A History of English Autobiography explores the genealogy of autobiographical writing in England from the medieval period to the digital era. Beginning with an extensive introduction that charts important theoretical contributions to the field, this History includes wide-ranging essays that illuminate the legacy of English autobiography. Organised thematically, these essays survey the multilayered writings of such diverse authors as Chaucer, Bunyan, Carlyle, Newman, Wilde and Woolf. Written by a host of leading scholars, this History is the definitive single-volume collection on English autobiography and will serve as an invaluable reference for specialists and students alike.

A HISTORY OF ENGLISH AUTOBIOGRAPHY

EDITED BY

ADAM SMYTH

Oxford University
For Stephen Colclough
Contents

List of contributors

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>xi</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1. Introduction: The range, limits, and potentials of the form
   Adam Smyth

2. Medieval life-writing: Types, encomia, exemplars, patterns
   Barry Windeatt

3. Autobiographical selves in the poetry of Chaucer, Gower, Hoccleve, and Lydgate
   David Matthews

4. The radicalism of early modern spiritual autobiography
   Molly Murray

5. Inscribing the early modern self: The materiality of autobiography
   Kathleen Lynch

6. Re-writing revolution: Life-writing in the Civil Wars
   Suzanne Trill

7. Money, accounting, and life-writing, 1600–1700: Balancing a life
   Adam Smyth

PART 2 RELIGION, GENDER, THINGS (CA. 1700–1800)

8. Structures and processes of English spiritual autobiography from Bunyan to Cowper
   Tessa Whitehouse
viii

Contents

9 ‘Written by herself’: British women’s autobiography in the eighteenth century
Robert Folkenflik

10 The lives of things: Objects, it-narratives, and fictional autobiography, 1700–1800
Lynn Festa

11 Empiricist philosophers and eighteenth-century autobiography
John Richetti

PART 3 THE MANY NINETEENTH CENTURIES (CA. 1800–1900) 163

12 Working-class autobiography in the nineteenth century
David Vincent

13 Romantic life-writing
Duncan Wu

14 Nineteenth-century spiritual autobiography: Carlyle, Newman, Mill
Richard Hughes Gibson and Timothy Larsen

15 Emerging selves: The autobiographical impulse in Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Anne Thackeray Ritchie, and Annie Wood Besant
Carol Hanbery MacKay

16 Victorian artists’ autobiographies: Transgression, res gestae, and the collective life
Julie Codell

17 Victorian print culture: Periodicals and serial lives, 1830–1860
Stephen Colclough

PART 4 RELATIONAL LIVES AND FORMS OF REMEMBERING (CA. 1890–1930) 253

18 ‘Fusions and interrelations’: Family memoirs of Henry James, Edmund Gosse, and others
Max Saunders

19 Queer lives: Wilde, Sackville-West, and Woolf
Georgia Johnston
Contents

20 Anecdotal remembrance: Forms of First and Second World War life-writing
   Hope Wolf
284
21 Experiments in form: Modernism and autobiography in Woolf, Eliot, Mansfield, Lawrence, Joyce, and Richardson
   Laura Marcus
298
22 Psychoanalysis and autobiography
   Maud Ellmann
313

PART 5 KINDS OF COMMUNITY (CA. 1930–CONTEMPORARY) 329
23 Poetry and autobiography in the 1930s: Auden, Isherwood, MacNeice, Spender
   Michael O'Neill
331
24 Documenting lives: Mass Observation, women’s diaries, and everyday modernity
   Nick Hubble
345
25 Postcolonial autobiography in English: The example of Trinidad
   Bart Moore-Gilbert
359
26 Around 2000: Memoir as literature
   Joseph Brooker
374
27 Illness narratives
   Neil Vickers
388
28 Breaking the pact: Contemporary autobiographical diversions
   Roger Luckhurst
402
29 The machines that write us: Social media and the evolution of the autobiographical impulse
   Andreas Kitzmann
417

Index
433
List of contributors

JOSEPH BROOKER is Reader in Modern Literature at Birkbeck, University of London. He is the author of Joyce’s Critics (2004), Flann O’Brien (2005), and Literature of the 1980s: After the Watershed (2010), and has edited special issues of New Formations, Textual Practice, and Critical Quarterly.

MAUD ELLMANN is the Randy L. and Melvin R. Berlin Professor of the Development of the Novel in English at the University of Chicago. She has written widely on modernism and literary theory, including
List of contributors

Psychoanalysis, feminism, and animal studies. Her most recent book is The Nets of Modernism (Cambridge 2009), a study of James, Woolf, Joyce, and Freud.

Lynn Festa is Associate Professor of English at Rutgers University. She is the author of Sentimental Figures of Empire in Eighteenth-Century Britain and France (2006), and the co-editor, with Daniel Carey, of The Postcolonial Enlightenment: Eighteenth-Century Colonialism and Postcolonial Theory (2009).

Nick Hubble is Reader in English at Brunel University London and the author of Mass-Observation and Everyday Life (2006; 2nd edn. 2010), as well as chapters and articles on Mass Observation. He was a co-organiser of the Mass Observation 75th Anniversary Conference in 2013.

Richard Hughes Gibson is Associate Professor of English at Wheaton College. He is the author of Forgiveness in Victorian Literature: Grammar, Narrative, and Community (2015) as well as essays on Robert Browning, Thomas Hardy, and T. S. Eliot.

Georgia Johnston is Professor of English at Saint Louis University, where she studies the cultures and literature of the early twentieth century. She has particular interests in Modernist autobiography in terms of sexual theories of the period. Her publications include The Formation of 20th-century Lesbian Autobiography (2007).

Andreas Kitzmann is Associate Professor of Humanities at York University, Toronto. He has written widely on the impact of communications technology on the construction and practice of identity, electronic communities, and the influence of new media on narrative conventions. His publications include Memory and Migration: Multidisciplinary Approaches to Memory Studies (2011) and Saved From Oblivion: Documenting the Daily from Diaries to Web Cams (2004).

Timothy Larsen is McManis Professor of Christian Thought, Wheaton College, Wheaton, Illinois. A Fellow of the Royal Historical Society, he
List of contributors

Roger Luckhurst is Professor of Modern and Contemporary Literature at Birkbeck, University of London. He is the author of numerous books and articles, including, most recently, The Mummy’s Curse: The True Story of a Dark Fantasy (2012), and Zombies: A Cultural History (2015).

Kathleen Lynch is Executive Director of the Folger Institute. She researches the material culture of early modern English literature. Her book, Protestant Autobiography in the Seventeenth-Century Anglophone World (2012), directs critical attention to the collaborative processes by which truthful texts of spiritual experience were constructed and endorsed.

Carol Hanbery Mackay is the J. R. Milliken Centennial Professor of English literature and Affiliate of Women’s and Gender Studies at The University of Texas in Austin. Her most recent relevant publications include Creative Negativity: Four Victorian Exemplars of the Female Quest (2001) and a critical edition of Annie Besant’s Autobiographical Sketches (2009).

David Matthews is Senior lecturer in Middle English Literature and Culture at the University of Manchester. He is the author of Writing to the King: Nation, Kingship, and Literature in England (Cambridge 2010) and Medievalism: A Critical History (2015), and recently completed a six-year stint as editor of Studies in the Age of Chaucer.
Bart Moore-Gilbert is Professor of Postcolonial Studies and English at Goldsmiths, University of London, where he works on colonial and postcolonial literatures, postcolonial theory, and autobiographical writing. He is the author of many books and articles including Postcolonial Life-Writing: Culture, Politics and Self-Representation (2009) and The Setting Sun: a Memoir of Empire and Family Secrets (2014). He is currently working on a monograph about Palestine and postcolonialism.

Molly Murray is Associate Professor of English and Comparative Literature at Columbia University, New York. She is the author of The Poetics of Conversion in Early Modern English Literature: Verse and Change from Donne to Dryden (Cambridge 2009), as well as numerous articles and essays on the literature and culture of sixteenth- and seventeenth-century England. She is currently at work on a book-length study of literary communities in the early modern English prison.

John Richetti is A. M. Rosenthal Professor of English, Emeritus, at the University of Pennsylvania. His interest in the three British philosophers he writes about in this volume dates from his book Philosophical Writing: Locke, Berkeley, Hume (1983). He has published a number of books on the English novel and in particular on Daniel Defoe, including his The Life of Daniel Defoe: A Critical Biography (2005), and he has edited The Cambridge History of English Literature 1660-1780 (Cambridge 2005).

Max Saunders is Director of the Arts and Humanities Research Institute, Professor of English and Co-Director of the Centre for Life-Writing Research at King’s College London. He is the author of Ford Madox Ford: A Dual Life, 2 vols (1996) and Self Impression: Life-Writing, Autobiografiction, and the Forms of Modern Literature (2010).

Adam Smyth is the A. C. Bradley-J.C. Maxwell Tutorial Fellow in English Literature at Balliol College, Oxford, and University Lecturer in the History of the Book. His most recent books are Autobiography in Early Modern England (Cambridge 2010) and, co-edited with Gill Partington, Book Destruction from the Medieval to the Contemporary
List of contributors

Suzanne Trill is Senior Lecturer in English Literature at the University of Edinburgh. Her research focuses on women’s writing in England and Scotland (ca. 1550–1700), especially devotional literature. Her publications include Lady Anne Halkett; Selected Self-Writings (2008). She is currently working on a modernised edition of Halkett’s True Account of My Life for ‘The Other Voice’ series.

Neil Vickers is Reader in English Literature and the Medical Humanities at King’s College London. He led the project on illness narrative and subjective experience at the Centre for Humanities and Health. He is the author of Coleridge and the Doctors (2004), and of several articles on the literature and medicine.

Tessa Whitehouse is Lecturer in Eighteenth-Century Literature at Queen Mary University of London. She is the author of The Textual Culture of English Protestant Dissent 1720–1800 (2015) as well as chapters and articles on dissenting education, manuscript circulation, and epistolary culture. She currently researches friendship, memorial practices, and nonconformist women’s writing.

Barry Windeatt is Professor of English in the University of Cambridge, and Fellow and Keeper of Rare Books at Emmanuel College. Among many other publications, he has edited The Book of Margery Kempe (2000).

Hope Wolf is Lecturer in British Modernist Literature at the University of Sussex. Previously, she held a Research Fellowship in English at Girton College, University of Cambridge. An AHRC-funded Collaborative Doctoral Award between the Imperial War Museum and King’s College London supported her PhD research. Her most recent publication is an anthology, A Broken World: Letters, Diaries and Memories of the Great War (2014), which she co-edited with Sebastian Faulks.
List of contributors

DUNCAN WU is Professor of English at Georgetown University; a former Fellow of St Catherine’s College, Oxford; formerly Professor of English Language and Literature at the University of Oxford; and former Professor of English Literature at the University of Glasgow. Among his many books are William Hazlitt: The First Modern Man (2008), New Writings of William Hazlitt (2007), and, with Tom Paulin, Metaphysical Hazlitt (2005).