

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-07784-3 - Biometric State: The Global Politics of Identification and Surveillance in South Africa, 1850 to the Present

Keith Breckenridge

Table of Contents

More information

Contents

List of figures	page viii
Preface and acknowledgements	ix
Introduction: the global biometric arena	1
1 Science of empire: the South African origins and objects of Galtonian eugenics	27
2 Asiatic despotism: Edward Henry on the Witwatersrand	63
3 Gandhi's biometric entanglement: fingerprints, satyagraha and the global politics of Hind Swaraj	90
4 No will to know: biometric registration and the limited curiosity of the gatekeeper state	115
5 Verwoerd's bureau of proof: the Apartheid Bewysburo and the end of documentary government	138
6 Galtonian reversal: apartheid and the making of biometric citizenship	164
Epilogue: empire and the mimetic fantasy	196
Conclusion	213
Bibliography	219
Index	249