Regulating Reproductive Donation

The emergence of new empirical evidence and ethical debate about families created by assisted reproduction has called into question the current regulatory frameworks that govern reproductive donation in many countries. In this multidisciplinary book, social scientists, ethicists and lawyers offer fresh perspectives on the current challenges facing the regulation of reproductive donation, and suggest possible ways forward. They address questions such as: what might people want to know about the circumstances of their conception? Should we limit the number of children donors can produce? Is it wrong to pay donors or to reward them with cut-price fertility treatments? Is overseas surrogacy exploitative of women from poor communities? Combining the latest empirical research with analysis of ethics, policy and legislation, the book focuses on the regulation of gamete and embryo donation and surrogacy at a time when more people are considering assisted reproduction and when new techniques and policies are underway.

SUSAN GOLOMBOK is Professor of Family Research and Director of the Centre for Family Research at the University of Cambridge.

ROSAMUND SCOTT is Professor of Medical Law and Ethics and Co-Director of the Centre of Medical Law and Ethics in the Dickson Poon School of Law, King's College London.

JOHN B. APPLEBY is Research Associate at the Centre of Medical Law and Ethics in the Dickson Poon School of Law, King's College London.

MARTIN RICHARDS is Emeritus Professor of Family Research in the Centre for Family Research at the University of Cambridge.

Acknowledgements

This book is the third and final volume in the series on ‘Bioethics, Assisted Reproduction and the Family’ produced through a Wellcome Trust Enhancement Award in Biomedical Ethics held by Professor Susan Golombok and colleagues at the University of Cambridge Centre for Family Research and, for this volume, in collaboration with Professor Rosamund Scott from the Centre of Medical Law and Ethics, Dickson Poon School of Law, King’s College London and Professor Stephen Wilkinson from the Department of Politics, Philosophy and Religion at Lancaster University through their Wellcome Trust Senior Investigator Award, ‘The Donation and Transfer of Human Reproductive Materials’. We are extremely grateful to the Wellcome Trust for supporting the workshop that led to the present volume.

The editors greatly appreciate the involvement of everyone who took part in this project throughout its many stages. Thanks are due to the authors for their lively contributions to the workshop, their insightful chapters and their tolerance during the editing process. We would also like to thank the discussants for their stimulating and invaluable input.
