

INTIMATIONS OF GLOBAL LAW

A strain of law reaching beyond any bounded international or transnational remit to assert a global jurisdiction has recently acquired a new prominence. Intimations of Global Law detects this strain in structures of international law claiming a planetary scope independent of state consent, in new threads of global constitutional law, administrative law and human rights, and in revived notions of ius gentium and the global rule of law. It is also visible in the legal pursuit of functionally differentiated global public goods, general conflict rules, norms of 'legal pluralism' and new legal hybrids such as the global law of peace and humanity law.

The coming of global law affects how law manifests itself in a global age and alters the shape of our legal-ethical horizons. Global law presents a diverse, unsettled and sometimes conflicted legal category, and one which challenges our very understanding of the rudiments of legal authority.

NEIL WALKER holds the Regius Chair of Public Law and the Law of Nature and Nations at the University of Edinburgh.

GLOBAL LAW SERIES

The series provides unique perspectives on the way globalisation is radically altering the study, discipline and practice of law. Featuring innovative books in this growing field, the series explores those bodies of law which are becoming global in their application, and the newly emerging interdependency and interaction of different legal systems. It covers all major branches of the law and includes work on legal theory, history and the methodology of legal practice and jurisprudence under conditions of globalisation. Offering a major platform on global law, these books provide essential reading for students and scholars of comparative, international and transnational law.

Series Editors

Morag Godwin
Tilburg University

Randall Lesaffer
Tilburg University

David Nelken
Kings College London

Han Somsen
Tilburg University

Books in the Series

Legalized Families in the Era of Bordered Globalization
Daphna Hacker

Transnational Sustainability Laws
Phillip Paement

INTIMATIONS OF GLOBAL LAW

NEIL WALKER

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

CAMBRIDGE
 UNIVERSITY PRESS

University Printing House, Cambridge CB2 8BS, United Kingdom

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.

It furthers the University's mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781107091627

© Neil Walker 2015

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2015

Printed in the United Kingdom by Clays, St Ives plc

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloguing in Publication data

Walker, Neil, 1960– author.

Intimations of global law / Neil Walker.

pages cm – (Global law series)

ISBN 978-1-107-09162-7 (hardback)

1. International law. 2. Globalization. 3. International cooperation.

4. Global Governance. I. Title.

KZ1321.W35 2014

341–dc23

2014032236

ISBN 978-1-107-09162-7 Hardback

ISBN 978-1-107-46378-3 Paperback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-09162-7 — Intimations of Global Law
Neil Walker
Frontmatter
More Information

For Gillian

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	page ix
1 Why global law?	1
1.1 The perils and promise of global analysis	1
1.2 Reconceptualising global law	9
1.3 The coming of global law	26
2 Taking law to the world	29
2.1 Introduction	29
2.2 Going global	31
2.3 Cultivating global law	39
2.4 Global lawyers and the making of global law	47
3 Seven species of global law	55
3.1 Introduction: two visions of global law	55
3.2 The catalogue of global law I: convergent approaches	58
3.3 The catalogue of global law II: historical-discursive approaches	86
3.4 The catalogue of global law III: divergent approaches	106
4 The circuit of global law	131
4.1 Introduction	131
4.2 The double normativity of global law	132

viii	CONTENTS
	4.3 Global law’s partial visions	135
	4.4 The mutual reproduction of global law	139
	4.5 The relative autonomy of global law	144
5	Intimations of global law	148
	5.1 Introduction	148
	5.2 Suggestions of global law	151
	5.3 The inexorability of global law	173
6	Confronting global law	178
	6.1 Reconsidering global law	178
	6.2 Two platforms of critique	180
	6.3 Charging global law	187
	6.4 Recharging global law	192
	Index	206

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book began as the Montesquieu Lecture, delivered at Tilburg University in June 2012 on the occasion of the inauguration of the new Law Schools Global League. That, of course, was just the kind of event a book looking out for ‘Intimations of Global Law’ ought to be taking a close interest in. My first thanks, then, are due to my Tilburg hosts, Willem Witteveen, Randall Lesaffer and Morag Goodwin, both for providing me with a platform for developing the outline of the book and for taking an initiative that helped me make proper sense of my subject matter.

The passage from lecture to book was made much easier, and much more enjoyable, by a number of other generous invitations to try out my ideas. I learned much from lecture audiences and seminar participants at the Universities of Amsterdam, Durham, Helsinki, Southampton and Tilburg (again), at the European University Institute in Florence, at University College London, at the Católica Global School of Law in Lisbon, and at the iCourts Institute of the University of Copenhagen. I am grateful to my hosts at all of these institutions. I also owe a special debt of gratitude to my own Edinburgh colleagues at the Law School, the Centre for Law and Society and the Global Justice Institute, who together organised what proved to be a stimulating – and, for me, invaluable – full-day discussion of an early draft of the manuscript.

Many people have engaged with my ideas on global law in ways that have been extremely helpful. They include Daniel Augenstein, Loïc Azoulay, Christine Bell, Oren Ben-Dor, Nehal Bhuta, Dan Carr, Emiliós Christodoulidis, Carlos Closa, Sharon Cowan, Marise Cremona, Deirdre Curtin, Gráinne de Búrca, Bruno de Witte, Luis Duarte d’Almeida, Navraj Ghaleigh, Alun Gibbs, Marco Goldoni, Morag Goodwin, Jane Holder, Claire Kilpatrick, Mattias Kumm, Randall Lesaffer, Cormac MacAmhlaigh, Euan MacDonald, Daithí Mac Síthigh, Miguel Maduro, Ruth Rubio Marin, Joana Mendez, Claudio Michelon, Hans Micklitz, Elisa Morgera, Steve Neff, André Nollkaemper, Aiofe O’Donoghue, Dennis Patterson, George Pavlakos, Ulli Petersmann, Haris Psarris, Gonçalo de Almeida Ribeiro, Paolo

Sandro, Giovanni Sartor, Martin Scheinin, Robert Schütze, Kathryn Sikkink, Mark Telford, Stephen Tierney, Jim Tully, Kaarlo Tuori, Bert van Roermund, Marlene Wind, Jonathan Zeitlin and Peer Zumbansen. A very special mention is due to Zenon Bankowski, Hans Lindahl, Martin Loughlin, Gianluigi Palombella, Alec Stone Sweet and William Twining, each of whom took the considerable trouble of reading and commenting on the entire manuscript.

Thanks, too, to Finola O’Sullivan at Cambridge University Press, who met all reasonable expectations, not to mention quite a few unreasonable ones. And also to Tom Daly, who proved to be a quite brilliant editorial assistant in the early stages of pulling the manuscript together. And last but not least, I have my family to be thankful for. Even more so than most books, this one was written in the early mornings, late at night, and at weekends. To Emilia, Lewis and Ross, and particularly to Gillian, many thanks for your constant patience, support and love. The book would never have seen the light of day without you.