

Contents

List of illustrations	page ix
List of maps	xii
Preface	xiii
Timeline	xvi
Abbreviations	xx
1 The long-term evolution of Roman power	1
2 The Romans against outsiders, 400 BC to AD 16	15
Armed force and enduring control under the middle Republic: an outline	16
Techniques of domination under the middle Republic, to 241 BC	23
World power, 241–146 BC	33
Questions and controversies	37
Almost irresistible	50
Conclusion	66
3 The Romans against each other, from republic to monarchy	68
Inside an aristocratic society	68
The form and nature of the polity in the middle Republic	74
Late-republican discontents	87
One-man rule and its effects on wider power-relationships	98
Charismatic power, economic power	105
Internal power, external power	107
4 The Romans against outsiders, AD 16 to 337	112
Expansion slows and ceases	112
Desires and reasons	125
Emperors and their rivals	133
Military strength and weakness	137
Knowledge and methods	144
Conclusion	149
5 The Romans against each other: from empire to nation?	151
Durability and docility: the historical problem	151

viii	Contents
	Assimilation and identity	158
	The emperor	166
	Imperial questions	172
	Diocletian and Constantine	188
	High and mid-level officials	192
	Order and law	196
	Lower officials	201
	Social and gender power	202
	The power of ideas	211
	Internal power, external power	217
6	The Romans against outsiders, AD 337 to 641	219
	The crucial decades	219
	Western woes	220
	An attempt at explanation	226
	Two centuries later	240
	The unsustainability of Justinian's empire	249
	Conclusion	261
7	The Romans against each other in two long crises	264
	Sixty crucial years of imperial power	264
	Bishops, priests, and the state	277
	Social disintegration	281
	Ideas	289
	From Justinian to Heraclius and beyond	292
	Internal rivals	293
	Internal power, external power	300
8	Retrospect and some reflections	303
	References	316
	Index	345