

CONTENTS

List of abbreviations page vii

Note on references x

Introduction 1

1. The state of medical accident liability and redress in England 8

Medical accident liability and redress in England today 9

Reforming medical accident liability and redress law in England 10

Conclusion 22

2. Medical accident liability and redress in France: a comparative analysis 24

The civil and administrative liability rules 28

Liability of the medical profession in criminal law 49

The administrative compensation scheme 53

Additional compensation schemes run by ONIAM 58

Conclusion 60

3. Differing cultures of civil liability 61

Differing traditions of civil liability in France and England 61

Differing cultures of civil liability 65

Conclusion 75

4. The cost of medical accident redress 76

The cost of medical accident redress in France 76

The relevance of the French experience for English law 85

Conclusion 91

5. Problems posed by the French administrative compensation scheme 93

The categorization of victims in French medical accident compensation law 96

Uncertainty in defining the boundaries of the liability and redress rules	98
Inconsistency in decision-making	104
Justifying the categorization of claims	106
Does the administrative compensation scheme treat victims fairly?	108
Analysis and comparison with English law	112
Conclusion	115
6. Shaping the doctor–patient relationship through civil liability law	117
Recognition of patient autonomy through informed consent to treatment	118
Appeasing the doctor–patient relationship through a duty of candour	137
The effect of the out-of-court settlement scheme on the doctor–patient relationship	143
Conclusion	148
7. Medical accident liability and redress: promoting patient safety?	150
Civil liability as a deterrent to medical accidents	152
Civil liability and learning from medical accidents	156
The effect of the French administrative compensation scheme on patient safety	166
Conclusion	169
General conclusion	172
Index	179