The Cambridge Social History of Modern Ireland

Covering three centuries of unprecedented demographic and economic changes, this textbook is an authoritative and comprehensive view of the shaping of Irish society at home and abroad from the famine of 1740 to the present day. The first major work on the history of modern Ireland to adopt a social history perspective, it focuses on the experiences and agency of Irish men, women and children, Catholics and Protestants, in the north, south and the diaspora. An international team of leading scholars surveys key changes in population, the economy, occupations, property ownership, class and migration as well as considering the interaction of the individual and the state through welfare, education, crime and policing. Drawing on a wide range of disciplinary approaches and consistently setting Irish developments in a wider European and global context, this is an invaluable resource for courses on modern Irish history and Irish studies.

EUGENIO F. BIAGINI is Fellow of Sidney Sussex College Cambridge and Professor of Modern and Contemporary History, University of Cambridge.

MARY E. DALY is President of the Royal Irish Academy and Professor Emerita of Modern History, University College Dublin.
