

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-10588-1 - Ancient Wisdom in the Age of the New Science: Histories of Philosophy in England, c. 1640–1700

Dmitri Levitin

Table of Contents

More information

Contents

Acknowledgements	page vii
List of abbreviations	ix
Notes on the text	xii
1. Introduction: histories of philosophy between ‘Renaissance’ and ‘Enlightenment’	1
1.1 Method: the history of scholarship, the history of philosophy, or the history of intellectual culture?	1
1.2 The historiography of the history of philosophy	4
1.3 English intellectual culture, c. 1640–1700	13
1.4 The argument	21
2. Ancient wisdom I. The wisdom of the east: Zoroaster, astronomy, and the Chaldeans, from Thomas Stanley to Thomas Hyde	33
2.1 Zoroaster and near-eastern philosophy before 1600	34
2.2 Thomas Stanley as a historian of philosophy	38
2.3 Stanley and Zoroaster: the Chaldean Oracles in a rabbinic setting	54
2.4 Histories of astronomy and the culture of English science: Stanley, Sherburne, and the natural philosophers	71
2.5 Near-eastern philosophy and apologetics	84
2.6 Jean Le Clerc, after Stanley	90
2.7 Thomas Hyde	95
2.8 Conclusion	109
3. Ancient wisdom II. Moses the Egyptian?	113
3.1 Egyptian and Mosaic philosophy before 1640	114
3.2 The turn to history	119
3.3 Scientists confront scripture I	123
3.4 Henry More and the non-existence of ‘Cambridge Platonism’	126
3.5 Questioning Mosaic primacy	138
3.6 The assault on Jewish primacy and a new Egypt	154
3.7 Scientists confront scripture II	180
3.8 The scholarly response	221
3.9 Conclusion	229

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-10588-1 - Ancient Wisdom in the Age of the New Science: Histories of Philosophy in England, c. 1640–1700

Dmitri Levitin

Table of Contents

More information

vi	Contents
4.	Histories of natural philosophy I. Histories of method	230
4.1	Sources	231
4.2	Historicising natural philosophy's break from metaphysics	242
4.3	Histories of natural philosophical method before 1660	252
4.4	Histories of natural philosophical method after 1660	269
4.5	Historical justifications for the mathematisation of experimental natural philosophy	313
4.6	Conclusion	325
5.	Histories of natural philosophy II. Histories of doctrine: matter theory and animating principles	329
5.1	Histories of matter theory	330
5.2	Scholarly and religious responses to Gassendi's history of matter theory	339
5.3	Natural philosophical histories of matter theory	369
5.4	Ancient philosophy as idolatrous animism	398
5.5	Conclusion	446
6.	Philosophy in the early church	447
6.1	Sources	448
6.2	The early church in philosophical context	456
6.3	A new patristics	467
6.4	Two early radicals: Hobbes and Beale	476
6.5	Platonism, monasticism, and enthusiasm in the early church	483
6.6	The acceptance of Platonism in the early church	502
6.7	The trinitarian controversy	523
6.8	Enlightenment?	531
6.9	Conclusion	539
7.	Conclusion	542
	Bibliography	549
	Index	647