Williamstown Road, Port Melbourne, VIC 3207, Australia

314–321, 3rd Floor, Plot 3, Splendor Forum, Jasola District Centre, New Delhi – 110025, India

103 Penang Road, #05–06/07, Visioncrest Commercial, Singapore 238467

Cambridge University Press is part of Cambridge University Press & Assessment, a department of the University of Cambridge.

We share the University's mission to contribute to society through the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781107055315

© Matthew Saul 2014

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press & Assessment.

First published 2014

First paperback edition 2019

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

ISBN 978-1-107-05531-5 Hardback

ISBN 978-1-107-66649-8 Paperback

Cambridge University Press & Assessment has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
978-1-107-05531-5 — Popular Governance of Post-Conflict Reconstruction
Matthew Saul
Frontmatter
More Information

Dedicated to the memory of Dr James Muiruri

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements page x

Introduction 1

PART I: Concepts and theories 13

1 The process of post-conflict reconstruction 15

 1.1 Introduction 15

 1.2 The sectors of reconstruction 16

 1.3 Sites for decision-making on reconstruction initiatives 21

 1.4 The role of international actors 25

 1.5 Conclusion 30

2 The legitimacy and effectiveness of post-conflict reconstruction 32

 2.1 Introduction 32

 2.2 The legitimacy of post-conflict reconstruction 32

 2.3 The effectiveness of post-conflict reconstruction 40

 2.4 A role for international law? 47

 2.5 Conclusion 52

PART II: The international legal framework 55

3 The international law for identifying governments in the immediate aftermath of conflict 57

 3.1 Introduction 57

 3.2 The partial international legal shield of post-conflict states: sovereignty 58

 3.3 The partial international legal shield of post-conflict states: self-determination 66

 3.4 Identifying domestic actors with governmental status following conflict 72

3.5	Appropriate for the post-conflict setting?	79
3.6	Conclusion	80
4	The international law for popular governance after conflict	82
4.1	Introduction	82
4.2	Creating a popular mandate	84
4.3	Mandating popular input activities?	89
4.4	Creating a public sphere	91
4.5	Derogation from the provisions	98
4.6	Generating compliance with the law	101
4.7	Regional variations in the law on popular governance	108
4.8	Conclusion	115
	PART III: The practice of popular governance	119
5	Popular governance and international law in the reconstruction of Sierra Leone	121
5.1	Introduction	121
5.2	The Sierra Leone reconstruction context	121
5.3	The identification of a government in the immediate aftermath of war	126
5.4	Creating a government with a popular mandate for governance	132
5.5	Generating direct popular input into decision making	140
5.6	Creating and protecting the public sphere	143
5.7	Conclusion	148
6	Popular governance and international law in the reconstruction of Afghanistan	151
6.1	Introduction	151
6.2	The Afghanistan reconstruction context	151
6.3	The identification of a government following conflict	159
6.4	The creation of governments with popular mandates	163
6.5	Consulting with the population	175
6.6	The development and communication of the views of the population	178
6.7	Conclusion	185
	PART IV: The way forward?	189
7	Ad hoc international legal regulation of post-conflict popular governance?	191

CONTENTS ix

7.1 Introduction	191
7.2 Popular governance at the UN Security Council	192
7.3 Popular governance in peace agreements	199
7.4 Popular governance in aid agreements	208
7.5 Conclusion	223
Conclusion	225
Bibliography	240
Index	263

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book stems from my long-standing research interest in how extensive international involvement in a state for the purpose of post-conflict reconstruction relates to international law. Over the years of working on this topic and related issues, I have been fortunate enough to benefit from the guidance, assistance, and good company of many fantastic colleagues and friends. I am extremely grateful for all of the support I have received. In particular, I thank Colin Warbrick for pointing me in the direction of this topic when I was an LLM student at Durham University, and Nigel White for supervising my first attempts to make sense of the topic when I was a PhD student at Sheffield University.

The manuscript was largely written, in spits and spurts, over the period 2011–2013. The first major block of writing was undertaken during a period of research leave in 2011–2012 from what was then my position as a lecturer in law at Durham Law School. Thanks to Durham Law School for granting me the leave and thanks to the Department of Public and International Law at the University of Oslo for providing me with an excellent space to work. The second block of writing was undertaken on my return to Oslo in 2013 as a researcher on the European Research Council (ERC) funded research project MultiRights. Thanks to the Norwegian Human Rights Centre (NCHR) for hosting me and thanks to Andreas Føllesdal and Geir Ulfstein for allowing me the time to finish the manuscript.

A number of people have helped me by reading and commenting on drafts of the initial book proposal and/or parts of the manuscript. In this respect, I am very grateful to Tawhida Ahmed, Marjan Ajevski, Tom Allen, Cecilia Baillet, Leiry Cornejo Chavez, Richard Collins, Claudio Corradetti, Linn Edvartsen, Duncan French, Andreas Føllesdal, Kjetil Larson, Aoife O'Donoghue, Johan Karlsson Schaffer, Mike Schmitt, Azin Tadjdini, Nino Tsereteli, Geir Ulfstein, Gary Wilson, and Gentian Zyberi. In addition, the manuscript has benefited from the very useful comments of three anonymous reviewers.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

xi

Thanks are due to the librarians who have supported my research, particularly Kirsten Fuglestved, Marta Herkenhoff, and Bård Sverre Tuseth. From Cambridge University Press, I am especially appreciative of the support that I have received from Elizabeth Spicer, Finola O'Sullivan, and Richard Woodham. Particular thanks are also due to Jacqueline French for excellent copy-editing assistance.

I thank my parents, Eileen and Mike, and my brother David for everything that they have done for me over the years, including the provision of encouragement at key points in the writing process. Finally, thanks to Linn for all the love, support, and fun times, ever since the early days in Durham.

This book is dedicated to the memory of Dr James Muiruri. James was killed in Kenya at the start of January 2009, only a couple of months after successfully defending his PhD at the University of Sheffield. James was a good friend, with an inspirational lust for life. James's thesis was entitled 'African Regional Peace and Security under the African Union's Constitutional Framework: Conflict or Compatibility'.