The Marx Revival

The planet is in deep trouble because of capitalism, and Karl Marx, freed from the chains of ‘real socialism’, is being rediscovered all around the world as the thinker who provided us with its most insightful critique. The Marx Revival is the best, most complete, and most modern guide to Marx’s ideas that has appeared since the fall of the Berlin Wall. Written by highly reputed international experts, in a clear form accessible to a wider public, it brings together the liveliest and most thought-provoking contemporary interpretations of Marx’s work. It presents what he actually wrote in respect of twenty-two key concepts, the areas that require updating as a result of changes since the late-nineteenth century, and the reasons why it is still of such relevance in today’s world. The result is a collection that will prove indispensable both for specialists and for a new generation approaching Marx’s work for the first time.

Marcello Musto is Associate Professor of Sociology at York University. He has published worldwide in more than twenty languages and his most recent titles are Another Marx: Early Manuscripts to the International (2018), The Last Years of Karl Marx: An Intellectual Biography (2020), and Travels with Marx: Destinations, Reflections and Encounters (2020).
The Marx Revival

Key Concepts and New Interpretations

Edited by

Marcello Musto

York University
Contents

- About the Editor
  page x
- List of Contributors
  xi
- Preface
  xvii
- Acknowledgements
  xx
- Note on the Text
  xxi

1 Capitalism
MICHAEL R. KRÁTKE
1.1 Capitalism and Its History
1
1.2 Capitalism: What Is in a Word?
3
1.3 The Basic Features of Modern Capitalism
6
1.4 Value, Money, Competition
8
1.5 Exploitation and Accumulation
11
1.6 The Historical Emergence and Development of Capitalism
16
1.7 Marx's Critique of Modern Capitalism
19

2 Communism
MARCELLO MUSTO
2.1 Critical Theories of the Early Socialists
24
2.2 Equality, Theoretical Systems, and Future Society: Errors of the Precursors
26
2.3 Where and Why Marx Wrote about Communism
30
2.4 The Limits of the Initial Formulations
33
2.5 Communism as Free Association
37
2.6 Common Ownership and Free Time
41
2.7 Role of the State, Individual Rights, and Freedoms
45

3 Democracy
ELLEN MEIKSINS WOOD
3.1 Marx's Critique of Democracy
51
3.2 The Changing Meanings of Democracy
53
3.3 Marx on 'Bourgeois Democracy'
58
3.4 From Politics to Political Economy
62
3.5 The Political Limits of Capitalist Democracy
65
vi Contents

4 Proletariat 70
MARCEL VAN DER LINDEN
4.1 The Revolutionary Subject 70
4.2 Defining the Proletariat 72
4.3 Excluding the Lumpenproletariat 75
4.4 Excluding Chattel Slaves 79
4.5 Problematic Consequences 84
4.6 A Final Word 87

5 Class Struggle 92
ALEX CALLINICOS
5.1 Genealogy 92
5.2 Theoretical Articulation 94
5.3 Politics 98
5.4 Assessment 103

6 Political Organization 108
PETER HUDIS
6.1 The Philosophical Basis of Marx’s Concept of Organization 108
6.2 Marx on Political Organization before and during the 1848 Revolutions 109
6.3 Capital, the First International, and the Paris Commune 114
6.4 Two Concepts of Organization: Marx versus Lassalle on the Party 118
6.5 Marx versus Post-Marx Marxism on Organization 122

7 Revolution 126
MICHAEL LÖWY
7.1 Revolutionary Praxis: The Early Writings 126
7.2 Revolution as Self-Emancipation: The First International and the Paris Commune 131
7.3 The Late Marx: Germany and Russia, Centre and Periphery 134
7.4 After Marx 136

8 Work 141
RICARDO ANTUNES
8.1 Work as a Vital Human Activity 141
8.2 Labour as an Alienated Activity 143
8.3 Labour, Value-Theory, Fetishism, and Associated Work 145
8.4 Work Today 153

9 Capital and Temporality 157
MOISHE POSTONE
9.1 Reconceptualizing Marxism 157
9.2 History and Domination 159
9.3 Critique and Historical Specificity 161
9.4 The Dialectic of Temporal Mediation 166
Contents

9.5 The Dual Crisis of Capital
9.6 An Adequate Critical Theory for Today

10 Ecology
John Bellamy Foster
10.1 Marx and the Earth
10.2 Western Marxist Criticisms of Marx on Nature
10.3 The Rediscovery of Marx’s Ecology
10.4 The Emergence of Marxian Ecological Praxis

11 Gender Equality
Heather A. Brown
11.1 Marx, Gender, and Feminism
11.2 Marx’s Early Writings on Gender Equality and Emancipation
11.3 Political Economy, Gender, and the Transformation of the Family
11.4 The Dialectics of the Pre-capitalist Family
11.5 The Importance of Dialectical Intersectionality

12 Nationalism and Ethnicity
Kevin B. Anderson
12.1 Refuting a Legend
12.2 Poland and the European Democratic Revolution
12.3 Race, Class, and Slavery during the American Civil War
12.4 Ireland: Struggling against both National and Ethnic Oppression
12.5 Reflections for the Twenty-First Century

13 Migration
Pietro Basso
13.1 The Forced Emigration of Rural Producers
13.2 The Slave Trade and the Super-Exploitation of Black Slaves in the Colonies
13.3 Migration in and from Europe
13.4 Global Labour Market and Industrial Reserve Army
13.5 A Process That Is Not Natural but Social-Historical 13.6 British Proletarians and Irish Proletarians
13.7 Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow

14 Colonialism
Sandro Mezzadra and Ranabir Samaddar
14.1 Capitalism as a World Force and Colonialism
14.2 Capitalism, Colonialism, Transition
14.3 Colonial Relations, Class Question, and the Peasantry
14.4 Slavery
14.5 The Colonized as the Political Subject
Contents

15 State

BOB JESSOP
- Are There Essential, Permanent, Stable Elements? 266
- Three Essential Theories of the State and State Power 268
- The State as a Social Relation 274
- Marx and State Theory Today 279

16 Globalization

SEONGJIN JEONG
- Globalization in Marx’s Words 285
- The Dialectics of Progress 286
- The World Market and Critique of Political Economy 289
- The World Market and the State 290
- Uneven and Combined Development on a World Scale 292
- International Value and Exploitation 293
- World Market Crisis 296
- From World Market to World Revolution 298

17 War and International Relations

BENNO TESCHKE
- A Belated Discovery 302
- The General Problem of International Relations in Marx’s Thought 304
- The Early Wager: The Universalization of Capitalism 307
- From Logic to History: The Impact of 1848 and the Crimean War 309
- Historicism as Theory 314

18 Religion

GILBERT ACHCAR
- Marx’s Engagement with Religion 320
- Marx’ Left–Hegelian Critique of Religion 321
- Towards a Materialist Interpretation of Religion 327
- The Marxian Political Attitude on Religion 331

19 Education

ROBIN SMALL
- Marx’s Contribution on Education 338
- The Political Economy of Education 339
- Education, the State, and Society 342
- Marx’s Curriculum 344
- Teachers and Their Work 346
- Marx and Education Today 348

20 Art

ISABELLE GARO
- Art and Alienation 351
Contents

20.2 Art and the Critique of Political Economy 355
20.3 The Contemporary Relevance of Marx’s Analysis of Art 360

21 Technology and Science 363
AMY E. WENDLING
21.1 Science and Technology in Marx’s Research 363
21.2 Communist Machines in the Grundrisse 366
21.3 Technology and Contradiction in Capital 368
21.4 The Use of Marx’s Account of Technology 373

22 Marxisms 376
IMMANUEL WALLERSTEIN
22.1 Different Versions of Marxism 376
22.2 Engels’ Marxism 377
22.3 Soviet Marxism 380
22.4 US Hegemony and the Cold War 384
22.5 The World Revolution of 1968 387
22.6 Collapse of the Communisms 389

Index 393
About the Editor

Marcello Musto is Associate Professor of Sociological Theory at York University (Toronto – Canada). He is author of: Ripensare Marx e i marxismi. Studi e saggi (Carocci, 2011); Another Marx: Early Manuscripts to the International (Bloomsbury, 2018); Karl Marx. Biografia intellettuale e politica 1857–1883 (Einaudi, 2018); The Last Years of Karl Marx: An Intellectual Biography (Stanford University Press, 2020); and Travels of Karl Marx: Destinations, Reflections and Encounters (Europa Editions, 2020). Among his edited volumes there are: Karl Marx’s Grundrisse: Foundations of the Critique of Political Economy 150 Years Later (Routledge, 2008); Marx for Today (Routledge, 2012); Workers Until! The International 150 Years Later (Bloomsbury, 2014); The International After 150 Years: Labour Versus Capital, Then and Now (with George Comninel and Victor Wallis, Routledge, 2015); Marx’s Capital after 150 Years: Critique and Alternative to Capitalism, (Routledge, 2019); Karl Marx’s Life, Ideas, Influences: A Critical Examination on the Bicentenary (with Shaibal Gupta and Babak Amini, Palgrave, 2019); and The Routledge Handbook of Marx’s ‘Capital’: A Global History of Translation, Dissemination and Reception (with Babak Amini, Routledge, forthcoming 2021). His articles appeared in many journals, including the International Review of Social History, Science & Society, Critique, Review of Radical Political Economics, Socialism and Democracy, Economic & Political Weekly, and Contemporary Sociology. His writings – available at www.marcellomusto.org – have been published worldwide in more than twenty languages. He is also the editor (with Terrell Carver) of the Series Marx, Engels, Marxisms (Palgrave).
Contributors

Kevin B. Anderson is Professor of Sociology at University of California, Santa Barbara (USA). Among his books there are: Lenin, Hegel, and Western Marxism: A Critical Study (University of Illinois Press, 1995) and Marx at the Margins: On Nationalism, Ethnicity, and Non-Western Societies (University of Chicago Press, 2010). Among his edited volumes there are: The Rosa Luxemburg Reader (with Peter Hudis, Monthly Review, 2004), Dunayevskaya-Marcuse-Fromm Correspondence (with Russell Rockwell, Lexington, 2012), and Karl Marx (with Bertell Ollman, Routledge, 2012).

Ricardo Antunes is Professor of Sociology at the University of Campinas (Brazil). He is author of: Adiós al trabajo? Ensayo sobre las metamorfosis y la centralidad del mundo del trabajo (Cortez, 2001), The Meanings of Work: Essay on the Confirmation and Negation of Work (Brill, 2013), and O novo proletariado de serviço na era digital (Boitempo, 2018). Among his edited volumes there are: Riqueza e Miséria do Trabalho no Brasil, volumes I, II, III, and IV (Boitempo, 2014, 2013, 2014, and 2019).

Pietro Basso is Associate Professor of Sociology at Ca’ Foscari University of Venice (Italy). He is the author of: Modern Times, Ancient Hours: Working Lives in the Twenty-First Century (Verso, 2003) and Le racisme européen. Critique de la rationalité institutionnelle de l’oppression (Syllepse, 2016). Among his edited volumes there are:

Heather A. Brown is Assistant Professor of Political Science at Westfield State University (Massachusetts, USA). She is the author of Marx on Gender and the Family: A Critical Study (Brill, 2012).

Alex Callinicos is Professor of European Studies at King’s College London (UK). His books include: The Revolutionary Ideas of Karl Marx (Bookmarks Publications, 1983), Against Postmodernism (Polity Press, 1989), An Anti-Capitalist Manifesto (Polity, 2003), The Resources of Critique (Polity, 2006), Imperialism and Global Political Economy (Polity, 2009), and Deciphering Capital: Marx’s Capital and Its Destiny (Bookmarks Publications, 2014).

John Bellamy Foster is Professor of Sociology at the University of Oregon (Eugene, USA). Among his books there are: The Vulnerable Planet (1994), Marx’s Ecology (2000), Ecology Against Capitalism (2002), Naked Imperialism (2006), The Ecological Revolution: Making Peace with the Planet (2009), The Great Financial Crisis (with Fred Magdoff, 2009), The Ecological Rift (with Brett Clark and Richard York, 2010), and The Endless Crisis (with Robert W. McChesney, 2012), all published by Monthly Review Press. He has also written Marx and the Earth (with Paul Burkett, Brill, 2016).

Isabelle Garo teaches at the Lycée Chaptal (Paris, France). She is the author of: Marx. Une critique de la philosophie (Seuil, 2000), L’idéologie ou la pensée embarquée (La Fabrique, 2009), Foucault, Deleuze, Althusser et Marx. La politique dans la philosophie (Démopolis, 2011), Marx et l’invention historique (Syllepse, 2012), L’or des images. Art, monnaie, capital (La Ville Brûle, 2013), and Communisme et stratégie (Amsterdam, 2019). She also co-edited Marx politique (with Jean-Numa Ducange, La Dispute, 2015).

Peter Hudis is Professor of Philosophy and Humanities at Oakton Community College (Des Plaines, IL, USA). He is author of: Marx’s Concept of the Alternative to Capitalism (Brill, 2012) and Franz Fanon, Philosopher of the Barricades (Pluto, 2015). He has edited: The Rosa Luxemburg Reader (with Kevin B. Anderson, Monthly Review Press, 2004), The Letters of Rosa Luxemburg (Verso, 2011), and The Complete Works of Rosa Luxemburg, volumes 1, 2, and 3 (Verso, 2013, 2015, and 2019).
List of Contributors

Seongjin Jeong is Professor of Economics at Gyeongsang National University (Jinju, Republic of Korea). He is the author of: Marx and the Korean Economy (Chaekgalpi, 2005), Marx and Trotsky (Hanul, 2006), and Marx and the World Economy (Hanul, 2015). Among his edited volumes there are: Marxist Perspectives on South Korea in the Global Economy (with Martin Hart-Landsberg and Richard Westra, Routledge, 2016) and Varieties of Alternative Economic Systems: Practical Utopias for an Age of Global Crisis and Austerity (with Richard Westra and Robert Albritton, Routledge, 2017).

Bob Jessop is Distinguished Professor of Sociology at Lancaster University (UK). Among his books there are: The Capitalistic State: Marxists Theories and Methods (Martin Robertson, 1982), Nicos Poulantzas: Marxian Theory and Political Strategy (Macmillan, 1985), State Theory: Putting the Capitalist State in Its Place (Polity, 1990), The Future of the Capitalist State (Polity, 2002), State Power: A Strategic-Relational Approach (Polity, 2007), and The State: Past, Present, Future (Polity, 2016). Among his edited volumes there are: Karl Marx’s Social and Political Thought: Critical Assessments, volumes 1, 2, 3, and 4 (Routledge, 1990) and Karl Marx’s Social and Political Thought: Critical Assessments, volumes 5, 6, 7, and 8 (with Wheatley Russell, Routledge, 1999).

Michael R. Krätke is Professor of Sociology at Lancaster University (UK). He is the author of: Kritik der Staatsfinanzen: zur politischen Ökonomie des Steuerstaats (VSA Verlag, 1984) and Kritik der Politischen Ökonomie heute. Zeitgenosse Marx (VSA Verlag, 2017).

Marcello Musto is Associate Professor of Sociological Theory at York University (Toronto, Canada). He is the author of: Another Marx: Early Manuscripts to the International (Bloomsbury, 2018) and The Last Years of Karl Marx: An Intellectual Biography (Stanford University Press, 2020).
List of Contributors

Sandro Mezzadra is Associate Professor of Political Theory at the University of Bologna (Italy). He is the author of: La condizione post-coloniale. Storia e politica nel presente globale (Ombre Corte, 2008), In the Marxian Workshops: Producing Subjects (Rowman & Littlefield, 2018), and The Politics of Operations: Excavating Contemporary Capitalism (Duke University Press, 2019). Among his books there are: Border as Method, or, the Multiplication of Labor (with Brett Neilson, Duke University Press, 2013).

Moishe Postone was Professor of History at the University of Chicago (USA). He authored: Time Labor and Social Domination (Cambridge University Press, 1993), Marx est-il devenu muet (La Tour-d’Aigues, 2003), and Deutschland, die Linke und der Holocaust Politische Interventionen (ca ira, 2005). He also edited: Bourdieu: Critical Perspectives (with Craig J. Calhoun and Edward LiPuma, Polity Press, 1993) and Catastrophe and Meaning (with Eric Sentner, University of Chicago Press, 2003).

Robin Small is Emeritus Professor at the University of Auckland (New Zealand). He is the author of: Marx and Education (Ashgate, 2005), Nietzsche and Rée: A Star Friendship (Oxford University Press, 2005), Karl Marx: The Revolutionary as Educator (Springer, 2013), and Friedrich Nietzsche: Reconciling Knowledge and Life (Springer, 2016). He is also the editor of: A Hundred Years of Phenomenology: Perspectives on a Philosophical Tradition (Ashgate, 2001).

Benno Teschke is Professor of International Relations at the University of Sussex (Brighton, UK). He is the author of The Myth of 1648: Class, Geopolitics and the Making of Modern International Relations (Verso, 2003).

Marcel van der Linden is Honorary Fellow at the International Institute of Social History (Amsterdam, the Netherlands). His books include: Western Marxism and the Soviet Union: A Survey of Critical Theories and Debates since 1917 (Brill, 2007) and Workers of the World:
List of Contributors

Amy E. Wendling is Professor of Philosophy at Creighton University (Omaha, USA). She is the author of: Karl Marx on Technology and Alienation (Palgrave-Macmillan, 2009) and The Ruling Ideas: Bourgeois Political Concepts (Lexington Books, 2012).

Ellen Meiksins Wood was Professor of Political Theory at York University (Toronto, Canada). Among her books there are: The Retreat from Class: A New ‘True’ Socialism (Verso, 1986), Democracy against Capitalism: Renewing Historical Materialism (Cambridge University Press, 1995), The Origin of Capitalism (Verso, 2002), Empire of Capital (Verso, 2003), and Citizens to Lords: A Social History of Western Political Thought, volumes 1 and 2 (Verso, 2008 and 2012).
Preface

Scornful neglect and intemperate hostility, haughty dismissal and marginal course adoption, selective co-optation and selective bowdlerization: these are some of the strategies adopted by establishment intellectuals over the years in response to the challenge of the thinker born two hundred years ago in Trier. Yet, here we are at the beginning of the third decade of the twenty-first century, and it sometimes seems that Karl Marx’s real ideas have never been as topical, or as commanding of respect and interest, as they are today.

Since the latest crisis of capitalism broke out in 2008, Marx has been back in fashion. Contrary to the predictions after the fall of the Berlin Wall, when he was consigned to perpetual oblivion, Marx’s ideas are once more the object of analysis, development, and debate. Many have begun to ask new questions about a thinker who was often wrongly identified with ‘actually existing socialism’ and then curtly brushed aside after 1989. Prestigious newspapers and journals with a wide readership have described Marx as a highly topical and far-sighted theorist. Almost everywhere, he is now the theme of university courses and international conferences. His writings, reprinted or brought out in new editions, have reappeared on bookshop shelves, and the study of his work, after twenty years of virtual silence, has gathered increasing momentum, sometimes producing important, ground-breaking results. The years 2017 and 2018 have brought further intensity to this ‘Marx revival’, thanks to many initiatives around the world linked to the 150th anniversary of the publication of Capital and the bicentenary of Marx’s birth.

Of particular value for an overall reassessment of Marx’s oeuvre was the resumed publication in 1998 of the Marx-Engels-Gesamtausgabe (MEGA²), the historical-critical edition of the complete works of Marx and Engels. Twenty-eight volumes have already appeared, and others are in the course of preparation. These volumes contain new versions of some of Marx’s works (like The German Ideology), all his preparatory manuscripts of Capital from 1857 to 1881, all the letters he sent and received during his life, and approximately two hundred notebooks containing Excerpts from his reading and reflections to which they gave rise. The latter form the workshop of his critical theory, showing us the complex itinerary of his thought and the sources on which he drew in developing his ideas.
Preface

These priceless volumes of the MEGA\textsuperscript{2} edition – many available only in German and therefore still confined to small circles of researchers – show us an author very different from the one that numerous critics, or self-styled followers, presented for such a long time. The publication of previously unknown materials of Marx, along with innovative interpretations of his work, has opened up new research horizons and demonstrated, more clearly than in the past, his capacity to examine the contradictions of capitalist society on a global scale and in spheres beyond the conflict between capital and labour. It is no exaggeration to say that, of the great classics of political, economic, and philosophical thought, Marx is the one whose profile has changed the most in the opening decades of the twenty-first century.

Research advances, together with the changed political conditions, suggest that the renewal in the interpretation of Marx’s thought is a phenomenon destined to continue. Recent publications have shown that Marx went deeply into many issues – often underestimated, or even ignored, by scholars of his work – which are acquiring crucial importance for the political agenda of our times. Among these are the ecological question, migration, the critique of nationalism, individual freedom in the economic and political sphere, gender emancipation, the emancipatory potential of technology, and forms of collective ownership not controlled by the state.

Furthermore, Marx undertook thorough investigations of societies outside Europe and expressed himself unambiguously against the ravages of colonialism. He also criticized thinkers who used categories peculiar to the European context in their analysis of peripheral areas of the globe. He warned against those who failed to observe the necessary distinctions between phenomena and, especially after his theoretical advances in the 1870s, he was highly wary of transferring interpretive categories across completely different historical or geographical fields. All this is more evident today, despite the scepticism still fashionable in certain academic quarters. Thus, thirty years after the fall of the Berlin Wall, it has become possible to read a Marx very unlike the dogmatic, economistic, and Eurocentric theorist who was paraded around for so long.

Of course, one can find in Marx’s massive literary bequest a number of statements that suggest that the development of the productive forces is leading to dissolution of the capitalist mode of production. But it would be wrong to attribute to him any idea that the advent of socialism is a historical inevitability. Indeed, for Marx, the possibility of transforming society depended on the working class and its capacity, through struggle, to change the world.

If Marx’s ideas are reconsidered in the light of changes that have occurred since his death, they prove highly useful for an understanding of capitalist society but also shed light on the failure of socialist experiences in the twentieth century. For Marx, capitalism is not an organization of society in which human beings, protected by impartial legal norms capable of guaranteeing justice and equity, enjoy true freedom and live in accomplished democracy. In reality, they are degraded into mere objects, whose primary function is to produce commodities and profit for others. But if communism aims to be a higher form of society, it must promote the conditions for ‘the full and free development of each individual’. In contrast to the equation of communism with ‘dictatorship of the proletariat’, which many of the ‘communist states’ espoused in their propaganda, it is necessary to look again at Marx’s definition of communist society as ‘an association of free human beings’.

This book – which contains contributions by noted international scholars – presents a Marx in many ways different from the one familiar from the dominant currents of twentieth-century socialism. Its dual aim is to reopen for discussion, in a critical and innovative manner, the classical themes of Marx’s thought, and to develop a deeper analysis of certain questions to which relatively little attention has been paid until now. It is hoped that the volume will therefore help to bring Marx closer both to those who think everything has already been written about his work and to a new generation of readers who have not yet been seriously confronted with his writings.

It goes without saying that we cannot today simply rely on what Marx wrote a century and a half ago. But nor should we lightly discount the content and clarity of his analyses or fail to take up the critical weapons he offered for fresh thinking about an alternative society to capitalism.

Marcello Musto
Acknowledgements

The editor would like to thank Babak Amini and George Comninel for their editorial help. I would also like to express my gratitude to Patrick Camiller, who has revised Chapter 2, and to Emma Willert who prepared the index.

The editor and publisher are also grateful to the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies, York University, Toronto, Canada, for the financial support it provided to this work.
Note on the Text

Marx’s writings have been generally quoted from the fifty-volume Marx Engels Collected Works (MECW) (Moscow/London/New York: Progress Publishers/Lawrence and Wishart/International Publishers, 1975–2005). Citations from the Grundrisse and from the three volumes of Capital have been often taken from Penguin editions. Moreover, sometimes, the reader is referred to single works translated into English not included in MECW.

Texts that have not yet been translated into English are often referenced to the Marx-Engels-Gesamtausgabe (MEGA²) (Berlin: Dietz/Akademie/De Gruyter, 1975–), of which sixty-seven of the planned 114 volumes have so far appeared in print. In a few cases, authors have cited single editions in German of writings still not published in the MEGA².

As regards the secondary literature, quotations from books and articles not published in English have been translated for the present volume. All the names of journals and newspapers are indicated first in English translation, followed by the name in original language in square brackets. Indications of birth and death dates of authors and historical figures have been provided the first time they are mentioned in each chapter of the book.