

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-11187-5 - Luther's Legacy: The Thirty Years War and the Modern
Notion of 'State' in the Empire, 1530s to 1790s

Robert von Friedeburg

Table of Contents

More information

Contents

Acknowledgments	vi
Introduction	1
Luther's legacy and the 'German' notion of state	1
1 Meinecke's riddle: 'reason of state' and Reformation prudence	8
2 Royal rights and princely dynasties in late medieval and early modern Germany, fourteenth to early seventeenth centuries	42
3 Civil order and princely rights, 1450s to 1580s: the making of the elements	82
4 The transformation of ideas on order and the rise of the 'fatherland', 1580s to 1630s: the re-ordering of the elements	168
5 The challenge of 'reason of state', 1600s to 1650s	208
6 The catastrophe of war and the partial collapse of relations between princes and vassals	237
7 The re-establishing of compromise and the new use of the elements: Seckendorff, Pufendorf and the dissemination of the new concept of 'state'	313
8 Readings of despotism: the attack on 'war-despotism' between Bodin and Montesquieu	354
Conclusion	381
Luther's legacy: the 'Germanness' of the modern notion of 'state'	381
Bibliography	388
Index	434