

Conservative but Not Republican

Conservative but Not Republican provides a clear and comprehensive framework for understanding the formation and structure of ideological self-identification and its relationship to party identification in the United States. This book bridges the literature from a number of different research areas to paint a detailed portrait of African-American ideological self-identification. It also provides insight into a contemporary electoral puzzle facing party strategists, while addressing gaps in the current literature on public opinion and voting behavior.

Tasha S. Philpot is Associate Professor of Government at the University of Texas at Austin. She specializes in American Politics, with a particular interest in African-American Politics, Political Psychology, and Political Behavior. Her book Race, Republicans, and the Return of the Party of Lincoln (2007) received the 2008 WEB DuBois Outstanding Book Award, and her work has been published in journals including The American Journal of Political Science, Journal of Black Studies, PS: Political Science and Politics, and Political Behavior.

Conservative but Not Republican

*The Paradox of Party Identification and Ideology
among African Americans*

TASHA S. PHILPOT
University of Texas at Austin

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press
 978-1-107-16438-3 — Conservative but Not Republican
 Tasha S. Philpot
 Frontmatter
More Information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

University Printing House, Cambridge CB2 8BS, United Kingdom
 One Liberty Plaza, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10006, USA
 477 Williamstown Road, Port Melbourne, VIC 3207, Australia
 4843/24, 2nd Floor, Ansari Road, Daryaganj, Delhi – 110002, India
 79 Anson Road, #06-04/06, Singapore 079906

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.
 It furthers the University's mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning, and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org
 Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781107164383
 10.1017/9781316687185
 © Tasha S. Philpot 2017

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2017

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

NAMES: Philpot, Tasha S., author.
 TITLE: Conservative but not Republican : the paradox of party identification and ideology among African Americans / Tasha S. Philpot.
 DESCRIPTION: New York : Cambridge University Press, 2016. |
 Includes bibliographical references and index.
 IDENTIFIERS: LCCN 2016040380 | ISBN 9781107164383 (hardback : alk. paper)
 SUBJECTS: LCSH: African Americans—Political activity—United States. |
 African Americans—Politics and government. | Identity politics—United States. |
 Democratic Party (U.S.)—Membership. | Republican Party (U.S. : 1854- )—Membership.
 CLASSIFICATION: LCC E185.615 .P47 2016 | DDC 324.2734089/96073—dc23 LC record available at <https://lccn.loc.gov/2016040380>

ISBN 978-1-107-16438-3 Hardback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party Internet Web sites referred to in this publication and does not guarantee that any content on such Web sites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-16438-3 — Conservative but Not Republican
Tasha S. Philpot
Frontmatter
More Information

---

To Hanes Walton, Jr.

Contents

List of Figures	page ix
List of Tables	xi
Acknowledgments	xiii
Introduction	I
PART I
1 Peeling Back the Layers: The Multidimensionality of the Liberal–Conservative Continuum	21
2 From Whence We Came: The Historical Basis of Black Ideological Self-Identification	54
3 Multiple Paths to the Same Place: The Underpinnings of Ideological Self-Identification	94
PART II
4 The Tie That Binds: The History and Nature of Black Group Consciousness	129
5 The Invisible Link: Group Consciousness as a Moderator of Ideological Self-Identification	154

6	Filling in the Blanks: Group Consciousness and Ideology beyond Partisanship	184
7	African Americans, Ideology, and Consequences for the Two-Party System	204
	Appendix	225
	Bibliography	259
	Index	279

Figures

1.1 Percentage of conservatives and Republicans, by race	page 7
1.2 Correlation between party identification and ideology, by race and decade	8
1.3 Party and candidate support, 2004 and 2012	10
1.1 Self-reported Democratic presidential vote, by race and year	22
1.2 Percentage of people unable to place themselves or the parties on the liberal–conservative continuum	27
1.3 The prevalence of issue-related ideological discussions in elite discourse	44
2.1 Enlisted military versus civilian labor force, by race and year	74
2.2 Mean military feeling thermometer scores, by race and decade	75
2.3 Civilian federal employees, by year and race	82
3.1 Distribution of ideological dimensions, by race	101
3.2 Probability of self-identifying as conservative, by race and ideological dimension	111
3.3 Probability of self-identifying as conservative, by political sophistication and ideological dimension	117
4.1 Distribution of Black group consciousness dimensions, 2010 and 2012	142
4.2 Distribution of Black group consciousness, 2010 and 2012	147
5.1 Black voting behavior distinctiveness, 1952–2012	157
5.2 Party identification, by group consciousness and ideological self-identification, 2010 and 2012	168
5.3 Party affect, by group consciousness and ideological self-identification, 2010 and 2012	172

List of Figures

5.4	Party identification, by polar affect among Black conservatives, pre-Obama years and Obama years	175
5.5	Party affect, by polar affect among Black conservatives, pre-Obama years and Obama years	176
6.1	Voter turnout, by race and year	188
6.2	Probability of not voting among Black conservatives in the 2008 and 2012 elections	190
6.3	President Barack H. Obama's weekly job approval ratings, by race	194
6.4	Predicted Obama approval ratings among Black conservatives	196
6.5	Predicted Republican politician affect among Black conservatives	199

Tables

1.1 Percent voting for same-sex marriage ban and George W. Bush in 2004, by state	page 3
1.2 Demographic profile of Republicans and conservatives, by race	12
1.1 Levels of political knowledge, by race and ideological self-identification	24
1.2 Prevalence of ideological dimensions, by year	33
1.3 Use of ideological dimensions in public opinion, by race and year	47
1.4 Use of ideological dimensions in public opinion, by race	49
2.1 Perceptions of most important national problem (in percent), by race and decade	70
2.2 Prevalence of political messages in place of worship, by race and year	87
3.1 Correlation matrix for ideological dimensions, by race	107
3.2 Predictors of ideological self-identification, by race	110
4.1 Demographic profile of low and high group-consciousness Blacks	148
5.1 Mean level of group consciousness, by ideology	162
5.2 Mean level of group consciousness, by party identification	164
5.3 The effect of ideological self-identification on party identification and party affect, by group consciousness	166
5.4 The effect of ideological self-identification on party identification and party affect, by polar affect	174

5.5	Mean issue positions, by ideological self-identification and race	181
A3.1	Mean placement on ideological referents, by race	233
A6.1	The effect of ideological self-identification on reported voter turnout, by group consciousness	255
A6.2	The effect of ideological self-identification on presidential job approval, by group consciousness	256
A6.3	The effect of ideological self-identification on Republican politician affect, by group consciousness	257

Acknowledgments

There are many people to whom I owe a great debt of gratitude and without whom this project would not have been completed. First, I wish to thank the person to whom this book is dedicated, Professor Hanes Walton, Jr. Even though he is no longer of this Earth, he continues to inspire me to be a better teacher, mentor, researcher, and scholar. There are not enough words to express how much of an impact he has had on my life. He is truly missed.

I also wish to express my gratitude to a number of other scholars who have aided in the development of this project. First, I would like to thank Larry Bartels and the Center for the Study of Democratic Politics at Princeton University, who provided me the physical and intellectual space to grow this project during its early stages. Second, I wish to thank the Project for Equity, Representation, and Governance at Texas A&M University, the Colloquium on Race, Ethnicity and Immigration at the University of California at Berkeley, the Inter-University Consortium for Political and Social Research at the University of Michigan, the Distinguished Visiting Scholars Program at Washington University, and Georgetown University's Department of Government for allowing me present and receive helpful feedback on earlier versions of this project. I also wish to thank Ernest McGowen, Nadia Brown, Chima Nwachukwu, and John Iadarola for their research assistance. Finally, this book benefited greatly from financial support from the National Science Foundation (SES-0840550; SES-0610267), the University of Texas at Austin's Department of Government, and the Irma Rangel Public Policy Institute.

I am extremely grateful for the support and friendship of a number of colleagues. I am particularly thankful to Jessica Trounstone, D. Sunshine Hillygus, and Maggie Penn (a/k/a L.I.P.S.) for being my political science sister circle. I am also indebted to my colleagues and advocates at the University of Texas at Austin: Terri Givens, Daron Shaw, Paula Newberg, and Bryan Jones. I also wish to thank Paula McClain, Karen Kaufmann, Vincent Hutchings, and Nicholas Valentino for their continued friendship, love, and mentorship. Attending the University of Michigan was one of the best decisions I ever made and I don't know what I would do or where I would be if it weren't for the "Michigan Mafia." I especially owe a huge thank you to Andrea Benjamin for a "hookup" during the eleventh hour of completing this book. Lastly, I would like to thank members of "Team Tasha" who reside outside of the academy – Joya Hayes, Vikki Andrews, RoShana Adamson, Kendra Gaither, Geri Stewart, Jacquie Jones, and the members of the Beta Psi Omega Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha, Sorority, Inc.

I owe the greatest debt of gratitude to my family for supporting me through the years as this book neared completion. First, a special thank you to the light of my life, Natalie McDaniel, for providing much needed perspective when completing this book became overwhelming. Thank you to my mother, Marcia Philpot, and my mother-in-law, Nedra McDaniel, for providing reinforcement when Natalie's "perspective" became overwhelming. Finally, I wish to thank my partner in crime, Eric McDaniel, who keeps me going when the road gets too burdensome to bear.