DEMOCRACY BY THE PEOPLE

Thanks to a series of recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions, corporations can now spend unlimited sums to influence elections, Super PACs and dark money groups are flourishing, and wealthy individuals and special interests increasingly dominate American politics. Despite the overwhelming support of Americans to fix this broken system, serious efforts at reform have languished. Campaign finance is a highly intricate and complex area of the law, and the current system favors the incumbent politicians who oversee it. This illuminating book takes these hard realities as a starting point and offers realistic solutions to reform campaign finance. With contributions from more than a dozen leading scholars of election law, it should be read by anyone interested in reclaiming the promise of American democracy.

EUGENE D. MAZO is Visiting Associate Professor of Law at Rutgers University. He is the co-editor of Election Law Stories (2016), a book that tells the history of the most important Supreme Court cases in election law. He serves as treasurer of the Section on Election Law and on the executive committee of the Section on Constitutional Law at the Association of American Law Schools. Mazo has taught at the law schools of the University of Baltimore, George Mason University, the University of Maryland, and Wake Forest University. A graduate of Columbia College, he holds a master's degree from Harvard University, a D.Phil. in politics from Oxford University, and a J.D. from Stanford Law School.

TIMOTHY K. KUHNER is Associate Professor of Law at the University of Auckland. He is the author of Capitalism v. Democracy: Money in Politics and the Free Market Constitution (2014), a book that received acclaim from Thomas Piketty, Lawrence Lessig, Erwin Chemerinsky, the Harvard Law Review, and the Law and Politics Book Review. Kuhner was previously Associate Professor of Law at the Georgia State University College of Law, a Fulbright Senior Scholar at the University of Barcelona, and a Thomas J. Watson Fellow in Latin America. He is a graduate of Bowdoin College and holds a J.D. and an LL.M. from Duke Law School.

Acknowledgments

The ideas in this book were originally debated at a symposium that was organized and generously sponsored by Free Speech For People and held in Newark, New Jersey, on April 1, 2016. FSFP is a public interest advocacy organization that has worked tirelessly to overhaul America's campaign finance system. Our foremost thanks go to its leaders, John Bonifaz and Ron Fein, as well as to their colleagues Oske Buckley, Bri Holmes, and Aspen Webster. We are profoundly grateful to them for their vision, and we are proud to be their friends and partners in the struggle to reclaim America's democracy. We also wish to express our heartfelt thanks to Mark C. Alexander, the former academic associate dean at the Seton Hall University School of Law—and now the dean of the law school at Villanova University—for hosting this symposium at Seton Hall and for warmly welcoming all of us to Newark.

We are grateful to the law schools that employed Gene while we worked on this book. The seeds for the book were planted at Wake Forest, where Michael Curtis, Sidney Shapiro, Andrew Verstein, and Ronald Wright provided warm friendship and intellectual inspiration. The proposal was written at Rutgers, to which the dynamic duo of Dean Ronald Chen and Vice Dean Reid Weisbord welcomed Gene with open arms. The manuscript was edited at George Mason, where Dean Henry Butler took a chance on a campaign finance reformer, Gene's free speech-loving colleagues extensively debated the ideas in these pages, and Paolo Saguato and Elina Treyger proved to be excellent dinner companions. Gene also briefly worked on the manuscript at Savannah, where Caprice Roberts, Joseph D'Agostino, Sonya Jackson, and Judd Sneirson provided camaraderie and introduced Gene to Southern hospitality. By the time our manuscript was in production, Gene was teaching at the University of Baltimore and the University of Maryland. We thank Dean Ronald Weich and Associate Deans Dionne Koller and Amy Sloan for bringing Gene to Baltimore and Dean Donald Tobin and Associate Dean Barbara Contrum for hiring him at Maryland. Ron Chen and Reid Weisbord asked Gene to return to Rutgers as this book was about to be published, prompting us to list that institution as Gene's affiliation as he completed his grand tour of the American legal academy. For housing Gene along his journey, we owe thanks to Oluwaseun Ajayi in Arlington, Virginia, Judd Sneirson in Savannah, Georgia, and Onitta Hagerman and Sam Lloyd in Baltimore, Maryland.

We also wish to recognize Tim's former colleagues at Georgia State, in particular Steven Kaminshine, Wendy Hensel, Jessica Gabel, and Pamela Brannon, whose backing for this book was invaluable. The administration at Georgia State generously granted Tim leave to pursue this project, while the Georgia State library made many materials available to him at home and abroad. The Kuhner family moved from the United States to Spain and finally to New Zealand as this book unfolded. We gratefully acknowledge the Fulbright Scholar Program of the U.S. Department of State and the University of Barcelona, where Tim was stationed during his Fulbright award in 2017–2018, as well as Doctor Juli Ponce for being a gracious host in Barcelona and a frequent source of comparative insights about corruption and democracy. We also thank Dean Andrew Stockley for bringing Tim to Auckland Law School and for ensuring his family's smooth transition to New Zealand.

We were fortunate to work with Matt Gallaway, our extraordinary editor at Cambridge University Press, whose vision and wisdom got this project off the ground and guided it to completion. Several of Matt's colleagues at Cambridge worked tirelessly to see this book through the production process. We thank Kristina Deutsch, Meera Seth, and Jackie Grant in New York and Laura Blake in the United Kingdom. We also thank Dawn Preston at Out of House Publishing in the United Kingdom for coordinating the book's production, Lisa Cornish for providing superb copyediting from London, and Susan McCarty and Jenny Rensler of the Thurgood Marshall Law Library at the University of Maryland for helping to ensure the accuracy of our sources. This book also greatly benefitted from the tutelage of Carol McGeehan and Linda Lacy, whose knowledge of the publishing world was invaluable to us, and from the excellent research assistance of Constance Cooper.

We could never have completed this book without our loving families. Gene thanks his mother, Vlada Mazo, his brother, Phil Mazo, and his in-laws, Robert and Amanda Parker, for their support. Above all, Gene is grateful for the love and boundless encouragement he received from his wife, Gwen, and his sons, Max and Leo. Tim thanks his wife, Ana, for her sense of adventure and heartfelt support during their international journey. Tim's children, Blake and Cindy, deserve recognition here too, for their joy and sense of wonder balanced out the analytical side of life as an author and editor. When they grow up and read this book, Blake, Cindy, Max, and Leo will hopefully realize that while American democracy may be inspiring, it is also highly imperfect. May they improve it in their own way throughout their lives.

Our fathers instilled a deep appreciation for democracy in each of us throughout our lives. It is only fitting that we dedicate this book to them.

Finally, we reserve our greatest thanks for the contributors to this volume. We are grateful to them for their professionalism and hard work, for their wisdom and friendship, and for being bold and provocative in advancing their proposals for reform. A few of the ideas found in these pages first appeared in other publications. Chapter 3 draws in part on Nicholas O. Stephanopoulos, Aligning Campaign Finance Law, 101 VA. L. REV. 1425 (2015); Chapter 8 on Ganesh Sitaraman, Contracting Around Citizens United, 114 COLUM. L. REV. 755 (2014); Chapter 9 on Nick Warshaw, Forget Congress: Reforming Campaign Finance Through Mutually Assured Destruction, 63 UCLAL. REV. 208 (2016); and Chapter 13 on Michael D. Gilbert & Emily Reeder, Aggregate Corruption, 104 KY. L.J. 651 (2016). We thank the editors of these journals for kindly granting us permission to republish this material in substantially revised form here.
