We are grateful to the many thousands of World Mental Health (WMH) survey respondents around the world who gave of their time so generously; in so doing they have added immeasurably to our understanding of the epidemiology of mental disorders. For this volume, the editors would like to acknowledge the contributions of all the researchers who have been part of the WMH Surveys Initiative, only a proportion of whom are represented as authors on chapters included in this volume. We are particularly indebted to Carmen Lim, University of Otago, Dunedin, who carried out most of the statistical analyses for this book. Additional statistical analyses for specific chapters were conducted by Hisateru Tachimori (Chapter 21), Maria Petukhova (Chapter 11), and Klaas Wardenaar (Chapter 20). We would also like to acknowledge the contribution of the analysts and staff of the WMH Data Collection and Data Analysis Centre at the Department of Health Care Policy, Harvard Medical School, whose foundational data management and analytical work underpins the statistical analyses undertaken for this volume. We thank Teresa Gorman, Department of Health Care Policy, Harvard Medical School, for her administrative assistance. Finally, we greatly appreciate the funding provided for the statistical analyses undertaken by Carmen Lim through grants to Kate Scott in 2015 and 2016 from the James Hume Family Bequest, Dunedin, New Zealand.

This project was carried out in conjunction with the World Health Organization WMH Surveys Initiative. We thank the WMH staff for assistance with instrumentation, fieldwork, and consultation on data analysis. These activities were supported by the United States National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH; R01 MH070884), the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, the Pfizer Foundation, the United States Public Health Service (R13-MH066849, R01-MH069864, and R01 DA016558), the Fogarty International Center (FIRCA R03-TW006481), the Pan American Health Organization, Eli Lilly and Company, Ortho-McNeil Pharmaceutical Inc.,

GlaxoSmithKline, and Bristol-Myers Squibb. A complete list of WMH publications can be found at www.hcp.med.harvard.edu/wmh.
